A Mother's Seven Words Teaching Talkies to Talk To Stay on a Gold Basis How to Catch Squirrels

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28—A few words may save a life. Ruth Judd, accused of murdering two women, and placing their dismembered bodies in a trunk, at first confessed. Lawyers are fighting for her life against her confession. Crowds gather to hear. Witnesses supply reasons for the alleged crimes.

Then an old woman comes to the witness chair, tells the jury, "My daughter, Ruth, was a strange little girl, not quite right." Tears roll down her wrinkled cheeks and turning to the judge she says, "Excuse me, but I can't help it."

Those seven words might have more effect on a jury than all the eloquence of lawyers and testimony of experts.

In this metropolis, center and factory of the moving picture industry, even now one of the three greatest in America, mechanical genius has made it possible to put into the mouth of a "talkie" actor, who knows no language but English, any other language that may be desired, perfectly synchronized.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, most successful among producers of moving pictures, enabled this writer to see an admirable performance in which Norma Shearer and Lionel Barrymore appeared. The language was German, and a most beautiful performance, although the picture had been made in English only. German artists of high ability, a man and a woman, had "talked the film" supplying German voices for the American artists, they themselves not photographed, or making any appearance except in sound.

This means an end of the hope in foreign countries that "the talkies will kill American competition abroad." The pictures will be made here, they will talk German in Berlin, French in Paris, Italian in Rome.

So admirably was the language substitution accomplished that it was impossible to believe that Norma Shearer, sitting in the prisoner's box, or Barrymore, the lawyer, pleading for her life, was not talking German.

This industrial accomplishment in future will mean hundreds of millions in profits for an American industry.

The White House denies that there is any "policy of inflation" in the administration reconstruction program, which will lend two thousand million dollars, as a starter to big folks in need of it.

That the President and his advisers do not intend inflation is certain. But inflation comes as other diseases come, of themselves, not planned.

This country is on a gold basis now and means to stay there. But we hand our gold to anybody that asks for it, with a certain piece of paper in his hand.

Why does this government do that? The French government does not do it. No matter what paper money France may give you, neither you nor any Frenchman can get even one Louis D'Or in exchange for it. The French government has the gold, billions of it, keeps it in bars, coins none of it, lets not an ounce go out.

FRANCE IS ON A GOLD BASIS AND WILL STAY THERE BECAUSE FRANCE KEEPS HER GOLD.

Since we mean to stay on the gold basis why don't we arrange to keep our gold. We should cease paying it out to those that hurt the country by hoarding it, and absolutely forbid its exportation on any pretext.

The ignorant may say, "If you don't pay gold on demand you abandon the gold basis."

That is nonsense. You are on a gold basis, AS LONG AS YOU HAVE THE GOLD. And people will take your paper if they know you have the gold, just as they would take gladly a note signed by John D. Rockefeller.

We should keep every ounce of our gold, add to our national supply constantly, and accumulate an overwhelming control of the world's gold metal. The world's gold supply amounts to about one-fourth the number of dollars that our government and bankers have sent abroad in the last few years.

Somebody who planned to kill ground squirrels, carriers of disease, mixed a deadly poison, thallium salts, with a large pailful of grain.

Half starved Mexicans stole the grain, made tortillas. Several have died, more are expected to die.

No one is to blame, unless you blame starving creatures for stealing grain, or those that mixed the poison for leaving it where it might be stolen.

Could not scientists in one of our great laboratories produce synthetically a scent that would lure to traps and death any desired king of vermin. Science

OIL COMING TO SURFACE GIVES CLUE

Missing Craft, Believed Blown Up, May Have Been Found

BULLETIN

Portland, Eng., Jan. 28 (AP)—Seaplanes today sighted a large patch of oil on the water which pilots believed might indicate the presence of the sunken submarine M-2.

London, Jan. 28 (INS)—Possibility that the British submarine M-2 exploded before its mysterious disappearance more than 48 hours ago loomed today when a Danish ship reported having obsesved two explosions near where the M-2 disappeared eight hours after it was last seen.

Hope of rescuing the 60 men aboard alive was slight, however, since, if they had not been harmed in the explosion, they would at least have died by now from lack of oxygen, which experts agree must have already given out.

HEARD TWO EXPLOSIONS

The report of the explosion was revealed in the following statement by the British admiralty:

"The master schooner 'Crown of Denmark' reports that while 15 miles southeast of Lyme Regis at 6:40 p. m. Tuesday, it saw off its port beam a sudden bright light lasting three seconds which dimmed, reappeared brightly, and then disappeared altogether.

"The light was followed two minutes later by two explosions like gunfire. The weather was thick at the time.

"Neither the light nor the explosions can be accounted for."

The admiralty immediately ordered the officer in charge of the salvage operations to proceed to the point mentioned. This area was approximately the same as that mentioned previously by Capt. Howard, of the coastwise steamer Dyneside, who reported he had seen the M-2 descend stern first.

SEAS HALT SEARCH.

The Navy at first discounted the Howard statement, declaring it had already searched that area.

Today, however, salvage operations were abandoned over two objects located nearer Portland Bill, where rescuers had concentrated this morning. Rough weather prevented reaching the bottom.

Women Fined for Alfonso Messages

Madrid, Jan. 28 (AP)—Eighteen society women in Santander were fined from $40 to $400 today because they sent messages of congratulation to former King Alfonso on his Saints' Day last Saturday.

Wives Abandon Hope for Sub Victims as 'Zero Hour' Passes

Portland, Eng., Jan. 28 (AP)—Despair fell upon the wives and mothers of the men apparently lost with the submarine M-2, today as the hour passed when the experts figured that the air inside the sunken shell would be exhausted.

Since dawn the little group of women had been standing on one of the piers, ignoring the bitter wind, peering into the fog which hid the salvage vessels.

One of them had a wrist watch she glanced at from time to time. At 10:30, the last hour, she nodded to one of the other women. After that they looked at one another but seldom.

Police Take Tin Cap From Baby's Throat

A choking baby was saved from death today by two Swampscott patrolman after the cover of a salve jar became lodged in her throat.

The near victim was Kathleen Hatt, 11 months, daughter of Willard V. and Mrs. Kathlea Hatt of 1 Nichols st., in that town.

She was nearly unconscious in her crib when Patrolmen Frank Wall and George Horton responded to the frantic calls of the mother.

RAIL WAGE CUT DEADLOCKED

Chicago, Jan. 28 (AP)—Votes of railway labor dropped once more into the ballot boxes today with the hope a count would end a three-day deadlock on the $215,000,000 wage slice.

After yesterday's last tally was counted, David Brown Robertson, chief of the workers, announced that nearly all of the three-quarters of the 800 chairmen of 21 individual unions were ready to give their decisions.

They were sent back to try again and meet today with their 21 executives to inform them of their action, and Robertson expressed the hope the vote would be completed.

Robertson also indicated that labor might try for a new compromise agreement with a committee of rail executives who are here awaiting the workers' decision.

NEW BATTLE ON HYGIENE HEAD

A new hitch in the plans of the Civil Service Commission to give Boston a school director of hygiene developed today.

Commissioner Paul E. Tierney announced that on Tuesday next he would have a public hearing on a complaint that Dr. Warren S. Shields, third on the list in the recent competitive examination for the position, is a resident of Watertown.

The Supreme Court recently ruled against the claim of Dr. Edward F. Timmons that the commission had no legal right to conduct a competitive examination for the post.

Dr. Timmons is fourth on the list. Dr. James A. Keenan and Dr. Harry Goldman, both members of the city health department, are first and second respectively.

Dr. Shield's residence address is listed in the telephone book as Mt. Auburn st., Watertown, and his office address as East Brookline st., Boston.

Auto Crashes Into House at Mealtime

While the family of Nils Berquist of Carlton st., Lynn, were eating supper, last night, the dishes suddenly leaped several inches off the table.

Investigation disclosed that an automobile owned by Daniel S. Sullivan of Roy st., Swampscott, parked on Hawthorne st. hill, had rolled down the hill and plunged into the side of the Berquist home.

Marchioness of Dufferin Weds

London, Jan. 28 (AP)—The Marchioness of Dufferin and Ava, whose husband was killed in an airplane disaster in 1930, was married today at the Prince's Row register office to Capt. C. S. A. Somerset, son of Lord Henry Somerset.

SALEM SEER 'POISON PEN' SUSPECT

Believe Notes Sent Peabody Families Were Written by Petting Party "Spy"

A Salem clairvoyant who has a sideline of spying on petters is under suspicion, police disclosed today, in the sending of poison pen letters to prominent Peabody families, each of which demanded $1,000 as the price of silence.

He is believed to have come into possession of his information through visits of women clients as well as through preying on petting parties on wooded roads during the summer and fall.

SPIED ON "PETTERS"

For weeks the petter spy has been a mystery in the Peabody section. He was an elderly man who never demanded money but confronted all couples he found with a demand for their names and addresses, and proof that they were telling him the truth. They thought him a policeman.

Police are keeping are names of recipients of the letters and the contents secret, but it was learned that one letter, received by a wealthy husband, contained the charge:

"Your wife is going around with an old man."

While two Peabody police inspectors were dispatched to Salem to question a man, whose identity was being carefully shielded, aid of postal inspectors and Dist. Atty. Hugh A. Cregg of Essex County was enlisted.

Some of the letters were mailed, others were left at front doors. Those mailed were postmarked in Salem and postal inspectors will check the exact mailing points.

SLEUTHS SEEK SUSPECT

Consultation between Dist. Atty. Cregg and Police Chief Edward A. Pierce of Peabody is expected to lead to assignment of state detectives to run down clues. Police believe other families may be marked for poison pen attacks and will spare no effort to capture the offender.

Eleven letters, all, according to police, the work of the same person, are in the hands of police. They are all addressed to families living in Lowell st., in the exclusive section of Peabody and threaten prompt exposure of family skeletons unless $1000 is immediately paid for silence.

A handwriting expert declared the letters were written by a man of evident culture and education.

HOMES GUARDED

First revelation of a poison pen scare came late yesterday when members of the six families turned the letters over to police. Guards were placed over their homes. The letters were all posted in Salem. Six were mailed Sunday night, three follow-up letters were mailed Monday, and two more on Tuesday.

FIREMAN IS VICTIM IN CHURCH BLAZE

Two Priests, Three Other Men Rescued as Flames Sweep St. Francis of Assisi

Fire in the church and rectory of St. Francis of Assisi, East Cambridge, today brought death to a fireman, while two priests and three other persons were rescued.

The fire-fighting victim was William Foley of Ladder 2, who died in Cambridge Relief Hospital from smoke inhalation.

Rev. Teofilo Belli, Rev. Annunciata Bonaventure, Brother T. Angelino and Joseph Rossi were carried over ladders from the third floor of the building that houses the rectory, the East Cambridge branch of the public library and the East Cambridge police station.

Father Belli was rescued for a second time a few minutes later after he entered the church to recover chalices from the blazing altar, and was overcome by smoke.

TAKEN FROM PRISON CELL

Modestino DeVito, a parishioner who sought to aid Father Belli, was also assisted out of the church.

John Mahoney, 29, of Marcella st., East Cambridge, was taken from a smoke-filled police cell in the building, where he was waiting to go to court today.

The fire started in the church at the rear of the altar and had spread to such an extent that three alarms were sounded.

It was discovered by Sergt. William O'Dell and Patrolman John Walsh, on duty in the station.

They aroused the priests, but were unable to reach them by the stairway that led to their quarters.

SAVED OVER LADDERS

When the first apparatus arrived ladders were raised to the windows for the rescue and George Ryan, aid to Deputy Fire Chief Cutler R. Vose, went into the blazing church and saved several valuable statues.

The altar was badly damaged and threatened to collapse as firemen fought the blaze there.

In the library section of the building heavy damage was reported due to smoke and water.

Street car traffic in both directions was blocked on Cambridge st, by the apparatus. It is the main line between Lechmere and Harvard sq.

Fire Chief James M. Casey said he was unable to determine the exact cause of the fire, but said he did not believe it to have been incendiary. He estimated damage at $25,000.

The use of Trinity Methodist church at Third and Cambridge sts. was offered Father Belli by Rev. W. H. Duvall, its pastor.

ILLNESS HALTS JUDD TRIAL

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 28 (US)—Trial of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, charged with the trunk murder of her two closest girl friends, came to an abrupt halt here when two jurors reported ill with colds and were ordered to bed by Judge Howard C. Speakman.

The session ended just as the defense was completing an elaborate structure of psychopathic past and and insane influences of the baby-faced defendant and her ancestors for 100 years back.

The trial, now in its second week, hailed in the midst of loud poundings of Judge Speakman's gavel to restore order after an elderly woman fainted in the back of the courtroom.

Ambulance sirens screeched and the crowd milled in wild excitement as the jurors filed back to their quarters with orders to return to court this afternoon.

Harvard Library Holds Fifth Place

The Harvard University Library maintained its rank as fifth among the leading libraries of the world, by increasing its total of volumes to 3,000,000, it was learned at Cambridge, when the annual report of Robert P. Blake, director, was made public today.

During the past year the Harvard holdings were increased 193,000 volumes through gifts and donations.

Six Yale "Rioters" to Be Reinstated

New Haven, Ct., Jan. 28 (AP)—Six Yale freshmen, suspended as a result of a riot December 11, will be reinstated March 5, the Yale News said today.

Reinstatement was voted by the Yale freshmen committee yesterday, after the freshmen student council had presented pledges not to participate in further disturbances, signed by 90 per cent of the class.

STATE PROBES 2 MEDFORD FIRES

Two fires, in adjoining buildings, but nearly five hours apart, in the Medford sq. district of Medford early today, led to investigation by the State fire marshal's office.

According to Fire Chief Thomas A. Qualey of Medford, both fires were undoubtedly incendiary.

The first was in an unoccupied two-story frame building in the rear of 59 Riverside ave. Damage was $300.

Nearly five hours later Patrolman Frank A. Spellman discovered the adjoining two-story wooden building in the rear of 61 Riverside ave. to be burning.

He sounded an alarm from the same box, No. 13, in Medford sq., known as Medford's "danger box." This fire had gained such headway that the building, occupied by Peter K. Boscho of Woburn st., Medford, as a repair shop for woodworking machinery, was destroyed with a loss of $2500.

Both buildings were owned by Frederick E. Walker of Tappan st., Brookline, a director in the closed Industrial Bank & Trust Co., and recently indicted in connection with investigation of the bank's affairs.

JAPANESE MARINES TO ENTER SHANGHAI ON PATROL

ACTION DECIDED DESPITE CHINA 'SURRENDER'

Tokio's Ultimatum Accepted, but Admiral Shiosawa insists on Enforcement

Washington, Jan. 28 (INS)—The American government has asked Japan for a statement of Japanese policy and intention with regard to the partial occupation of Shanghai.

Secretary of State Stimson announced today an official inquiry has been directed at the Japanese foreign office.

Shanghai, Jan. 28 (INS)—Admiral Shiosawa, commanding Japanese naval forces here, issued a proclamation tonight declaring he was determined to send marines into the Chapei section of Shanghai, despite Chinese acceptance of the Japanese ultimatum.

This step, he said, was necessitated by Chinese military preparations and to protect Japanese citizens.

Admiral Shiosawa called upon the Chinese commanders to withdraw their troops to prevent hostilities and upon the Shanghai civilian authorities to prohibit all unnecessary meetings.

The Chinese mayor of Shanghai, Wu Te-Chen, accepted the demands unconditionally, agreeing to do all in his power to check the boycott of Japanese goods and to suppress anti-Japanese activities.

THREATS OF ATTACK.

Previously the Japanese commander in the international settlement had notified Gen. Fleming, British commander, of Japan's intention to invade Chinese territory before 7:30 a. m., Friday morning (6:30 p. m., Thursday, E. S. T.).

This, combined with extensive Japanese troop movements, including the landing of 1500 men from 13 newly arrived Japanese ships, indicated fighting might begin at dawn tomorrow.

Japanese activities centered around the Japanese headquarters in the northern part of the city where Chinese forces are thickest.

U. S. MARINES DIG IN

Meanwhile 1500 of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's special police arrived to preserve order among Cantonese, who started an orgy of looting west of the international settlement.

At 4 p. m. today a state of emergency was decreed to continue indefinitely, immediately after which foreign defense forces took their positions.

United States marines and British troops repaired earthworks of the international settlement and erected barbed wire entanglements.

The defense gates between the international settlement and the Chinese territory were left open so foreigners, including many Japanese outside the settlement, and members of Chinese refugees could get in.

One estimate placed the number of Chinese troops around the settlement at 24,000. Already, it was reported, they have started pillaging in the Chinese territory.

U. S. "Unduly Alarmed," Tokio Tells Stimson

Tokio, Jan. 28 (AP)—The United States Government today asked Tokio for information on just what steps Japan contemplated in dealing with the Shanghai situation.

Japan's reply was, the Japanese have no intention of aggravating the situation.

Secretary Stimson's note was in the form of an inquiry and, it was explained, could not be considered as a protest.

It pointed out that the United States has large commercial interests in Shanghai and, in view of conflicting reports of Japanese aims, would appreciate enlightenment in that direction.

It was stated authoritatively (but not in connection with Secretary Stimson's inquiry) that the United States appeared to view the situation under a misapprehension, for Japan contemplated no operations in the International Settlement against the anti-Japanese societies, which matter was being handled satisfactorily by the municipal authorities.

"The United States seems unduly alarmed," a foreign office spokesman said, commenting on newspaper dispatches. "We have only a handful of bluejackets in Shanghai. There is no reason why their presence should be considered alarming."

Another House in Quincy Ransacked

Another in a long series of thefts from Quincy homes was reported to police today. Eliof Nordling, of Andersen rd., said his home was ransacked during his absence and a $100 diamond ring and a Salvation Army "poor" box filled with coins stolen.

Entrance was gained by false keys.

2 Die of Cold in Paris

Paris, Jan. 28 (AP)—Two deaths were reported today as a result of a cold wave.

Editorial Comment On League of Nations Statement by Baker

Herewith is editorial comment of New York newspapers on Newton D. Baker's statement, in which he temporarily renounced the League of Nations as an issue in national politics. Mr. Baker has been one of the most conspicuous advocates of the league since its inception.

NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE (Republican)

BAKER RETURNS TO THE PICTURE

Mr. Baker takes great pains to remove from the minds of all who may be interested any impression that his nomination would hurry America into the league. He doesn't even want a league plank in the Democratic platform. The league should not be a partisan issue. "I would not take the United States into the league, if I had the power to do so, until there is an informed and convinced majority sentiment in favor of that action in the United States." These words—and the further declaration that any opinion he may have as to America's relationship to the league must be looked upon simply as that of a private citizen—were unmistakably uttered with the hope of relieving the speaker of the burden which advocacy of the league inevitably imposes upon any candidate for public office.

Mr. Baker's return to the picture will be widely welcomed. The pity is that he ever felt it necessary to handicap his candidacy with such a hopelessly unpractical and doomed issue as American entrance into the league.

NEW YORK EVENING SUN (Independent)

BAKER AND THE LEAGUE.

The statement of Newton D. Baker on American adherence to the League of Nations naturally raises the impression that he hopes to be nominated for President and wishes to throw off the handicap which any candidate favoring entrance into the league must carry. He speaks with apparent frankness, but he is not convincing when he tries to separate his opinion as a private citizen from his opinion as a public man.

If he, perhaps the most fervent advocate of the league in his party, were to be elected President, would not the league propagandists in this country hail the event as a signal for American adherence? And how is Mr. Baker to discover an "informed and convinced majority sentiment" for adherence unless the league is made an issue in a presidential campaign? In 1920 the Democratic platform described the league as "the surest, if not the only, practical means of maintaining the peace of the world."

The league was the paramount issue and the popular verdict was a majority of 7,000,000 votes against American adherence. No wonder Mr. Baker shies from a repetition of 1920, and yet it is impossible to think of him without thinking of his loyalty to the league or to think of him as President without fearing that the executive power would be used to put us into the league.

NEW YORK EVENING POST (Independent)

MR. BAKER IS BACK IN THE RING.

There are many New York Republicans this year to whom the Democratic presidential nomination is of as much if not more interest and concern than is the Republican nomination. This is due partly to the fact that they know Mr. Hoover's nomination to be conceded and partly to their half-determination to vote for a Democrat, should a strong man, strong on prohibition reform, be named.

Such Republicans have "viewed with alarm" the tendency to let the Democratic nomination go to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, in the default of running anyone against him. Their individual opposition to Governor Roosevelt is almost incredible.

Nearly all of them say that he is a weak and time-serving man, not big enough for the presidency either in mind or character. They would not follow Roosevelt out of their party. They would vote for Hoover.

Mr. Baker, in the estimation of the country, had half stepped out of the ring. While his strength as a possibility for the Democratic nomination had been blossoming into full bloom, he suddenly began making speeches for the League of Nations. He did it not only once but frequently—and pointedly. Over this there was first deep puzzlement and, then, quiet acceptance of his evident intention to kill his candidacy. For it was known that no sane politician was going to rush up and force the nomination of a man shooting off fireworks for so unpopular a thing as the league.

Mr. Baker has now lightened—as we will not say removed—that burden.

Yet there is politics in it. It is unmistakable. By his words he puts himself back into the ring and does so, too, after the manner of Roosevelt, his main opponent, has formally stepped into it. Mr. Baker's politics may be wise politics, permissible politics, but politics it is.

The cause will return to plague him. Extreme anti-leaguists will never accept a candidate for the presidency who is for the league and will do everything he can to co-operate with it and promo e it in the United States even if he does not want to join it right now. If Stimson, they will say, despite the country's veto, put an American at the League Council table at Geneva, what might not a confessed pro-league, like Baker do?

BAKER'S STAND EMBARRASSES ROOSEVELT

Former Secretary's Willingness to Scrap League Builds Hurdle for N. Y. Governor

By LOUIS SEIBOLD
Universal Service

New York, Jan. 27—The League of Nations (symbol for internationalism) is rapidly becoming unpopular with all American political parties.

Newton D. Baker's left-handed renunciation of the Wilson project as a presidential campaign issue is likely to cause embarrassment to all contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Mr. Baker's willingness to jettison the league in the coming campaign is naturally interpreted to mean that he is ready to accept the presidential nomination of his party by forgetting all about the "solemn referendum" of which he has been the most conspicuous advocate since its inception.

Democratic comment, both in New York and Washington, clearly reflects the impression that Baker will become an active contender for the Democratic presidential nomination under almost any conditions, the nominating convention may impose.

FORCES ROOSEVELT'S HAND

With this thought in mind, Democratic leaders express the opinion that Baker has erected a hurdle Gov. Roosevelt will now find difficult to negotiate.

Gov. Roosevelt, next to Mr. Baker, has been an ardent and consistent champion of internationalism ever since it was fostered by Woodrow Wilson.

Gov. Roosevelt has sedulously avoided any public statement regarding his present views of both the league and collateral affiliations of an international character. He declared the other day he did not propose to discuss national affairs until after adjournment of the state legislature.

If he adheres to this decision, no statement regarding his views on the international issues may be expected for at least two months. Meantime, he remains the only conspicuous candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination whose views on this most important topic will continue to be submerged in mystery.

IN TOUGH HOLE.

Leaders in both political parties appear to concur in the opinion that Mr. Baker has put Gov. Roosevelt in a tough hole by his declaration that the League of Nations should not be made an issue during the coming campaign. Gov. Roosevelt must copy Mr. Baker or stand by the league.

While the resentment of Roosevelt supporters against Baker for forcing the Governor's hand is not openly expressed, it is nevertheless deep rooted. The question in the minds of Roosevelt's managers is just how he should meet the situation provoked by the sudden and unexpected position taken by Baker.

Party interest now squarely revolves around four men who are regarded as willing to be drafted to head the national ticket in the coming presidential campaign. These are Gov. Roosevelt, Mr. Baker, Speaker Garner and Alfred E. Smith.

FARMERS FIGHT MODIFICATION

Washington, Jan. 28 - (INS)—Farmers are opposed to any modification of the prohibition laws that would legalize beer, Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange, told the Metcalf Senate committee today.

Appearing as the first of a scheduled parade of prohibitionists to refute assertions of the wets that the return of beer would restore prosperity to agriculture, Taber said:

"No nation in history has ever been able to drink itself prosperous. The opposition of farmers to modification of prohibition is founded on social, moral and economic grounds."

He criticized Senator Bingham (R.) of Connecticut for sponsoring an amendment to the Constitution to permit legalizing of beer.

"When men in high places attempt to nullify the Constitution we have a right to doubt their American patriotism and judicial wisdom," Taber asserted.

Hoover 'Goes American Too Late'

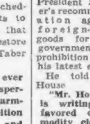
Washington, Jan. 28 (INS)—Rep. Loring M. Black (D), New York, chief "wise-cracker" of the House, chose President Hoover's recommendation against foreign-made goods for the government and prohibition for his latest effort.

He told the House

"Mr. Hoover is writing a favored commodity clause in the remnant of American economics. Like all converts, he is trumping the old reliables.



Rep. Black

"He is so American he makes big Bill Thompson look like a little stranger. So American has he become that it is almost painful.

"He follows Nordic immigration laws with a Verdun tariff and now sponsors a 'Buy Only American' crusade. But his new nationalism is still tolerant of foreign liquor.

"Scotch whiskey has an import preference. Irish whiskey still makes America safe for democracy. French wines are given the keys to the country if Mabel Willebrandt is not looking. Gold must not leave the country unless it buys foreign liquor.

"An American soldier cannot get an American bonus because, while he was saving Europe for American bankers to take, Bishop Cannon took away American taxes.

"While the soldier was fighting to keep democracy alive, democracy turned sour at home.

"American officials can attend exotically wet functions in foreign embassies, but the man in the street cannot step from the street to buy a glass of beer. What's nectar for the goose is noxious for the gander."

LEAGUE FIRMER AGAINST JAPS

Geneva, Jan. 28 (INS)—The situation at Shanghai today caused a decided stiffening in the attitude of the League of Nations Council toward Japan.

The draft of an announcement to be made by Joseph Paul-Boncour, president of the council, contained a strong warning to Japan to recognize Article X of the League covenant, which demands respect for all treaty obligations and cites the last note delivered to Japan by U. S. Secretary Stimson, calling upon Tokio to respect the treaty rights of the United States.

Tokio, Jan. 28 ((AP)—A tense situation in North Manchuria that menaced Soviet Russia's interests in the Chinese Eastern Railway was eased today.

Ting Chao, commander of the Chinese Eastern Railway guards, and Hsi Hsia, governor of Kirin Province, whose forces have battled around Harbin for two days, were brought together by Gen. Mah Chan-Shan to compose their differences.

A dispatch to Rengo News Agency said Ting Chao and Hsi Hsia had accepted peace terms

THE REST OF THE NEWS

BOMBER 10 YEARS

Rome, Jan. 28 (AP)—For 10 years the secret police have been looking for a man who has been sending bombs through the mails, and today they got him. He is Mario Silvio Merighi, accused of having sent bombs that hurt 38 persons.

POLICE SPARE THIEVES' LIVES

Rather than kill two boys who were riding about the streets in a stolen sedan last night, Sergt. James Lewis and Special Officers James McCann and Harry Demers of police headquarters allowed the boys to escape a trap the officers set on Harrison ave.

The officers fired several shots which struck the car and they think at least one of the youngsters may have been injured.

"I could easily have shot both boys through the head," said Sergt Lewis last night, "but I just couldn't do it. They are only kids and they didn't look like bad boys."

G. O. P. HITS AT NEW TARIFF

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—The Senate finance committee today voted an unfavorable report on a revised House Democratic tariff bill.

There was no roll call on the motion to send the bill to the Senate with an adverse report, but an earlier move to report it favorably resulted in tie, 39 to 10, with Senator LaFollette, (R.) Wis., joining the nine Democratic members in voting for it.

Before the bill can come up on the floor, Chairman Smoot must make his report and the bill be sent to the calendar to await its turn.

KIDNAP-KILLER HELD INSANE

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 28 (AP)—Charles Bischoff, eccentric cobbler and confessed kidnaper-slayer of Marian McLean, six, was declared insane today by three court-appointed alienists.

Judge C. S. Bell previously announced he would send Bischoff to Lima State Hospital for Criminal Insane if alienists found him of unsound mind.

The alienists studied Bischoff's case for 10 days.

Kidnaping of the McLean girl December 16 and "discovery" of her mutilated body five days later by Bischoff in the basement of his tenement aroused the city to the greatest manhunt in its history.

Then Bischoff confessed.

LEAGUE VOTES TO FREE IRAK

Geneva, Jan. 28 (AP)—With the approval of the British government, the council of the League of Nations approved in principle today the emancipation of Irak, conditional upon guarantees of economic, judicial, religious and racial equality for her people.

The council provided, also that freedom must be accompanied by the entrance of Irak into the League to guarantee her security.

The council's action was looked on as another advance in its experiment of conducting "undeveloped people" from childhood in the international family to full sovereign statehood.

The council also adopted a report providing for the establishment of a board of economic experts to which nations may submit economic disputes for settlement.

"De Luxe" Garbage Lighter Launched

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 28—A $132,000 naval vessel slid down the ways at the navy yard here today to become the "de Luxe" in naval garbage lighters. She bears the designation "YG-17."

reproduces artificially the flavor and odor of the vanilla bean, and a thousand others.

Would it not be possible to create, synthetically, such an odor as would attract one of both sexes of the animal to be destroyed? Could not this suggestion apply to harmful insects, moths and others? In every case the attracting odor would leave absolutely indifferent all but the particular creature for whom it was intended.

Standard Oil, General Motors, General Electric, Big Steel and other great chemical laboratories are invited to think about that.

At Miami, Car Wood yesterday drove his speed boat, Miss America X, to an average speed of more than 110 miles an hour, a world's water record.

Big steamships should and could go as fast as that and faster, crossing the ocean in 20 hours.

The problem is to lift the moving vehicle to the water's surface, so that it will skim along the top instead of ploughing through the depths.

Move your hand and arm in the water of a bathtub up to the elbow, as fast as you can. Then raise the arm and skim through the air with only the finger tip touching the water. You will see the difference between the old and the future method of water transportation. The resistance of the water is 800 times that of the air.

GOES TO JAIL ON DISORDERLY CHARGE

Defense That He Was Busy Tending His Fires Fails to Impress Court

Worcester, Jan. 28—Arthur C. Byman got a bit mixed up in court today and came out of the embarrassing tangle with two sentences of three months each in jail, to be served concurrently.

Byman, who is 40 and from Auburn, was arrested three weeks ago charged with practicing medicine, although the only license he holds is one permitting him to nurture fires as a steam engineer.

He declared in court then that he hung out the M. D. shingle because he was out of work—and you know what times are. He got a three months' suspended sentence then.

Early today he was arrested on a disorderly conduct charge involving Bessie Scudder, 45, in Auburn, but this time Byman's defence was that he has dheen so busy tending his fires for long hours in a West Side factory, where he had had a job for two years, to pay much attention to Miss Scudder.

The two things didn't meld at all, so far as the District Court could see it.

Miss Scudder, also arraigned as disorderly, was placed on probation.

When Byman was arrested today, according to police, a hypodermic needle and some morphine were found in his possession. Now a narcotic charge will be placed against him.

WOODER SLAYER PALLID AS HE FACES BAR

Society Youth Held for Killing Sister's Fiance, Answers the Judge's Questions

Norristown, Pa., Jan. 28 (INS)—A slight youth whose face seemed all big brown eyes stood up in court of Oyer and Terminer this morning and declared he was ready to have his case go before the grand jury.

Edward H. B. Allen, 23, society youth who is charged with the murder of his sister's sweetheart, Francis A. Donaldson, 32, so came before the bar of judgment.

Pale, his formerly lithe young body worn away to skin and bones, Allen's voice trembled as he made the routine answers to the court's questions. There was a childish note in his voice, though, a note that served to corroborate the helplessness of his appearance.

"Prisoner, do you understand this procedure?" asked Judge Harold G. Knight.

"Yes, I do."

"Are you represented by counsel?"

"Yes, I am."

The judge then indicated Fletcher W. Stiles and William T. Connor, who sat beside the prisoner.

Young Allen reminded the court that John R. K. Scott, who will not appear at the counsel table during the trial, still is one of his lawyers. Scott is said to have withdrawn active participation in the defense because the story of the brother's avenging his sister's honor has been dropped from the case.

Then he sat down, his fingers curled in his palms and his whole body atremble. The strain of those few words, later three months in the Montgomery County jail, seemed to tell on him.

He looked neither to right nor left. He did not see his father, the worn Horace Allen, who sat in the spectators' section, accompanied by his faithful friend, Henry G. Peace.

Rose Allen, the sister who is said to have determined to testify for the commonwealth against her brother, was not present.

But, after the grand jury had retired, Ross arrived. She did not attempt to see her brother, but went directly to the district attorney's office, where she was guarded from questioning. She seemed composed, but is very thin.

It is not certain she will be called before the grand jury, but she is ready to tell her story if so.

Suicide Doctor

Dr. Clamor H. Magna, young superintendent of Kings County Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., who ended his life in Portsmouth, N. H., hotel. He first slashed his wrists, then turned on the gas, and completed his act by firing a bullet through his head.

BODY OF DOCTOR IS SENT HOME

Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 28 (INS)—The body of Dr. Claymore H. Magna, Jr., superintendent of the Kings County Hospital, New York, who committed suicide in a hotel room here, was sent back to New York by train today.

Dr. Magna, who was 37 years old, had been missing from New York since Monday.

BISHOP DAVIES ON SICKBED

Springfield, Jan. 28 (AP)—Rt. Rev. Thomas F. Davies, Episcopal bishop of Western Massachusetts, has been obliged to cancel all engagements for the next few weeks, it was announced today.

He is suffering from the effects of a recent heart attack, and his physician has ordered a complete rest. The announcement means that he will forego a long list of confirmation appointments that would have resulted in severe strain.

He is said to be resting comfortably, though confined to bed.

$125,000 FIRE IN BALTIMORE

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 28 (US)—Flames, fanned by a 30-mile wind, consumed the Albemarle st. yards and buildings of Henry P. Duker Lumber Co., caught on two other lumber yards, the big Pennsylvania R. R. terminal and two dwellings and threatened the heavily populated district.

Eleven alarms brought four fireboats and 60 pieces of apparatus, manned by more than 400 men.

Before the fire was brought under control seven persons, including two civilians, were hurt. Five firemen were injured.

COURT POWERS CUT IN BILL

Washington, Jan. 28 (US)—Drastic limitation of federal courts' powers to issue injunctions in labor disputes is provided in a bill approved by the Senate judiciary committee.

The bill which Senator Norris (R.), of Nebraska, chairman, announced would be called up shortly in the Senate for a vote, grew out of the famous injunction issued during the 1922 shopmen's strike by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago.

Wilkerson's promotion by President Hoover to the circuit court of appeals is now before the Senate, and the committee's decision today is accepted as reflecting members' attitude toward his nomination.

Yellow dog contracts specifically are barred by the bill. The bill also strikes a blow at contempt proceedings involving newspapers. Powers of federal judges to punish for contempt without a jury trial would be restricted sharply to cases arising in the courtroom.

'Twas Dentist Who Said 'Ouch!' After This Extraction

When Robert E. Lewis, 19, called on Dr. David Porter, Washington st. dentist, it was an extraction party all around, according to police.

Lewis asked the dentist to pull out six teeth and Dr. Porter complied, not knowing that the teeth were the price that his visitor was willing to pay for the $30 which he was about to defraud him.

Payment was made by a bad check, according to police charges, with Lewis posing as the nephew of a prominent Boston lawyer. At other places he is alleged to have posed as a banker's chauffeur, and 50 suspected victims will try to identify him tomorrow.

HURLEY FIGHTS CONSOLIDATION

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—Secretary Hurley said today that consolidation of the War and Navy Departments would neither add to efficiency nor favor economy of operation in either department.

Hurley testified ona proposal endorsed by House Democratic leaders, including Speaker Garner and Chairman Byrns, of the appropriations committee.

"The Army and Navy already are under a single command, the President," Hurley told the House Committee.

"To obtain unity of command in the new organization you would create a more to-heavy organization than you now have.

"You would put the new secretary of national defense in the approximate position the President now has in regard to both departments."

FAMILY PUT ON AUCTION BLOCK

East Orange, N. J., Jan. 28—A 23-year-old wife, weighing 197 pounds and 5 feet in height, and three children, ranging in age from 2 to 5 years, have been offered for sale by Fred Sommerkorn, a night watchman out of work, to "save us all from starvation."

He said his 2-year-old son, "destined for the presidency," should bring $200. He asked another $200 for his wife, arguing that she was easily worth it to "anyone with a taste for artistic scenery."

East Orange police failed to take his proposed family auction block seriously. They pointed out that Sommerkorn was an inveterate letter writer, having recently addressed a long one to Mahatma Gandhi.

2 Manuscripts Lost for 700 Years Bring $78,000 at Sale

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—Some 700 years ago the sturdy sheriffs of the city of Lincoln, in England, came into possession of two manuscripts on vellum. The script was Latin or Anglo-Saxon, strange and unintelligible, and for three centuries the smooth pages were used to chronicle nominations, elections and other political events of the day.

Last night those two volumes fetched $78,000 at a rare book auction in the American Art Association Anderson Galleries.

One was the eighth century Lincoln psalter, which brought $23,000; the other was the "Incomparable" Anglo-Saxon manuscript of the Blickling Homolies, which brought $55,000.

2 JURORS OUT IN 'HONOR' CASE

Honolulu, Jan. 28 (US)—Two members of the grand jury which brought in the indictments charging Mrs. Grace Hubbard Fortescue, Lieut. Thomas Massie and two navy enlisted men with second degree murder in the "honor slaying" of Joseph Kahahawai, on Jan. 8, have resigned.

The resignation of Robert Bulkley was accepted, but that of Arthur Wall was refused, Judge Cristy dismissing him peremptory.

Subpoenas were issued last night for all members of the present grand jury requiring them to appear at a hearing tomorrow.

BAY RUM HIT AS YOUTHS' DRINK

Boys and girls are drinking bay rum and other preparations containing a large percentage of alcohol, ex-Rep. Coleman F. Kelly of Boston asserted today at a public health committee hearing on his bill to prohibit the sale of patent medicines and other fluids containing fors than 6 per cent alcohol, except on prescription.

"Some of these liquids are obtainable in small amounts at low prices, although one chain store owner donated $500,000 to the Anti-Saloon League," he said.

Kelly also read a clipping from the Boston Evening American quoting Capt. John M. Anderson of the Boston police as saying that 75 per cent of the drinkers were imbibing bay rum.

Appearing in opposition was Joseph M. Sisson, president of the Massachusetts Pharmaceutical Association, who said passage of the measure would be a detriment to the public and all concerned.

WRIGLEY RITES IN 3 CITIES

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 28 (US)—The body of William Wrigley, Jr., who died in Phoenix, Ariz., arrived in Pasadena today to be taken to the Wrigley orange grove avenue home for private funeral services this afternoon.

The services will be conducted by Dr. Leslie E. Learned, rector of All Saints' Church in Pasadena, and will be of the simplest nature.

At the same hour, memorial services will be held in the Casino on Catalina Island, one of Wrigley's last enterprises on the island, and in Chicago similar services will be held. All activity will cease on Catalina for the hour of the observance.

Wrigley's body is to be placed in a temporary vault in Pasadena, pending final decision on the location of the Catalina Island mausoleum, which is to be his last resting place.

Key in Vest Pocket Turns Wild Bullet

New York, Jan. 28 (US)—Frank J. West's habit of carrying a key in his vest pocket saved his life. The key deflected one of five bullets fired wildly by a demented neighbor, Theodore Moeller, 40, who used the last bullet to take his own life.

BANKER WEDS AT HEIGHTS

Miss Margaret T. Healey, daughter of Mrs. Allen Healey of Southern st., Brookline, today became the bride oh Thomas W. Green of Tremont st., Roxbury, vice-president of the Everett National Bank. The ceremony took place in Boston College chapel, Newton.

The bride's sister, Miss Mary Healey, was maid of honor, and another sister, Miss Katherine Healey, was one of the bridesmaids. A third attendant was Miss Katherine Green, a sister of the bridegroom.

James Wall of New York was best man and the bride was given by William Healey, her brother. The ushers were John Healey of Malden, William Green of Roxbury, brothers of the bride and bridegroom, William B. Carolin of Newton and Frank Tracy of Woburn.

Rev. Fr. William Green, C. S. S. R., of New York, a brother of the bridegroom officiated.

Following the wedding a reception for 150 was given at the Commonwealth Country Club. The couple will leave for the West Indies Saturday and will be at home from the end of next month at the Hotel Continental, Cambridge.

TOLD OF AKRON "FAULT," FIRED

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—The head of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Company today told the House naval committe that one of two men who charged the airship Akron was defective was discharged "for stealing Government drawings."

Paul W. Litchfield, president of the concern, made the statement in answering an accusation that two men had been discharged because they said there was faulty material and workmanship in the airship.

E. C. Davidson, secretary of the International Association of Machinists, yesterday said W. B. Underwood of Tennessee and E. C. McDonald of Washington, D. C., were the men laid off.

"We never knew who those two men were until yesterday, and I didn't know they had been discharged," Litchfield testified.

"Underwood was discharged June 10, 1931, when he was found taking a government drawing on a naval vessel out of the ship. We thought that was sufficient ground for the discharge of any man."

Comdr. Ralph D. Weyerbacher, one of the naval officers who investigated the alleged defects, said the navy's investigators found very few defects in the Akron. Those to which Underwood directed attention, Weyerbacher added, had been "changed in an ordinary routine manner and would have occurred in any similar construction."

ALL-AMERICAN STAR OUSTED

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—Frank lin V. Brodil, once a star athlete at Columbia University, was expelled from membership in the New York Stock Exchange today.

The exchange authorities acted under that section of the constitution which deals with "conduct inconsistent with just and equitable principles of trade."

Brodil had been a partner of the firm of E. C. Rollins & Co. That firm dissolved voluntarily last December, but he had retained his exchange membership.

Brodil was listed as an all-American football center 16 years ago when he starred at Columbia. In 1923 he was captain and stroke of the university's varsity crew and in 1923 and 1924 he was an assistant football coach.

The substance of the charge against Brodil was that while acting as a specialist in a certain stock he purchased stock to his own personal account at the same price at which he had unexecuted orders on his books which had been entrusted to him for execution for others.

Under the rules of the exchange a specialist must give prior consideration to orders entrusted to him by others before trading for his own account.

GARNER AIDS IN TAX HUNT FOR A BILLION

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—The question of how to increase taxes to bring in $1,000,000,000 in revenue was discussed today by the 15 Democratic members of the House ways and means committee and Speaker Garner.

With hearings suspended until Tuesday, the committee plans early executive sessions to outline at least a part of the program. The closed meeting of the Democratic members was to prepare a general policy to guide them in formulating the legislation.

The meeting was in the office of Rep. Crisp of Georgia, ranking Democrat on the committee. It is the first held by the group since it took under consideration the administration's tax increase program.

While it appears certain the committee will recommend an increase in inheritance, income and surtaxes, and the levying of a gift tax, the group has not yet decided on several new sources of revenue.

They have under consideration an excise tax on petroleum imports to bring about $102,000,000 annually; a levy of 10 per cent on electrical energy and household gas, and the imposition of a tax on gasoline, motor buses and trucks, radios, automobiles, cosmetics and admissions.

However, the committee has indicated through its cross-examination of witnesses that it does not favor nuisance taxes or lowering the exemption on income taxes as recommended by the Treasury.

Leaders generally agree the committee will not have the bill ready before February 15.

Mrs. Long Determined to Keep Up With Senator's Wives

New Orleans, Jan. 28 (INS)—Mrs. Huey Long may be "just a country girl" but she's going to keep up with the wives of other senators, she declared today.

Returning from Washington, where she saw her husband sworn in as Louisiana's junior senator, Mrs. Long said she thought she would like living in Washington.

"Most of the wives of senators I met were dressed in the last word of fashion," she declared. "As a country girl I'll have to go some to keep up with them, but I can't let Louisiana's senator's wife lag behind on fashion or style."

Kin of Paul Revere Laid to Rest in N. H.

Mrs. Emma Boylston Locke, widow of Edwin F. Locke and a great-grandniece of Paul Revere, was buried at her native place, Amherst, N. H., following her death at her home, 39 Brooks st., West Medford.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth Hutchins of West Medford, Mrs. Philip S. Avery of Wellesley Hills, a son, Howard R. Locke, of Amherst, N. H., and eight grandchildren.

Pay Cut Looms for School Employes

Although the Woburn school committee has reduced its budget $17,708 from last year's expenditure, Mayor Alfred W. Peterson notified least $16,000 more if necessary to reduce salaries. The budget as submitted by the school board is $310,954.

HAMMOND IS TO AID IN BANK REOPENING

Gloucester, Jan. 28—Headed by John Hays Hammond, Jr., scientist and inventor, a group of wealthy Gloucester residents have presented a plan to reorganize and reopen the Gloucester National Bank, closed, with deposits of $1,750,000, since Dec. 15.

The plan provides for incorporation of a new bank and a guarantee that all the depositors in the old bank will receive every dollar tied up in the institution.

ADMIT NEGOTIATIONS

In the group associated with Hammond are Col. John W. Prentiss, Mrs. Margaret Brady Farrell and a number of wealthy summer residents of Gloucester.

Officials of the bank, through the president, Thomas J. Carroll, admitted an important deal is about to be consummated, but declined to reveal the details.

CONFER IN CAPITAL

At the Hammond laboratory here it was stated that Hammond has been in Washington, that various officials have been to see him, and that no decision has yet been made, so far as is known.

From other sources it was learned that Hammond offered his support in any reasonable plan for saving the bank.

SATURDAY PAY DAY IN LOWELL

Lowell, Jan. 28—Mayor Charles H. Slowey announced the city employes will receive pay checks Saturday night, the first since Nov. 8.

Mayor Slowey said the city had collected sufficient revenue to give the school teachers, who have been unpaid since Nov. 6, one-half their December salaries, which were due Jan. 8. Other municipal employes, who last were paid Jan. 7, also will receive a part of the wages due them.

DEATH LOSES ITS LURE

Dying Youth Regrets Suicide Attempt

Tuscaloosa, Jan. 28 (US)—After shooting himself to discover the mysteries after death, Charles E. Butts, 25, University of Alabama student, apparently lost his taste for knowledge today and pleaded with surgeons to save his life.

Attendants said Butts' chances of recovery were about one in 20.

Just before he shot himself, he wrote to a chum:

"Very interesting future is ahead. I cannot wait any longer. Will meet you in the fourth millenium, old timer."

Industrial Parley at Statler on Feb. 2

BLAZE SWEEPS VACANT HOME

Fire of mysterious origin swept the 2½-story wooden dwelling of Dr. Walter F. Winchester at 18 Englewood ave., Brookline, early today, causing an estimated loss of $15,000. Apparatus responded from Newton.

Traffic along Beacon st. was rerouted while firemen fought the blaze.

Dr. Winchester and his family are in Florida and the house was unoccupied. Patrolman Cornelius F. O'Connor noticed flames bursting from a second-story window.

Wizard Steinmetz's Dream Realized

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL

New York, Jan. 28 (US)—The same refrigerating apparatus can keep a house warm in winter and cold in summer.

This was a dream of the late Charles P. Steinmetz, noted engineer and physicist of the General Electric Co., and now it can be realized, according to A. R. Stevenson, Jr., F. H. Faust and E. W. Roessler, research engineers of the laboratories of which Steinmetz was once guiding genius.

Stevenson will outline how a dual weather conditioning system can be constructed before the current meeting of the American Society of Refrigerating Engineers at Cleveland, Ohio.

His main contention is that an ordinary refrigerator can serve as a refrigerator for the whole house or apartment.

Crane's Body Shipped Home

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 28—The body of Charles K. Crane is en route to Dalton, Mass., his former home, for interment. He died Saturday.

CHECK ON VETS TO BE OPPOSED

Brockton, Jan. 28—A move on the part of city officials to check up on war veterans in the employ of the city who are receiving compensation from the government is going to be fought by the Legion, V. F. W. and U. S. W. V., according to statements by heads of local units of those organizations.

It is the idea of the city investigation to determine now many veterans are on full-time jobs in city departments while they are receiving government checks.

The three organizations combined today in issuing a statement to the effect that it was no concern of city officials how much veterans are receiving from the government, and announced that they would not give such information and that it could not be secured from government agencies.

DOUBLE DEAL IN JOBS CHARGED

Mrs. Esther M. Andrews, of the executive council, charged Councilors Eugene B. Fraser and Walter E. Schuster with "double dealing" after the council confirmed the appointment of Miss Mary Meehan of Brighton as assistant commissioner of labor by a vote of 5 to 2.

Mrs. Andrews and Councilor George D. Chamberlain of Springfield voted against Miss Meehan, although before the meeting it was predicted that Miss Meehan would fall of confirmation and that Mrs. Andrews would win her fight to keep Miss Ethel Johnson on the job.

Mrs. Andrews upbraided Schuster and Fraser for voting for Miss Meehan's confirmation, and made the assertions that she believed they had been guilty of treachery, double-dealing and trading in the matter of appointments.

During the council meeting, Mrs. Andrews also challenged Lieut.-Governor Youngman for his failure to vote on the question of confirmation, despite the fact that Governor Ely put Youngman in the chair, where he was forbidden from voting.

"Old Sinner" Out With a New List

Montreal (AP)—Prof. Rene Du Roure of McGill University, who calls himself "old sinner," considers clergymen's seven cardinal sins too good. So he has compiled his own. They are:

Stupidity, ugliness, moral turpitude, cowardice, meanness, hypocrisy and pessimism. He considers pessimism the worst.

Officer Gets Free Car

Lieut. W. W. Benson, of the marine barracks, Boston Navy Yard, was announced as today's winner of an automobile, awarded in the daily national radio competition by the manufacturers of Cremo cigars.

Teachers' Pay Cut

Cleveland, O., Jan. 26 (US)—To prevent the closing of public schools at Euclid Village, near here, all teachers were cut 10 per cent in salary, with other reductions requested voluntarily.

France "Fearful" of German Supremacy

Paris, Jan. 28 (AP)—France is determined to pursue negotiations with Great Britain on the reparations problem and wants to live up to the letter of the communique issued at Washington after the Hoover-Laval conferences, it was stated today.

French officials said they believed that to absolve Germany completely from all future reparations would be unfair to both the United States and France because it would end in a German world supremacy inimical to both countries.

State Lottery Bill Hearing Called Off

Hearing on the bill to establish a state lottery was postponed indefinitely today when Senator Erland F. Fish, chairman of the committee on taxation, to which it had been assigned, asked that the committee be discharged from considering it.

The Legislature is expected to approve his request and assign it to the legal affairs committee for hearing.

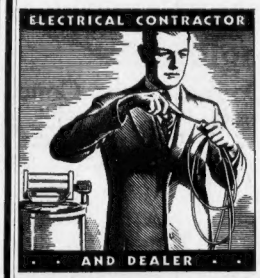
WHAT STORY DO your hands tell?

Turn up your palms a minute. Look at them . . . There's a story written in your hands, the story of how you live, of what you do, of how you work.

Are your hands soft and smooth as a woman's hands are meant to be—or, are they hard, rough and discolored as they do not need to be? Much of the work around the home, your hands perform, can be done far better, far more easily, far more swiftly—by electricity.

Electricity will wash for you, iron for you, cook for you, clean for you, heat water, and preserve your food just as readily as it lights your rooms.

A little planning on your part . . . will make your home ALL ELECTRIC. Wouldn't it be a good idea to start such a program now?



WHAT IS AN ALL ELECTRIC HOME?

An ALL ELECTRIC home is one equipped with electric range, water heater, refrigerator, washer, ironer, vacuum cleaner and such small appliances as the electric toaster, percolator, waffle iron, sandwich toaster, egg cooker, curling iron, hand iron, and heating pad.

One by one, you can acquire these appliances. Why not start today to make your home a modern ALL ELECTRIC home?

KNOW YOUR ELECTRICAL CONTRACTOR AND DEALER

Your own local electrical dealer is "electrical headquarters" for your neighborhood. He carries a complete stock of standard electrical merchandise and offers you a good variety at standard prices. If he does wiring, his work will be thorough and modern, done by skilled, licensed electricians.

YOU'LL FIND ELECTRICAL EQUIPMENT IN YOUR HARDWARE STORE

One of the old reliable American institutions is the local hardware store. People depend upon it for everything from thumb tacks to lawn mowers.

It is more than likely, too, that your local hardware store carries electrical equipment, such as washers, vacuum cleaners, and refrigerators.

LIGHT FINES AND BEER NEW MOTTO OF ENFORCERS

By GILBERT SELDES

THE DISTINCTION BETWEEN moderate drys and moderate wets is rapidly disappearing; at the moment of writing it lies in a single letter. The wets want beer and light wines; the drys, light fines and beer. A few typographical errors and the problem of prohibition will be solved, and all we will have to consider is the difference in method between the enforcers of New York City and of Youngstown, Ohio. In the smaller city, a few days ago, "police drove nearly 150 patrons out of nine suspected speakeasies with tear gas bombs in an effort to close the resorts." Ohioans like their liquor and stay with it, one gathers. In New York the raiders began by smashing furniture and statuettes, and have ended by dismantling houses and putting the bars and their decorations into storage. The West (as Pittsburghers call Ohio) was always made of sterner stuff than the East. The West, more or less incidentally, was not supposed to have speakeasies, and it is interesting to learn that they not only exist but play to an average of fifteen patrons at any given time.

GILBERT SELDES

Practically Saloons

The hatcheting of half a dozen speakeasies in New York was considered a blow at the carriage trade. It is quite true that speakeasies have flourished to such a point that some of them were practically indistinguishable from restaurants, with lots of modern furniture (most of it not good modern) and Cupids or Venuses holding electric light bulbs, and high stools and good food. These, the experts say, are to be no more; the speakeasy is going to run on a smaller permanent investment—it will become as simple as the old-time saloon. I predict that the price of liquor will not go down.

Many Allegations

I met the alleged proprietor of an alleged speakeasy a few days ago and he seemed not too happy. In the first place, the closing of other alleged speakeasies had caused an influx of patrons, and he did not want to admit them. For some mysterious reason he did not want to operate openly and flagrantly. He liked a quiet life, and the people who insisted on ringing his doorbell gave him pain. Moreover, I think he felt his time was coming. He had been in business nine years and had never had trouble with the police. (Maybe he wasn't a speakeasyman, after all.) He listened while a friend of mine told the story of a night-club owner who had paid $1000 weekly for protection (to alleged officers of local, State or national law) and who resisted all efforts to raise the fee to $2000 a week. Finally he said he couldn't afford $2000; he didn't make $2000 out of selling half pints; and he offered to turn over the liquor concession to the alleged officers. The offer was accepted.

No Fixed Price

The putative speakeasy proprietor laughed in scorn at this story. Not at the point of it, but at the details. He had never, he said, been compelled to pay a fixed sum for his (possible) violations. He had merely paid and paid as the spirit and the business moved him. When I asked him whether a thousand a week was high, low or medium for protection, he evaded my question. But he insisted that any fixed sum per week was not the usual thing.

As for the raided speakeasies, he assured us that they had been asking for it. They had been too open; they had been warned and persisted in their evil ways. He did not think that speakeasies for the rich would cease to exist; he was pretty sure that fines of $50 for the bartenders (and kind words for the backers) would not put an end to drinking. All he wanted was to keep out of trouble himself and he wished clients of other places wouldn't annoy him. But he was worried. So much so that he offered to change jobs with me. I had to refuse, because he seemed to know far more about the qualities of Scotch than I do.

Jiggs and Maggie

The 20th anniversary of the marriage of Jiggs and Maggie has just been celebrated. It was at the time of their 10th anniversary that the comic strip was beginning to be "discovered" (as the always belittlin' phrase has it), and Bringing Up Father and Krazy Kat were, I believe, the first to be seriously considered by the critics. They are, of course, representatives of the two extremes of the comic strip, Krazy being entirely fantastic, Jiggs realistic. Being curious about my own past, I turned up the page I had written about Bringing Up Father in 1924 and found that I had devoted most of it to quoting from and disagreeing with another critic.

Social History

Mr. Harold E. Stearns, before he shook the dust of this country from his heels, had written that Bringing Up Father would "repay the social historian" for all the attention he gives it. And he added that this strip "symbolizes better than most of us appreciate the normal relation of American men and women to cultural and intellectual values. Its very grotesqueness and vulgarity are revealing." And what I wanted to know then, and am still anxious to discover from the social historians, is whether Jiggs is vulgar because he prefers Dinty's cafe to a Swami's lecture, or Mrs. Jiggs is vulgar for preferring a piano recital to corn-beef and cabbage.

Hard-Hearted Jiggs

For the anniversary drawing George McManus showed the Jiggs home overflowing with gifts of china; showed Jiggs trying to remove a stack of plates from the bed because he didn't want to sleep in a soup plate; showed the crash which inevitably followed and Maggie pitching whole dinner sets at Jiggs, who, hiding behind a chair, begs her, "Please save a cup fer coffee in the morning." The touch of humor at the end is what the social historian misses. What he sees and is quite right in emphasizing, is that Jiggs and Maggie are real characters. They haven't changed much in 30 years, except that they have grown wealthy; they stick to their guns. Maggie still curries favor with the right people; but when someone at the anniversary banquet says to Jiggs, "I suppose you'd like to live it all over again," he only answers, "Now, who gave you a thought like that?"

Real Characters

Compare Bringing Up Father with the sentimental magazine story on one hand and the soap novel of domestic discord on the other, and you will see the source of Jiggs' popularity. People used to protest against the violence of the comic strip just as they complained of the flying custard pies in the Keystone comics; they were the very people who would chatter for hours about "symbols" in poetry and fiction and grand opera. The violence of the comic strip is exactly right, because it exactly expresses the emotions of the characters—and they are characters who do not conceal their emotions, but act on them. That is one of the reasons we love them. And it is also notable that the comic strip has given us heroes, as the dime novel did, and as the movie, since it forgot the Keystoners, has not.

Medal and Monthly Pension for Widow

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 28—A bronze medal and death benefits of $70 a month have been given by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission to the widow of Nicola Campanale of 632 Franklin st., Worcester, Mass.

Campanale, 43, a laborer, received fatal injuries July 4, 1931, when he entered a burning house to rescue children he believed were inside.

Boston Soldier Freed in Death

Burlington, Vt., Jan. 28—Angus Allen of Boston was acquitted of responsibility for the death of Pte. Fred A. Smith of Bangor, Me., who was accidentally shot and killed when he refused to give Allen a cigarette. The two soldiers were chums.

In a joking way, Allen pointed his revolver at Smith, not knowing the gun was loaded, when he asked for a cigarette after lunch.

DOG TAKES A LONG HIKE

A little brown and white cocker spaniel named "Brownie" is believed to be plodding from Springfield to his former home in Memorial Drive, Cambridge.

The dog is owned by Mrs. Florence Ewing, of Springfield. She received it from her mother, Mrs. Mary W. Bulkeley, of 987 Memorial Drive, Cambridge, who owned the animal for some time.

"Brownie" was missed several days ago and when he did not return, the Animal Rescue League of Boston was asked to be on the watch for him. His owner thinks that the dog is on its way to Cambridge.

Aged Dartmouth Graduate Dies

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 28—Dr. Solon R. Towne, 85, one of the leading ornithologists in the Middle West, and for years prominent in public health work is dead at his home here.

Bigger Fire Force Urged for Waltham

The establishment of two new fire engine companies in Waltham is recommended in a report by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

The report also urged that the manual strength of Engine Companies 1 and 2 and Ladder 1 be increased to provide each with a minimum of five men at all times. The inspectors reported the department is under-drilled and recommended the establishment of a drill tower.

Manslaughter Is Verdict of Jury

Providence, Jan. 28—Frederick S. McMillan was found guilty on a charge of manslaughter by a Superior Court jury in connection with the killing of Frederick E. Christians of Cranston in his home last June.

McMillan, who lived with Christians, killed the man with a hammer during a dispute originating between Mrs. Christians and his brother, John McMillan, concerning the use of an auto truck, the state charged.

MRS. WHITNEY NABS AND TIES UP FUGITIVE

Upperville, Va., Jan. 28 (INS)—Mrs. John Hay Whitney has ridden to hounds many times, chasing the elusive fox. Now she has personally conducted a man hunt over the wooded hills of her Virginia estate.

Today there languishes behind the bars of Loudoun County jail one Ernest Grayson, a Negro, employed as a domestic on the Whitney estate, until Mrs. Whitney mounted a horse and rode him to cover.

Questioned about theft of a purse containing $90, the Negro fled from the manor house, heading for the Blue Ridge mountains that fringe the estate.

A horse was saddled for Mrs. Whitney, who, accompanied by two grooms, led the chase. She took stiff barriers to head off the fugitive, caught up with him, and trussed him with a rope while the grooms held the man's arms and legs.

It was near here that Mrs. Spencer Ilsley, wealthy sportswoman, and her maid were murdered. Two Negroes have been sought for that crime, but never apprehended. Mrs. Ilsley was a friend of the Whitneys.

Aged Recluse Dead

Philadelphia, Jan. 28 (US)—Frederic Seckel Pepper, Jr., 79, a recluse and cousin of former U. S. Senator George Wharton Pepper, was dead here today.

WIFE WHO "HAS NEVER LIED" RAPS RIVAL

A story that her husband wouldn't go on picnics with her unless "the other woman" was along was told in Middlesex court today by Mrs. Minnie F. McIntyre, 54, married 28 years ago to Fred E. McIntyre, Worcester engineer.

In her suit for divorce, Mrs. McIntyre named a "Mrs. Foloney" formerly of Somerville and now of Shrewsbury.

She also told of McIntyre "tipteeing" from the McIntyre home in Russell rd., Somerville, to the nearby home of Mrs. Foloney while she sat in the darkness of the piazza to watch.

"Soon after I met Mrs. Foloney at Broadway and Russell rd., and hit her over the head with an umbrella," Mrs. McIntyre continued.

"After she moved to Shrewsbury, I listened through a tube and heard her and my husband talking about the kind of wine that was at Mrs. Foloney's wedding."

Mrs. McIntyre charged a number of alleged intimacies including a raid she led with two detectives and a policeman on an apartment Mrs. Foloney occupied in Commonwealth ave., Brighton.

Asked if she ever told a lie, Mrs. McIntyre notly retorted:

"I never told a lie in my life."

Mrs. Emma A. Libby of Wakefield, mother of three daughters by her first marriage, charged her second husband, Samuel A. Libby, with cruelty in her petition for divorce. Both have been married twice. Libby did not contest.

CONVICT HID IN PRISON

Concord, N. H., Jan. 28—Desire to help his mother, reported in need, led Leroy W. Trueblood, 27, convicted forger, to attempt escape from State prison, he told officials today following his surrender at the prison last night 48 hours after he disappeared.

He admitted he had planned to escape for over a week and had made a secret hiding place in the cellar of the main building of the prison shops and had cached sandwiches and water, stolen from the prison kitchen, there. He planned to remain there for some time, he said, and then attempt escape from the prison proper.

He told officials he would not have given himself up but for a conversation he overheard between two guards. They were discussing Warden Clarke's decision to flood the entire prison with tear gas in the hope of finding him.

CARRIER MUST PAY WIFE

Lawrence, Jan. 28—Judge Harry R. Dow of the Essex County Probate Court couldn't understand how Joseph Levi, rural mail carrier assigned to the Andover postoffice, could spend $30 per month for gasoline to run his automobile, when Levi listed that item among his expenses. He had been previously ordered to pay his wife, Elizabeth, $18 per week for the support of herself and their children, and was before Judge Dow on complaint of the wife for failure to make the payments.

Levi told the court that his mail route was 22 miles in length, but he admitted doing some other driving.

"Oh, yes, you are running around nights," said Judge Dow, as he ordered Levi to keep up the payments or suffer the consequences.

Gar Wood Hopes for New Record Today

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 28 (AP)—Gar Wood, who set a new world's speedboat record of 119.785 miles an hour here yesterday, had his heart set on increasing his margin today.

He hoped to tack at least one more mile an hour on his time and make it a mile and a half an hour up on Kaye Don, who made 110.223 miles an hour at Lake Garda, Italy, last July to break Wood's old record.

Mayor Accused of "Usurping" Power

By a vote of 11 to 8, the Malden Common Council notified Mayor William A. Hastings that it is opposed to his bill before the Legislature for the appointment of assessors by the mayor.

Members of the City Council declared their powers were being gradually usurped by other city bodies and that they would fight to retain such powers as remain. They plan to oppose the bill when it comes up for a hearing.

Webster's Wife So Fed Up on Men She'd Even Spurn Santa

Carson City, Nev., Jan. 28 (INS)—"He (she) was drunk all the time we were married."

Such was one of the charges hurled today by wealthy George W. Webster, Jr., of Boston and his attractive and youthful wife, Nina Louise Webster, ex-Follies dancer, in their contested suit for divorce before a colorful Nevada jury that included two pretty young married women, several cowboys and desert prospectors.

Mrs. Webster denied an indiscretion in a North Carolina hotel and charged Webster had associated with other women.

"He was drunk all the time," she testified.

"I went to Goldsboro, N. C., once and found Nina drunk and playing the piano. A jug of mountain corn liquor was on the piano," Webster countered from the witness stand. "She's been drunk ever since we were married."

"I wouldn't have another man if he were hanging on a Christmas tree! Look at all the trouble I'm in by marrying this rich man," Mrs. Webster said. "He's the son of a wealthy New England family who thinks he should have everything his own way."

Webster charged cruelty. Mrs. Webster filed a cross-complaint and asked separate maintenance of $400 a month, declaring Webster, the son of a millionaire Boston grocer, had an income of $25,000 annually.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

for the last seven years has maintained consistent leadership of the screen. All picture-lovers will remember the great succession of hits bearing the lion trademark. To mention a few: "Ben-Hur," "The Big Parade," "White Shadows," "The Unholy Three," "Broadway Melody" and this very season (NOW!) Garbo in "Mata Hari," Marie Dressler in "Emma," Wallace Beery and Clark Gable in "Hell Divers," "The Champ."

Sparing no efforts to bring out the best, M-G-M engaged our foremost playwright, Frederick Lonsdale, to write an original screen play. His "Lovers Courageous" is even greater than his celebrated stage successes such as "Aren't We All," "The High Road," "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," "The Best People." TO HAVE GREAT TALKIES WE MUST HAVE GREAT WRITERS!

TAX LEAGUE IS CALLED 'FAKE' BY GARNER

Washington, Jan. 28—Speaker Garner last night was quoted over the radio as assailing the American Taxpayers League as a lobbying organization.

Representative F. H. Laguardia (Rep.) of New York, in a scorching attack upon lobbyists over a network of the National Broadcasting Company, said he had been authorized by Speaker Garner to say

"These professed influencers of public opinion are usually fakes, such as the American Taxpayers League was and I think still is."

Laguardia said he had protested to the National Broadcasting Company against permitting the American Taxpayers League to use its radio network "for their own propaganda in the furtherance of the personal interest of a few promoters."

In reply Laguardia said he was advised by the broadcasting company that he could state his views "in accordance with the company's policy to always permit the presentation of the other side of the question."

In his radio address Laguardia said:

"My reason for protesting against the activities of the American Taxpayers' League is simply because these activities were resumed on the eve of tax legislation.

"The activities of the American Taxpayers' League and its utter lack of influence and the amount of money they have collected are matters of record in the form of competent and preponderant evidence obtained after a very painstaking investigation by the United States Senate.

"The American Taxpayers' League was the creature of one J. A. Arnold. It operated ostensibly to influence congressional legislation.

"There is in truth no such thing as an American Taxpayers' League. The American Taxpayers' League was organized in 1925 by Arnold. It has no constitution or by-laws or membership except contributions.'

"Under the name of the American Taxpayers' League, according to sworn testimony, Arnold has collected three years, 1926, 1927 and 1928, the sum of $860,574.13."

U. S. ATTORNEY 'PLOT' VICTIM

New York, Jan. 28 (INS)—Existence of a possible extortion plot against the United States attorney here was under investigation today in connection with the probe into the activities of Sidney Paris.

Paris' financial deals were under scrutiny as a result of his participation in an investment firm. His wife, Mrs. Charlotte M. Werner Paris, was suspended recently as secretary in the office of George Z. Medalie, United States attorney.

Thomas E. Dewey, acting for the latter during his absence, said he did not believe that an assistant federal attorney was involved in the Paris case, although the assistant had lent Paris some money before the present federal investigation was undertaken.

Miami Blue Law Tests Are Planned

Miami, Fla., Jan. 28—Almost anybody's guess appeared good today on the Sunday blue law situation in Miami. Many guessed Sheriff M. P. Lehman and County Solicitor Fred Pine would close movies, night clubs, golf courses, filling stations, soda fountains and the like.

But, proprietors said they would remain open Sunday and invite arrest to test the laws.

Slayer Kills Self to Escape Police

Denver, Colo., Jan. 28 (US)—Joseph C. Riley, escaped convict from the Colorado penitentiary sought on charges of murder, kidnaping and robbery, shot and killed himself in a cheap downtown boarding house after officers surrounded the place.

On the Crest of Economy Wave

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

Public official is sorer than a hammered thumb because somebody suggested he give 10 per cent of his pay to the conscience fund.

That's a thing that could be carried too far. It means a lot of the boys would be working for nothing.

This economy wave is great if you only go into it ankle deep. Every official has a suggestion to reduce the other man's pay.

But when it comes his turn to eat a steak off the gored ox he yells for broccoli.

Everybody wants to economize by proxy.

We do not think that public servants are overpaid. Some of them do two man's work. We think Congress should be paid an extra fireman's salary because they are under fire, too.

So many chickens are coming home to roost they have to use the Akron's hangar for a coop.

Pretty Vera Milton, former Follies charmer, denies that her father is in need and sells polish on London sts., while she lives in New York luxury.

VALUE KEYNOTE, SAYS FISHER

"Value is the thing this year," says W. A. Fisher, president of the Fisher Body Corporation. "We shall doubtless hear the verdict on the automobile show expressed in various ways, but its general drift is pretty likely to boil down to this. Value certainly is the keynote of the entire display.

"At the bottom of it all is an economic readjustment unparalleled since the dawn of the automotive era—an adjustment which has inspired more comment, expert and otherwise, than any other dozen topics of the day—but an adjustment, nevertheless, from which the public is finally going to 'get a break.'

"Greater values are apparent from one end of the car to the other.

"Fisher bodies incorporate dozens of improvements this year. There is the new adjustable interior glare windshield, newly designed and refined body fittings; better upholstery, insulation and ventilation and new refinements of door locks, seat regulators, window mechanisms.

"As prices stand today, they surely entitle the automobile to a place among those necessities of life which have undergone revision to fit the public purse. Authorities throughout the industry naturally hesitate to predict, but there are grounds to believe that prices are now at the very bottom.

"In fact, it is no secret that the industry is relying upon the automobile shows here and throughout the United States to set in motion the machinery of buying again."

Record Burlington Vote Is Expected

After a spirited campaign, Burlington expects a record vote at the annual elections Monday. The board of selectmen, which has been intact for 10 years, faces a possible shake-up with four new candidates seeking office who have the backing of the Burlington Improvement Association.

Pension for City Worker

An application of Michael Hession, attendant at Prospect Hill Park, Waltham, for retirement on a pension, has been granted.

NOW THE TIME TO BUY AUTO, ELY FINDS

Gov. Ely went to the Automobile Show last night and came away with this thought, which he expressed today:

"Anybody who buys an automobile this year may find that its value will have increased 10 to 15 per cent next year instead of depreciating 40 per cent."

The governor found the displays, "very, very alluring."

His party included Mrs. Ely, Lieut.-Gov. and Mrs. Youngman, friends and members of his staff, all guests of Chester I. Campbell, of the executive council, managing director of the show.

"The wise man is the fellow who buys when things are cheap," the governor said after viewing the exhibits. "I think now is the time to buy a new car as a good investment for one's money.

"When we reach the bottom of the market, that is the time to buy."

Services Tomorrow for William Patten

Funeral services for William H. Patten, 62, of 1242 Commonwealth ave., Allston, one of the pioneers of the motion picture industry in New England, who died at City Hospital yesterday, will be held at the Short & Williamson Funeral Parlors, 173 Brighton ave., Allston, tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock.

Following the brief rites, the body will be removed to the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Marlboro, where a solemn high mass of requiem will be celebrated. Burial will be in the cemetery of the Immaculate Conception.

Science Discovers Way to 'Stretch' Thunderbolts

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—Something new in lightning protection, a method of "stretching" a thunderbolt, was reported to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers today.

By this method a man-made lightning stroke of 11,000,000 volts, said to be bigger than anything likely to come from a real thunder cloud, has been smoothed out so much that it passed harmlessly through a power line transformer.

The smoothing out consists of reducing the size of some of the big waves of electrical energy which constitute a lightning stroke. Engineers call these waves "surges." The size is reduced by distributing the waves more uniformly, so that instead of having one exceedingly high peak wave that smashes anything in its path there is a series of more moderate waves.

The discovery was reported by H. V. Putman of the Westinghouse company.

REBELS ROUTED IN SALVADOR

Vera Cruz, Mexico, Jan. 28 (AP)—Juan Ramon Uriarte, retiring Mexican minister to Salvador, today said the Salvadorean government now is in complete control of the revolt there, and has re-established rail, air and telegraph communication.

The Communists, disorganized after their defeats, have fled into hiding in the mountains, he said.

Montreal Express Stops to Oust Hobo Passenger

There was considerable excitement in Winchester last night when the Boston & Maine's Montreal express, which ordinarily flits through the town came to a stop at the Winchester station.

Walter Andrews was the cause. Walter is a hobo, with no address and no home, but he decided to go to Montreal, hiding in a small space between the two last sleepers on the train.

MAINE '5' BACK PATTANGALL

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—Appointment of Chief Justice William F. Pattangall of the Supreme Judicial Court of Maine to the United States Supreme Court has been recommended to President Hoover.

The recommendation was made by Senators Hale and White and Representatives Nelson, Snow and Partridge, Republicans, Maine. Pattangall is a Democrat.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

Another Chance, Please!

I know that I did you wrong, my love,
But I want to come back again!
I miss you the way that the crocuses
Would miss the soft April rain.

I'm pleading for one more chance, my love!
Ah, don't let me plead in vain!
I want to come back to you, sweetheart mine—
And do you wrong once again!
—The Funny Man

Wonder if Chestnut Hill's clever Esther Bourneuf would like to know that one of those amusing Christmas cards (gotten up like invoices) she sent out is still being carried around in a certain engaging young Newton boy's over-the-heart pocket . . . We know one professional man who is so Mickey-Mouse-crazy that he's going to close up shop Saturday morning to see a special showing of a Mickey-Mouse picture at Loew's State . . . Showing is for the benefit of the B. P. C. C., by the by . . . Vera Lenox, dainty leading lady of "The Good Companions," used to teach dancing . . . And we'd like you to know that Rita Royce is displaying the courage of a real trouper this week at the RKO-Boston . . . For she's toe-dancing four times a day on badly abscessed toes, and when she reaches the wings after each appearance she cries real tears! . . .

Still Poking About

Mario Braggiotti, who will present a modern pianologue with Jacques Fray, during Chevalier's evenings at the Colonial Theater next Tuesday and Wednesday, is a member of the talented Braggiotti family of Boston . . . The Braggiotti and Fray combination won such instant acclaim when they first debuted in Europe that the folks on the Continent have really heard more of them than their own country's people have . . . Mario is an unusually rhythmic pianist, probably having inherit- many of the dance rhythms of his dancing sisters when he used to accompany them, before his days as a real artist began . . . That picturesque figure in the gray and red Russian Cossack's garb you saw dining alone in the Hotel Manger's Coffee Shop Tuesday evening about 11 was none other than Kola Kwariani, Russian wrestler, who matched his strength against Italy's Renato Gardini at the Boston Garden last night . . . The moth ball odor that filled the air at Kola's table suggested that the outfit had just been dug out of a trunk for that flash of ballyhoo to catch the attention of the hockey fans on their way home . . . And Kola is that Russian that he ordered a fish stew . . . We didn't think there was anyone left with such an ambition, but 14-year-old Robert Hazel of Brighton tells us that when he grows up he's going to be "a broker —of course" . . . Well, that's because Bobby thinks the sun rises and sets on his daddy, a financial-district man . . . Hope Arthur Martel gives us more of those organ lessons in music . . . They're so much nicer than the raucous chanting of flat popular ballads by shoppers! . . . Pola Negri gets loud and appreciative laughter from the girls when, in her new picture at the RKO Keith's, she slays her cooling lover with this dirty crack: "I was once to love with an ass, but I never heard him bray till now" . . . All the girls are entranced, as in their mind's eye they see themselves handing out a similar dose of insult to their own boy friends . . .

Out for Merriment

After his last show the other night, Vincent Lopez took a cab to the Rink, told the driver to wait, went upstairs, put something in his hip pocket, came back, and told the cabbie he was hired from his work, and wanted to go to some really gay place where he could make whoopee with him. The driver plunged himself in thought for a moment, then told Vincent he knew the very place—the Old France . . . "Very well," said Vincent, "Let's go" . . . "Wait," said One Who Was With Lopez. "Don't you know what the Old France is?" . . . "Sounds like quite a gay nightclub," said Vincent, anticipatively. "Well, it can't be too gay for me" . . . "It's a Child's restaurant," his companion explained . . . Vincent is now convinced that Hoover could wander around Boston for days and never be recognized unless someone came up to him and asked "Aren't you Al Smith?" . . . Because in New York everyone knows Vincent, and the thought that the cabbie had no idea of the idea about his identity as to think he would find a Child's restaurant the gayest place he ever saw nearly slew him . . . Well, Vincent, it only proves to you that Boston is only place where a celebrity is always incognito, even without a false beard.

Lookin' Thru the Mail

To Julio Lavoot: So Lieu Bassorotz left behind her plenty of cherished University of Maine boys, when she left shortly after her personal appearance there? . . . Lina's like that—stirring hearts along her bypaths, as you've said. "What makes the Kay O. Sounds" so popular with the U. of M. students there in Bangor, Me.? O. h, that's American flappers in Maine to write me that answer, Julio . . .

To "One Hundredth Reader": Nice of you to forward the invitation to the opening of the Garbo when she visited there the other day. Can we help it if the Garbo's shooting doesn't have us hung?

To Jean Mallin: Will you please tell me if that crack you wrecked your car through that they are going to put the unfinished symphony to Schubert's music supposed to be a joke? (Who can get the answer?)

To Brighton's "Marge": Yours is the third letter on the pronunciation of the name. It's pronounced "A-cease See-mons" . . .

Tell your friends to quit arguing and send us some "snoops."

To Rockland's "Larry": We mentioned that lady's name in one of our first columns . . . It's musical Joe Smith who enjoys watching at the showings . . . Thanks for the incident reported . . .

To Ed Payne: Thanks for the kind words and contributions.

ANN HARDING, MELVYN DOUGLAS STAR

"Prestige" Coming to Keith's

By HARRIS MORGAN

If Melvyn Douglas does as well in "Prestige," opening on the RKO-Keith screen tomorrow, as he did in his first talkie, he will make the star, Ann Harding, step some for her laurels. Making his cinema bow in "Tonight or Never," Douglas carried off the acting honors, proving one of the finest male personalities the silver sheet has acquired in some time.

* * *

Douglas, the feminine fans may wish to know, is happily wed. His romance started backstage while he was acting in "Tonight or Never" before the footlights. Helen Gahagan, a very capable actress, was his leading woman. Their make-believe love for purposes of the playwright turned into the real variety, and they made a real marital knot.

Douglas' career started in Shakespearean repertory while he was still in his teens. Experience gained in trouping the country was turned to good account when he established an outdoor theater in Chicago, later moved to Madison, Wisconsin, and made a financial success out of what appeared at first to be an extremely unlikely venture. After two seasons with the famous Jesse Bonstelle stock company in Detroit, in which so many famous actors have been trained, he appeared on Broadway in "The Silver Cord," "The Command to Love," and "Jealousy."

* * *

Guy Bates Post, another fine actor, makes his talkie debut in "Prestige." He made a few ventures into silent films, but most of his fame was earned on the stage. While Post was playing at the Pasadena Community Playhouse in Molnar's play, "The Play's the Thing," Tay Garnett, Miss Harding's director, was impressed by his performance that he engaged him for "Prestige."

Post was the star of "Man and Superman" and other important plays of the legitimate theater. He was almost lost to the American stage. His original inclination was toward law.

OPERA STARS WHO WILL BE WELCOMED NEXT WEEK

Mme. Margherita Salvi of the Chicago Opera Company, as Gilda in "Rigoletto," to be given a week from Saturday.

Early Orpheum Opening for "Hell Divers" Run

Due to the success of "Hell Divers," co-starring Wallace Beery and Clark Gable, Manager Victor J. Morris of Loew's Orpheum announces that for the first time in the history of the theater, the doors will be open to the public at 8:30 a. m. The air masterpiece opens at the Orpheum tomorrow, the film feature in a bill of vaudeville hits and screen fare.

During the uptown engagement of "Hell Divers" thousands were turned away, and with a view to providing five complete shows a day, the early opening has been announced for the entire week.

Burton Holmes Will Show "All Over Italy"

The travel revues as presented by Burton Holmes continue their interesting and instructive course at Symphony Hall. On Friday evening and Saturday afternoon of the week Mr. Holmes is to extend his colorful explorations through Europe with a screen journey designed for those who know their Italy and for those who wish to know it better. Under the comprehensive title, "All Over Italy," Mr. Holmes is to personally conduct his auditor-spectators from the Alps to the ends of Sicily.

Overture His Latest Hit

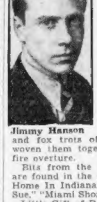
Larry Flint, musical director at the RKO Keith Boston, getting congratulatory telegrams and letters this week for his unique presentation of the overture, "Reminiscing." The overture which is receiving applause at each showing was arranged by a member of Flint's own musical organization, Jimmy Hanson, who has taken pieces from several popular ballads and tunes of the past and woven them together in a sure-fire overture.



Jimmy Hanson

Bits from the following songs are found in the overture: "Back Home In Indiana," "Ida," "Avalon Sue," "Miami Shore," "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses" and "Look For The Silver Lining."

Jimmy Hanson is a native of Maine and graduated from the University of Maine in 1926. He is well known in musical circles and has played with such orchestras as Paul Specht, Eddie Elkins and Henry Busse.

Globe Trotter

Premier Mussolini is bringing back to life the dead city of Herculaneum, and Hearst Metrotone News, in its current issue, presents the first pictures of the progress of this amazing work, with a graphic description by the Globe Trotter. Many modern buildings in the town of Resina, which was built on the site of the ancient city, have been razed.

Digging through 85 feet of lava and petrified mud, the excavators are uncovering the magnificence of the old city destroyed in the year 79 when Vesuvius went on the greatest rampage in history. The pictures show some of the villas occupied by Roman nobles and some of the splendid art works uncovered.

Mahatma Gandhi receives a tremendous ovation upon his arrival in Bombay. In a speech he tells his people to keep up their fight for independence without violence and to carry on the campaign of civil disobedience, which has since led to his return to jail.

Max Schmeling, world champion heavyweight pugilist, is shown signing a contract to fight Jack Sharkey for the title at Madison Square Garden in New York city next June. A great

Linda Watkins, Released From Fox Contract, Is Expected to Wed

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service, Inc.

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Jan. 28—Linda Watkins has obtained a release from her Fox contract and is on her way to New York. That isn't the half of it. Her friends expect to receive a wire any day now that she has become Mrs. Gabriel Hess, wife of the attorney for the Motion Picture Producers' Association and a pioneer in the film business.

Louella O. Parsons

Miss Watkins was brought here from the New York stage. She has appeared in a number of current Fox pictures, and she was slated for several more so that when she asked for a release from her contract the Fox officials were surprised.

Then came the whispered word that she had taken the train East, accompanied by Mr. Hess, who has been here on business for the Hays organization. There were further confidences given friends that she expects to marry Mr. Hess immediately. Miss Watkins was Mrs. Hess' best friend, and was one of the first to send sympathy when Mrs. Hess was thrown from her horse and killed. Gabe started in the film business with Samuel Goldwyn as attorney for the old Goldwyn company.

House Cleanings

House-cleaning day at the Fox Film Co. I don't mean it the way it sounds I mean that arriving Thursday night is Edward R. Tinker, president of the company, Richard Rowland, one of the new bosses, and Sol Wurtzel, there will be a big meeting with Al Rockett, the new production head, as soon as they get in town. Then we'll hear what is what, who stays and who leaves. At Radio Studios the bankers and the New York heads of the company have been in almost daily session.

The Edwin Knopfs are expecting the "blessed event." Late July is the date. If it's a boy his father will bring him up to be another director. The Duncans will go their separate ways. Not a quarrel, merely a split in their act. Rosetta opens at Long Beach and Vivian will remain with her husband, Nils Asther, and her baby. Joe Lewis, who was kidnaped by gangsters and almost killed when he refused to sing in their cafe, has gone to the Windy City. Gangsters are out of style there since Al Capone went to jail so he has no fear. Joe opens there February 10 at Vanity Fair, a night club. George O'Brien bought a silk hat for the wedding of Lucile Williams and John Harris. Now it's for sale or rent.

Cromwell Makes Good

Young Richard Cromwell will not have to return to making masks even if he is out in the cold world free lancing. We feared for a time, after all the ballyhooing he received in "Tol'able David," he might fade out of the picture. That happens so often after a player has been over exploited. But in the case of young Cromwell the exploitation was not misplaced. He gave a really excellent performance in "Emma," and now he plays the juvenile lead in "Tinsel Girl" with Lew Tracy and Ann Dvorak. Michael Curtiz is his director.

Richard Cromwell

Another young man, James Dunn, who was much touted in "Bad Girl," will go to Saranac to rest after he completes his strenuous vaudeville trip.

"Central Park" for Doug, Jr.

An encore on "Union Depot" is the plan at Warner Brothers' studio, why not, when this picture is doing business wherever it is shown? The new picture is called "Central Park." It will have much the same general idea of "Union Depot." The tragedies of human life as they occur in one place, this time a park, will be unfolded. Kubec Glasmon and John Bright have prepared the story and again Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will have the leading role. An all-star cast will share honors with young Doug.

Snapshots of Hollywood

JOEL McCREA, a symphony in gray, glimpsed on the Radio lot. He is still waiting for order to sail for Honolulu with the KING VIDOR company. TALLULAH BANKHEAD discovered the popular Hollywood leading man at a recent dinner party. He was not indifferent to her attentions. ROBERT WOOLSEY in trick plaid suit in a bicycle parade on the Radio lot. He was followed by his partner, BERT WHEELER, in gray frock coat and high hat. LORETTA YOUNG and HERBERT SOMBORN dining tete-a-tete at the Embassy. The same two also dining in the Garden Room at the Biltmore. LOWELL SHERMAN at the same place with a dark haired beauty. MARY ROBERTS RINEHART, much admired at the Brown Derby. Sitting near her, LILLIAN BOND in a smart maroon outfit. DIXIE MARTIN, foster daughter of the PANTAGES, dancing at the Cocoanut Grove. The JOHN McCORMACKS calling on LUCILE and JIMMIE GLEASON backstage to congratulate them on their performances. PAUL LUKAS in dus back today with SAM JAFFE. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Soprano's Concert Date at Symphony Is Changed

Conchita Supervia, the Spanish coloratura mezzo-soprano, whose appearance at Symphony Hall was scheduled for Feb. 28, will appear, instead, on Thursday evening, Feb. 25.

Bowdoin Square

At the Bowdoin Square, beginning today and to continue for the remainder of the week, is a new picture and vaudeville bill. "The Age for Love" and "The Deceiver" are the films. There is also a continuation of "Battling With Buffalo Bill." There are seven stage acts. Tomorrow night is "Bargain Night."

IN MET FILM

Astaires Will Attend S. P. C. C. Movie Benefit

Fred and Adele Astaire, stars of "The Band Wagon," are to be guests at the benefit movie to be given Saturday morning at Loew's State, when the entire proceeds of the special performance are to be turned over to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. The stars will assist in the selection of three lucky seats, and to present the winners with live pets.

Guild Theater Opens Soon

The Repertory Theater on Huntington ave., recognized as an ideal theater in every respect, will be reopened as the Guild Theater of Boston, with a definite policy that will make it a strictly Boston institution. Just as originally intended when it was erected. The exact date of opening will depend not only on the time required for the important detail of alterations, but on when the opening attraction, Blanche Yurka and Mrs. Pat Campbell in Sophocle's "Electra," completes a very successful engagement at the Selwyn Theater.

Lee Morrison

Lee Morrison, a Bostonian, whose most recent theatrical activities have been divided between New York and London, has been engaged as general manager.

Exeter Theater

Will Rogers in "Ambassador Bill" and the Wesley Ruggles picture of 20th century women "Are These Our Children?" are the attraction for the remainder of the week at the Exeter.

Escudero Gives Dance Recital

By MOSES SMITH

Vicente Escudero, Spanish gypsy dancer who has aroused intense interest in Europe during the past decade and whom conservative critics in New York gave "rave" notices on the occasion of his recent American debut, stirred up considerable excitement at Symphony Hall last night, where a large and fashionable audience had assembled.

Perhaps the reputation that had preceded him, extravagant as it was, made it impossible for the dancer to come up to the expectations of the on lookers, ours included. Certainly we were not overwhelmed as the writer of our Metropolitan brethen. On the other hand, Escudero is undeniably a great dancer. He does things that none other has done in our time—and this is sufficient to make him splendid. His grace and lightness is justified at the same time that he is at once perhaps the most virile—outwardly and inwardly—on the dancing stage.

For the most part he dances in the gypsy manner (though he is not unfamiliar with the classical tradition. He uses his handsome body with marvelous fleetness and strength and poise. Heels, toes castanets beat an endless variety of rhythmic patterns, and in his tour de force—rhythms, without music—he uses his fingernails as a percussive instrument with astonishing virtuosity.

Two charming women dancers Carmela and Carmita, assist him, or dance separately. The first is the more dignified, the latter more boyishenish—and fetching. Beautiful costumes and fine lighting contributed to an unusual evening.

RICH AUTO MAN IS FREED BY KIDNAPERS

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 28—Howard A. Woolverton, 52, wealthy automan sought throughout northern Indiana and Illinois for 23 hours after being kidnaped, returned alone to his home here at 11:35 o'clock last night without, he said, having met the demand of his abductors for $50,000 ransom.

A bit incoherent, and highly nervous from his experience, Woolverton was shielded from persons other than his immediate family and placed under the care of a physician. It was said he would resume his daily routine after a day or two of rest.

Unshaven and exhausted from many hours of riding about blindfolded in an automobile, under constant guard of two or three men, Woolverton, after being let out at the out-skirts of Michigan City, boarded an electric train and came to the center of South Bend, 26 miles away, without being recognized.

Getting off the train in the uptown district here, he proceeded home immediately, his cheery

HOWARD A. WOOLVERTON, WHO WAS FREED BY KIDNAPERS

MRS. H. A. WOOLVERTON

greeting choking off suddenly when he learned that his wife, Florence, who was with him when he was kidnaped, had collapsed.

Woolverton said he was really frightened only once, and that was at the beginning of the ride last night which ended with his release.

MAINE POTATO OUTLOOK POOR

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 28 (AP)—A gloomy forecast of Maine's 1932 potato business was made by E. L. Newdick of the Maine Department of Agriculture in a speech at the New Jersey Agriculture week meeting today.

He said there would be an "acreage cut of 10 to 15 per cent unless some of the new governmental financial agencies make credit easier than it is," and "in spite of this cut Maine will have more than 40,000,000 bushels of potatoes to market when another season rolls around."

"There are many growers who have gone the limit on their their credit and these men will be obliged to pass out of the picture."

The fertilizer companies, he continued, which had been "liberal" with their credit, "have been obliged to adopt a policy of retrenchment." The amount of fertilizer placed on crop mortgages will not be as great as it has been in other years.

"We venture to predict that the crop after planting will not receive as good care as it usually does. This will be due in some measure to the abut item which many growers will reduce," he said.

"Outside money, which has always been a factor, will play a less important part this year, because our friends in other states have troubles of their own."

Family of 5 Escapes Newburyport Fire

Newburyport, Jan. 28—Smoke awakened Edward W. Garret today, just in time for him to arouse his wife and four children and lead them to safety from fire in their home at 19 Ferry rd.

Garret sent in a telephone alarm but all apparatus in the city had to be called out. Damage was estiated at $2000. The cause of the fire was not determined.

A Little 'o This 'n That

THERE'LL BE A GREAT deal of fuss raised, I expect, when Gertrude Atherton's autobiographical tome emerges from the presses shortly because the valiant gal tells a number of choice yarns with names spelled out in full. Some grand stories, too. I'm referring particularly to the one in which, after dwelling at some length upon the merit of James McNeil Whistler the artist, and his wife the author takes time and words to bring to life again the lady's marriage to E. W. Godwin and the latter's love affair with the estimable and voluble Ellen Terry. Several children were the result of this match but Godwin, it appears, according to Miss Atherton, was never one to be held down by either marital or parental obligations and finally the great Terry decided that the time had come for them to part. But the children loved Godwin and used to cry for him, particularly at bedtime. They had become accustomed to a goodnight kiss from him. Ellen Terry decided something drastic had to be done. So she took the babes to a cemetery, bought roomnuts to a grave and whispered low: "Darlings, your poor daddy lies there. Now please say no more and go to bed." So they went home and she tucked her darlings into bed and heard their prayers and went downstairs and behind, the dead had arisen for there in the flesh stood E. W. Godwin. "I've come," he said simply, "to kiss the babies good night." Ellen Terry withered him with a glance. "Listen," she said, "I've just told them you're dead and whether you like it or not dead you'll remain. You'll not make a liar of me!"

More of Them!

More definitions from the "Dictionary of a Hollywood Producer" compiled by Leonard Lyons:

SORELEER—Something to slip ice from.

VORTEX—We still have to pay it, although the armistice was signed in 1918.

ABSINTHE—What makes the heart grow fonder.

FODDER—A necessary parent.

SUBTLE—The train that takes you from Times sq. to Grand Central.

RANCH—Tool for twisting bolts.

Typical?

From time to time we've mentioned Gil Patten in this column. Patten is better known as Burt L. Standish, the fellow who created the famous boyhood heroes, Frank and Dick Merriwell. You and I read these stories avidly when we were kids and as you can imagine the terrific thrill that was mine when I walked into Lee Chumley's one night and was brought over to a tall, stalwart, white-haired gentleman and learned for the first time that here was the man who had written all those dime novels. All of this, however, I think I've told you on different occasions, but only the other night I learned that the fellow who provided us with a Merriwell who could pitch a double-shoot—that is, a ball that went straight to the bat and just before it reached the plate curved to the left and then to the right—or somethink like that—the man who created the champion pitcher, batsman and base stealer of all time, hasn't been to a ball game in 30 years, and prefers to play, of all games, check ers! The great big he man!

STOREWORKERS STAGE BALL

The Gilchrist's Associates, the organization of the Gilchrist store, staged its annual inaugural ball last night in the auditorium of the Boston City Club, with a large attendance, including some of the officials of the store.

The president elect, Charles A. Garrity, traffic manager of the store, was greeted by the large gathering, as were the other officers of the association.

The ball was opened with a grand march led by Frank A. Orth, retiring president, and Mrs. Orth, who were followed by President-elect Garrity and Mrs. Garrity, with their small son, Bud Garrity. President Orth made a short address of welcome and presented the incoming president, who was hailed by the members of the organization.

Floral bouquets were presented to Mrs. Orth, Mrs. Garrity and Bud Garrity. Among the store executives who were present were Frank Vorenberg, general merchandise manager, and Samuel Vorenberg, divisional merchandise manager.

Julian J. Burnce, advertising manager and newly elected first vice-president, was third in line in the grand march, with Yvette Carpentier, "Miss Aleppo." Then came Charles W. Downes, second vice-president.

The eight newly elected directors of the M. G. A. were also present. They are John D. Corbett, floor manager; Howard Finn, fur department; Charles W. Harvey, charge manager; Florence E. Jackson, executor force; John C. Nugent, buyer, Jack Rosenthal, supply department, and Albert E. Stevens, basement manager.

PROTESTANTISM IN NEED OF MORE RELIGION AND FEWER PROBLEMS

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

PRESIDENT DANIEL L. MARSH'S recent address to the Boston Federation of Churches furnishes food for thought, though perhaps not exactly the kind of thought he would prefer. So far as I gathered his theme from the newspaper accounts, it was an appeal for a co-operative church effort for the advancement of "world problems." What interested me particularly was his insistence that church unity among the Protestants was not so important as active denominational work directed against "world problems." His reason was that the community church, free from denominational distinction, was selfish and self-centered in small ways and did not work for "world programs," and so was doomed. This I gather from the newspaper accounts.

I think I am speaking for large numbers of the educated Protestants when I say that President Marsh dismusses lightly the only hope of Protestantism in the United States and advocates the very thing which leaves large numbers of people completely uninterested in the church.

Home Problems More Important

A few days ago I spoke at the church of a young clergyman, in another part of the state. He apologized for a small audience, because he had a very small congregation. He also said that he had had to make it plain to his people that he could not be expected to do much pastoral work among his people, visiting with old ladies as he called it, because he was so interested in "world movements." He had been sponsoring a forum in Industrial Democracy, which is a pseudoym for radical labor propaganda with a touch of communism. He and his wife were following the Disarmament Conference closely and he had preached on it only that morning. I gathered that he was also interested in cancelling all the world's debts and in the independence of the Indian people.

There, I thought to myself, is the reason for the small congregation. The man ought to be the paid secretary for some society for the advancement of something, rather than a minister. But another reason was that in a small city there were at least three churches in his own not very strong denomination.

You will find this condition repeated in every city you visit. Too many churches for one denomination, too many denominations for the number of Protestant church members—and an increasing tendency on the part of the younger clergy to neglect their ministry and their pastoral work, running after the will o'wisp of "world problems," instead of buckling down to the problems of the people at home.

What is the result? For one thing, the enormous number of the Protestant unchurched in the United States The most recent figures available show some eighteen and a half millions of Catholic membership in the United States, some four millions of Jews, and some thirty-two millions of Protestants split up into at least 60 separate bodies.

It may be assumed that the figures for Catholic membership and the Jewish membership come fairly near to representing the proportional size of those communions in the whole population. The Protestant figures of thirty-two millions obviously do not. There are at least fifty millions of unchurched Protestants in the United States.

More Religion, Less Denominationalism

In 31 out of 49 states the Catholic Church leads in membership. In 31 out of the 38 chief cities of the United States the Catholic Church leads in membership. In one city of the 32 the Jewish congregations lead. In 23 out of the 31, Jewish congregations are second. Obviously the Protestant churches are not reaching the great mass of our city population. Denominationalism is one cause of this, the increasing tendency of the Protestant church to become a social club and an extension course on world problems is another. Religion seems left out in the cold.

Most of the people who are really interested in "world problems," internationalism, independence for India, disarmament, and all the rest of it, are the college-bred intellectuals who never go to church. They do not need the church to interest them in these matters. And if the church believes that by going in for these matters it can attract the intellectuals who have left the church forever, the church is very much mistaken.

On the other hand, there are millions of plain, not very well educated, sincere people who do want a church home, who do want religion, preferably the old-time religion, who do want pastoral care, but who have not the slightest interest in world problems and who do not see how those problems are the business of the church.

So long as the church does its best to take care of its own people at home, they say, what does it matter about the Hindus and the Chinese and the Russians? Particularly it doesn't matter about the Hindus, if the church at home isn't doing its job. And it obviously isn't. Its influence it matters of public morals, corruption and crime is almost nil. The great cities are full of the unchurched, all of whom like sheep have gone astray, and the young liberals in our Protestant churches are still standing shoulder to shoulder with Lord Robert Cecil at Geneva or with Mahatma Gandhi at Calcutta.

America Needs Attention First

After all, Dr. Marsh, isn't it all a bit ridiculous? The Protestant church in America has made a mess and a failure of its job of taking care of its own people religiously. The larger proportion of its churches stand half empty in the morning service and almost entirely empty at the evening service—or the evening service has been discontinued. If all the energy wasted in maintaining a dozen congregations in a community could be channelled into two or three—or one small community—we would see a living church. For only living churches attract able ministers and only able ministers built living churches. The Protestant church is in a vicious, unescapable circle, until it throws denominationalism overboard and puts all its eggs into one basket. A mixed metaphor, but 'twill serve!

The result will be a powerful Protestant church in America. That does not seem so desirable to President Marsh as the continuance of denominations, because they can be tied up to a "world movement." World prohibition, when our own is a hopeless failure? World peace, when our land is a hot bed of warring interests? World disarmament, when neither our own capital nor our own labor will disarm? The independence of India, when the American sees his own Bill of Rights daily violated and defiled? International traffic in narcotics and white slaves? Don't make me laugh!

I wish President Marsh would persuade the Boston Federation of Churches, or even the Federal Council of Churches of American, to proclaim a National Mote and Beam Sunday. Remember that it is perfectly possible to save the world and yet to lose America. I sugges' the reverse English.

City Attacks Ancient Hulks With Dynamite

BUSINESS MEN TO SERVE AS SPEAKERS

Meetings at Common and Pemberton Sq. Today; Judge Murray Heads Orators

Prominent business and professional men will come to the aid of the United Boston Unemployment Relief Campaign for $3,000,000 at noonday rallies throughout the city during the remaining days of the drive.

The first of these rallies will be held today at the Parkman Bandstand, Boston Common, and Pemberton sq. Both these points will be used for rallies daily for the remaining days of the 10-day campaign and other rallies will be arranged by ward leaders throughout the city.

LARGE CONTRIBUTIONS

Judge Michael J. Murray, of the Boston Municipal Court, is chairman of the group of speakers, who will tell of the methods used in raising the fund, the manner in which the money will be spent, and the need for the campaign.

JUDGE M. J. MURRAY, CHAIRMAN OF THE RELIEF DRIVE SPEAKERS

Business men, leaders in professional circles and representatives of the city and state are in the corps which will inaugurate the noonday rallies today under the leadership of Judge Murray.

Officials today announced that contributions yesterday, the third day of the campaign, amounted to $85,519.70, swelling the total to $786,957.78. Two large contributions were received from the Boston Relief Association and the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. employes.

CURLEY DEFIED

Meanwhile further protest against Mayor Curley's orders to department heads to deduct one day's pay from the salaries of all city employes for five months came from Francis A. Campbell, clerk of the Superior Civil Court

Clerk Campbell challenged the mayor's right to give such orders and in a letter to the mayor said employes of his office would make their contributions directly to the campaign committee.

The Loose-Wiles Biscuit Co. reported the pledges in area although the contribution had not been received.

Three speakers are scheduled today for the radio campaign at 9:30 a. m. Thomas J. Fallon of Ward 14 will speak from Station WAAB. He will be followed by Patrick J. Connelly of Ward 12 at 4:55 p. m. and Charles Bishop, district chairman of Wards 13, 14 and 15, will speak this evening at 9:25 p. m.

FOUR GENERATIONS MEET IN HOSPITAL

When William Joseph Tupper was born a few days ago at Dr. Thomas H. Heaton's Broadway Maternity Hospital in Cambridge, the last member of a four generation group had arrived. Mrs. Annie Finnigan, of 53 Stoughton st., Dorchester, right, is the great grandmother. Her daughter, Mrs. Mary A. Tupper, left, of the same address, is the grandmother. Her son, F. L. Tuppér, is the father. Mrs. Tupper is shown in the bed with her child.

3 GENERATIONS GREET 4TH

William Joseph Tupper opened his eyes on the world at the Broadway General Hospital, Broadway and Amory sts., Cambridge, and although he knew nothing about it, he was the beginning of the fourth generation of living Tuppers in Cambridge.

Nestled snugly beside his mother, while a happy daddy looked down on him, and his grandmother and great-grandmother stood by the bedside the only question he gave that he knew his position was unique—a big "gurgle."

The youngster, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tupper, of 13 Gardner rd., Cambridge, tipped the scales at six and one-quarter pounds upon his arrival as the latest Cambridge Tupper.

Mrs. Annie Finnegan is the youngster's great-grandmother. She is the mother of Mrs. Agnes Tupper, who is the mother of the father of William Joseph.

Boy Fugitive Found Asleep in Malden Railroad Station

John R. Dutton, 19, of Springfield, was found asleep in the Broadway depot of the Boston & Maine Railroad last night by Malden police. He claimed that he was endeavoring to reach Maine where he had a job, but after further questioning he admitted that he had no job and had escaped from the Lyman School and had thumbed rides to Malden. He was turned over to an agent of the Lyman School

FINANCE BOARD PAY CUT ASKED

A 20 per cent reduction in salaries of the members of the police force, which would reduced the pay of every employe, was recommended before the Legislative committee on Finance by Senator William S. Conroy, of Fall River.

The proposal was supported by Representative William P. Thomas, Representative F. D. O'Brien, Frank Kenney and John Ford all of Fall River.

Senator Conroy said he could see no way to avoid the reduction of the board should not be reduced like the salaries of city employes

No opposition to the proposition was shown.

EAST BOSTON CLEANUP IS LAUNCHED

Craft Imbedded in Mudflats to Be Blown to Bits as Result of Long Campaign

Destruction by dynamite of a series of hulks of ancient steamers and other types of craft some of which have been beached on the East Boston mud flats for more than half a century, begins today.

The task is a difficult one because the wrecks are deeply imbedded in the mire some of the ancient craft are between 300 and 400 feet long.

RESULT OF LONG CAMPAIGN

Today's work is the beginning of the final chapter of a campaign launched more than a year ago by Capt. William P. Coughlin, chairman of the waterfront committee of the East Boston Board of Trade, with the support of the Boston Evening American, for a cleanup of the hulks and the disease breeding mud flats on which they rest.

Coughlin appealed to Mayor Curley for assistance and was given a public hearing on the matter by the city council.

Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, city health commissioner, and Commissioner of Public Buildings Sherman were assigned by the mayor to assist Coughlin.

LEGISLATION PASSED

Health officials and the mayor have made a series of inspection of the East Boston waterfront under the guidance of Coughlin.

With their support legislation was sought and secured, which brought about the cleanup campaign which begins in earnest today.

In charge of the task of removing the hulks is John J. "Broadway" Sullivan, of South Boston, hero of the Pickwick Club collapse on the morning of Jan. 4, 1925.

Attleboro Pastor Dead

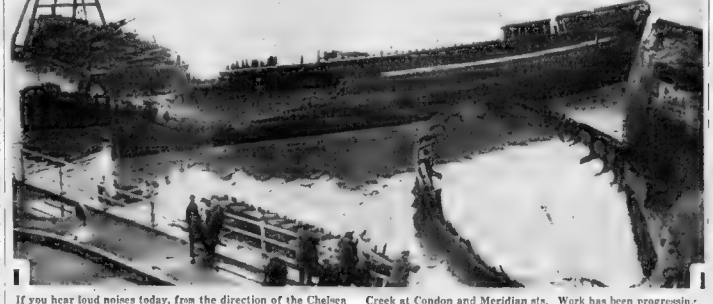
Attleboro, Jan. 28—The Rev. Gustave A. G. Carlson, pastor of the Swedish Evangelical Lutheran Church, is dead of pneumonia at Sturdy Memorial Hospital.

THEY'LL BE "SHOOTING SHIPS" IN EAST BOSTON TODAY



If you hear loud noises today, from the direction of the Chelsea Creek in East Boston, don't be alarmed. It is not an explosion or an earthquake, it is just the city employes blasting these old hulks of boats imbedded in the mud on the shores of the Chelsea Creek at Condon and Meridian sts. Work has been progressing rapidly to clean up the old hulks from the shores of the creek. Dynamite will assist the laborers in the clean-up work which gets underway today. (Staff photo.)

Gangsters Are Given the Third Degree

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Daisy Beaumont, vivacious young blonde, is arrested and charged with "soliciting" but Capt. Jim Fitzpatrick of the homicide squad has her released. In the meantime, four men are found murdered in a warehouse. Capt. Jim is convinced that "Big Boy" Belmonte is responsible. He captures three bank robbers and is appointed chief of police. Ed is set to guard a shipment of gold, but tells Daisy and the gangsters about it. The truck is stolen and a policeman shot.

By JACK LAIT

WHEN TOM looked at Mac, his face smeared with blood, his mouth open and eyes glassy and staring, Tom knew it was too late.

A little boy in the crowd had pushed his way to the side of the car. He stood peering forward at the end of the street.

"The truck was wrecked against a elevator post," chattered the trembling child

"Where'd the men go?" asked Tom somewhat abstractedly. He was still staring at the face of his friend.

"They jumped out and runned into that tenement house," said the kid, while with terror and excitement

Tom suddenly came to life. He pushed open the door of the car and crawled out

TELEPHONES TO CHIEF

"Where's a telephone?" he yelled. Someone directed him to the candy store on the corner. The crowd parted as he strode through. A uniformed policeman was coming down the street.

"I'm from headquarters," said Tom. "Lieutenant Jinkowsky has been killed. Keep that crowd back."

Then he ran on down to the corner.

"Hello, Jim," he said when he finally got the chief on the line. "They've killed Mac. Shot him through the head while we were chasin' them. Yes. They wrecked the truck. I guess the stuff's still in it—but what the hell—they got Mac."

"You heard about Ed?—he's all right? Just a crack, eh? Well that was a Belmonte job—sure. Yeah, we recognized Chalo. He was sittin' in a car right around the corner. I'd know that thing what done the shootin' anywhere I seen him. Yeah, it looks like Belmonte is on an inside tip-off."

Tom staggered a bit like a drunken man and then braced himself.

"You'll be right over? Okay. I'd take a look in the truck—I don't think I got away with the stuff."

He hung up the telephone. The proprietor of the little corner store, an apron tied around him was waiting outside the booth

INSIDE TIP-OFF

"I saw both of them," he said "I could identify them. They went right in the store of the building next door."

Tom looked at him as if he didn't hear.

"Poor Mac," he muttered. "That they'd get Mac like that—but by God I'll——. Poor Fitz—an inside tip-off—his own brother—God."

The so-called police third degree is usually a laugh to the seasoned criminal. The professional crook always thinks he is smarter than the copper—and many times he is When he realizes the police are going to get rough and put him through the mental torture mill he comes clean with everything he want to hear. He'll confess anything to stall along, knowing that a smart "mouthpiece" can have the confession thrown out on the grounds that it was obtained under duress.

The police, although paid to protect the public never get much sympathy in such cases. Not even in court. The public goes indignant when word seeps out that the dicks have treated a guy rough—punched his jaw, jerked his chair out from under him, refused to give him water or kept him from his beauty nap. The criminal may rob, kidnap and kill, but the public recognizing romance in his actions. For at a cop duck

ELY AND CURLEY PRAISE N. E. DAYS DRIVE

Sears, Roebuck "Buy What Your Neighbor Made and Save" Wins Favor

Company Is Spending Millions to Help in Bringing Back "Good Times" Era

"Buy what your neighbor made, and save money!"

Under this slogan, "New England Days" a $1,000,000 drive to speed the return of prosperity here was off to a fast start today at the big Boston and Cambridge stores of Sears, Roebuck and Co., the former at Audubon rd, and Brookline ave., the latter at 1815 Massachusetts ave., near Porter sq., and other stores of the company throughout New England.

The regularly [illegible] more than 30 New England concerns [illegible] more than $30,000,000 annually for New England merchandise, the company now features New England goods until February 1 under the slogan of "New England Days."

The opening of the "New England Days" today followed weeks of careful planning and preparation during the great benefit of such a drive to the industries and the people of this section was first recognized by his executives.

SPENDS MILLIONS IN N. E.

The idea had its genesis in the fact that in less than four years these stores have become a huge factor in New England trade and life. This fact has been the subject of tributes by Governor Ely, Mayor Curley, Mayor Richard M. Russell of Cambridge, numerous other municipal executives and many Chambers of Commerce and other civic bodies, in letters to Dist. Manager Chauncy S. Williams.

The company's payroll in New England was more than $2,000,000 in 1931.

The aim of "New England Days" is to hurry the return of prosperity, and the first step was the placing of orders for $1,000,000 worth of merchandise "made by the neighbors" of the company's New England customers.

One feature of the plan is to sell at or near cost so that New England may derive the utmost advantage from this spur to industry.

PRAISE FROM CURLEY

Mayor Curley, who heralded the $1,000,000 drive on the radio last night and who will be followed on the air tonight by Mayor Russell of Cambridge and later by Governor Ely, Mayor Murphy of Somerville and other notables, in a message to District Manager Williams, said:

"The progressive and courageous policy pursued by Sears, Roebuck & Co. during the present situation, namely, the opening of additional stores and the employment of additional help, has been most encouraging

"It was a material exemplification of faith in their industry and faith in America.

"The departure now being made by this enterprising concern, namely, of making the period from January 28 to February 13 a New England period for the sale exclusively of goods manufactured in New England, should prove of immeasurable value in the ending of the depression and the restoration of prosperity."

The mayor also expressed his gratitude for the donation of $25,000 for the unemployed last year by the concern.

GOVERNOR'S LETTER

Gov Ely wrote

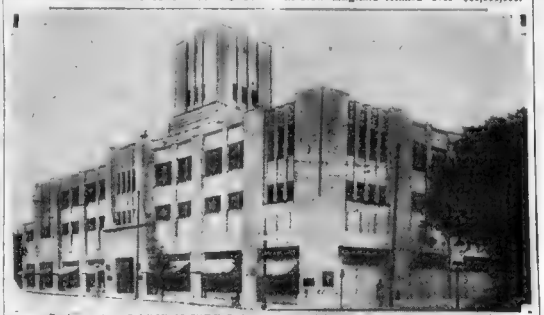
"The enterprise of Sears, Roebuck & Co. in promoting New England's welfare by concentrating on New England products at this time is most commendable. Your New England Days sale and the slogan, 'Buy what your neighbor made and save money' is particularly attractive."

Under the leadership of District Manager Williams the company has opened 18 stores in New England, and in rent and taxes alone its contribution to this section is more than $...0,000 each year. A. McCaffrey is manager of the Boston store and J. J. Breen of the Cambridge store. All stores will be open until 9 p. m. during the drive.

"It is very gratifying to me that the operations of our New England stores have been successful since their start in 1928," said Mr. Williams.

Mayor Russell of Cambridge will deliver his radio address from station WNAC at 10.15 this evening.

The Boston store of Sears, Roebuck & Co. is located at Audubon rd. and Brookline ave. James A. McCaffrey is manager of this store. This retail establishment is one of the 18 stores in New England. C. S. Williams is district manager. The company's payroll for 1931 here was over $2,000,000; its purchases in New England totalled over $30,000,000.



The Sears, Roebuck & Co. Cambridge store is located at 1815 Massachusetts ave. Its manager is J. J. Breen. In rent and taxes the Sears Roebuck contribution to this section of Metropolitan Boston is more than $300,000 each year. (Staff photos.)

NEW SCHOOL TO AID GOLFERS

Rolling hills, blissful floating white clouds, a cozy clubhouse, and figures of golfers clad in the latest golf outfits are strolling with laughing caddies along broad, [illegible] fairways.

That is the atmosphere especially depicted at the Jordan Marsh Company's new golf school. No golfer in New England would a golfer feel more at home. It gives one the fever that golfers get when they long for the feeling of the clubs and to watch the soaring golf ball from some expert's deft swing.

However atmosphere never made a golfer. In attendance there are such outstanding professors as Fred Low of Bras Burn, Bill Duffy of Albemarle and Mat Campbell of Essex County Club.

JEWISH DRIVE DINNER SUNDAY

More than 500 Boston Jewish men and women have already made reservations to attend the community dinner to be given next Sunday evening at the Temple Ohabei Shalom, Beacon st., Brookline, when the $50,000 maintenance appeal for the Hebrew Home for Aged will be officially launched.

On the following day Monday more than 600 men and women workers will start out on a concentrated city-wide solicitation to raise the needed sum of money for the continuance and maintenance of the home.

Governor Ely will be the principal guest at the banquet Sunday night. The meeting will be opened by Dinner Chairman Henry Yozell, and Matthew Puronsky will be toastmaster. Rabbi Aron S. Hymans of Temple B'nai Brith, Somerville will give the benediction. Rabbi Samuel J. Abrams will give the welcome address.

BALL TO AID CHARITY

Women leaders from every section of Boston will be patronesses for the annual ball of the Catholic Union of Boston, to be held at the Copley-Plaza Hotel tonight.

A contribution to charity will be made from the proceeds, supplementing the regular charitable work of the organization. Alfred M. Slattery is chairman of the committee, assuming the newly created president, Charles J. Fox, August commissioner of the city.

The patronesses are

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement does't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is that liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food don't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blocks up your stomach. You have a sick, bad taste and your breath is foul, and often have to quit in disgust. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They acclaim wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist substitutes. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

3 HELD IN FUR THEFT RING

With three men arrested, several more are expected to be captured today in connection with the recovery here yesterday of $10,000 worth of silver fox pelts, stolen in raids on Maine and New Hampshire fox farms.

New Hampshire authorities claim the three confessed some of the raids and believe information obtained will enable them to break a huge fur theft ring which has been preying on fur producing farms throughout New England.

The three men, held in the Merrimack County jail, Boscawen, N. H., were arraigned before Judge Henry Cofran in Pembroke court yesterday and held in bail of $2000 each for the grand jury. They are Paul Fountaine of Damariscotta Me., and Alfred Chase and Eugene Tuttle, both of Rochester, N. H.

The loot was recovered here in fur and department stores and storerooms and express offices.

DEAN ARCHER CHARGES BAR EXAM DISCRIMINATION

PAPERS PASSED ON BY YOUTHS, HE ASSERTS

Night School Students Required to Attain Higher Marks, Suffolk Head Says

Charges of unlawful discrimination against applicants from evening law schools and secret "farming out" of examination books to inexperienced graduates of the Harvard Law School by the State Board of Bar Examiners will be made before the legislative committee on the judiciary today by Dean Gleason L. Archer of Suffolk Law School.

The appearance of Archer before the judiciary committee is in connection with a hearing on two bills. One of these bills would specifically compel the examiners to correct examination papers personally. The other would reorganize the board so that no two members could be graduates of the same law school or come from the same county in the State.

HAS EVIDENCE, HE SAYS

The startling charges which Dean Archer will make were revealed by him last night. He pointed out that the bar examiners board was created by the Legislature to attend to applicants to the bar and that in a way apparent done under the administration of Hollis R. Bailey who retired in October 1931.

He asserted he had evidence to back up his charges that the present board farmed out examination papers for correction by virtually only students of law and of discrimination against night school students.

Bailey refused to comment on the charges. William H. Hitchcock chairman of the State board would neither deny nor affirm the charges but declared there was plenty to be said at the proper time. He said the best I had the papers, of the court in everything it had done.

CITES DISCRIMINATION

Dean Archer claimed last night that night school law students were required to pass the same exam as the day students but with higher marks and said he had evidence to prove this assertion.

He also charged the examiners have increased their expenses and remuneration and have raised the money necessary by unnecessary discrimination against the evening school students. Failing the examinations they are forced to repeat them, paying additional fees to do so, he asserted.

He also charged that vouchers of the State comptroller's office and records in the office of the Supreme Court could be termed a scandal. The names of five lawyers one of whom was a member of the bar for three months and others less than four years, who had received 50 cents for each examination book corrected.

He revealed four were graduates of the Harvard law school and only one of the five could be termed a veteran lawyer. The names were Henry E. Ritter Class of 1930, Charles B. Cooley, no degree admitted to the bar in 1928, Paul Fletcher, class of 1927, Joseph A. Donahue class of 1927 and Charles W. Mulcahy the only veteran Boston University, class of 1925.

Mayor Cuts Pay of Men on Relief Jobs

To provide employment for a larger number of men, Mayor Patrick J. Duane today reduced wages of men working on emergency employment projects in Waltham. Hereafter the men will be paid $3 a day instead of $4.

The contractors who are supervising the work on a 10 per cent commission also will be affected his decision until tomorrow

'FIXING' SCORED BY RYAN

Politicians who are willing to have drunken drivers on the road as long as they can do favors for their friends were denounced by Registrar Morgan T. Ryan last night before the Dedham Board of Trade.

He stated that three days after Representative C. F. Nelson Pratt of Sandwich filed a bill which would force the registrars office to revoke the licenses to defendants found not guilty of driving under the influence of liquor he was forced to revoke the license of a bus driver who killed the real estate father.

The registrar stated that he office is not bound by the statutes limitations of evidence which prevails in the courts of the state and that they can use their own discretion in the cases that come before them for consideration.

The registrar cited the case of a prominent Boston man who had killed three people in four years and who came to his office to have his license restored after he had been sent an inspector out on a test with the man and the latter found it necessary to pull the emergency brake three times while the car went a few blocks on Atlantic ave.

New England Mayors Speak on the Air

In keeping with a schedule outlined by Sears Roebuck & Co. of this city, Mayor Russell A. Brown of Cambridge is speaking through WNAC tonight for the purpose of promoting public interest in connection with New England made merchandise.

This speech by Mayor Russell follows the remarks of Boston's Mayor Curley last night over the same radio station at 7:45.

Tomorrow at 10 p. m. being Mayor Murphy of Somerville is the speaker to further the interests of manufacturers in these parts. Governor Ely then addresses the audience Saturday evening at 7:30 p. m. Each program is sponsored by Sears Roebuck as a measure of stimulating faith in New England industry.

Everywhere women spread the good word OXYDOL

50% more suds—that means quicker and whiter washings! If you think extra suds don't save work and time in washing, you have a surprise in store. Just try the sensational soap discovery, the New Oxydol. The instant you sprinkle Oxydol in either washtub or dishpan you can SEE its superiority over weak, old-type soaps with their watery suds. These richer, sudsier suds SOAK out the dirt with no tiresome rubbing—and do it with incredible speed. It's simply foolish and old-fashioned to rub your life away over a washtub since the New Oxydol has come to town.

And it's great for dishes, too—and kind to hands and delicate fabrics. Ask your grocer today for the orange and blue suds-bargain package. Then you can face washday with a smile.

WHY MODERN MAN TRIES TO KISS A GIRL

By HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN no longer tries to kiss a girl "just to see if he can"—but just to see if he WANTS to.

• • •

Not "a quarter of an inch on the end of Cleopatra's nose," but a BEARD on Marc Antony's chin, would have changed the history of the world. Woman's love isn't strong enough to survive when it is smothered by whiskers

• • •

There is nothing like a brother to take the vanity out of a girl, but it would require something more than the frankness of a mere sister, to unscramble the conceit from the rest of a boy's make-up.

• • •

An editorial writer scores modern girls for not marrying THAT man would probably scold a puppy for getting fleas or spank a kitten for getting caught in a shower.

• • •

Usually, when a man remains a bachelor, it is not because he never loved one woman a lot, but because he loved so many women a little.

Unsightly and Painful Sties Due to Carelessness

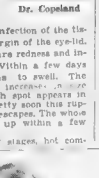
By DR. R. S. COPELAND

VERY FEW persons escape that annoying and distressing condition known as stye. You don't need to be a doctor to recognize it. It is unpleasant to look at and certainly contributes to an appearance of real misery.

It is amusing to hear various theories given as to the cause of sty. "Bad blood" and overuse of the eyes are among the most frequent explanations.

A sty is an infection of the tissues in the margin of the eyelid. At first there are redness and inflammation. Within a few days the spot begins to swell. The inflamed area increases in size and a yellowish spot appears in its center. Pretty soon this ruptures and pus escapes. The whole trouble clears up within a few days.

In the early stages, hot compresses should be applied to the sty. Hot boric acid solution is excellent to use in this way. The heat brings the sty to a head and hastens the escape of pus.



Dr. Copeland

Sties often recur. For this reason vaccine injections have been recommended to head off these repeated "crops."

Sties are caused by infection of the lids. This may be due to rubbing the eyes with dirty hands. Another factor is a run-down condition. When the body is in good health, and the powers of resistance are normal, sties will not occur.

The prevention is simple. Avoid rubbing the eyes with your hands. If you do a lot of reading and use your eyes excessively, your eyes should be tested. If there is any defect in vision glasses should be worn.

Please remember that recurring sties are a sign that you are indulging in habits that are injurious to your health. Correct your habits. Keep the eyes clean. Eat abundantly of foods that supply the necessary vitamins. Make it a point to obtain sufficient sleep.

To make Children

EAT

Don't force children to eat! The girl or boy who has no appetite has stasis—which means the child is sluggish. But cathartics have caused more constipation than they ever cured! The "California treatment" is best—just pure fig syrup. Try this for a few days then see how eagerly your youngster will eat.

How to Conquer Sluggishness

Stimulate the colon and that child with a finicky appetite will devour everything set before him. Here's the simple treatment that does more for babies or older children than all the diets, fad foods, or tonics.

Nature has provided the only "medicine" you'll need to stir a child's colon muscles into proper action. California fig syrup. Pure, delicious, harmless. It acts on the lower colon—where the trouble is. It has no ill effects on the intestines

Begin tonight, with this marvelous "California treatment." Any druggist has California fig syrup, all bottled, with directions. Use enough the first time to cleanse the clogged colon of every bit of poison and hard waste. Then just a little dose a week, until the child's appetite, color, weight and spirits tell you the stasis is gone. Whenever a cold or other upset clogs the system again, use this natural vegetable laxative instead of drastic drugs.

WARNING

There are dealers who practice substitution. Be sure to protect your child by looking for the name CALIFORNIA on the bottle.

THE BEAST OF THE CITY

Gold Truck Wrecked in Flight

In some cities they treat their prisoners with strong medicine. They have at the detective bureau what is known as the "golf hose room." The etymology is obscure, unless it was derived from the expression of a well known writer who made a crack about "as much privacy as a goldfish." A cook in the goldfish room certainly doesn't have any physical or mental privacy. Anyway, the bad boys are shown the "goldfish" with a rubber hose with which they are reasoned until they are ready to tell the truth or tell what the cops want them to.

In other cities they employ a little more finesse. The third degree is not as brutal. The dicks try to break down the suspect's reason in a more psychological manner. They keep him awake in relays, give him cigarettes without a match, put water just out of reach of his parched lips and pound questions into his befuddled brain until he is ready to tell anything just to get a little rest and respect.

Nicholas Mike Mahaffey and Ginger Sam Morgan were not what you would call experienced criminals. That is, not versed up to the higher elements of criminality. They had started off life as shoplifters, and robbed push cart and chiseled delicatessen owners. They had graduated in time into the class of safes. Until they had gotten in with the Helm mob they had always taken their jail sentences philosophically and they had taken their beatings from the cops much the same way.

They were up against a touch proposition when they were dragged into headquarters along with a score of other members of the Helm mobile crowd, because a job had been done. The police could prove the running-out of Helm orders in part or in total success, but when one of the gang was revealed as being a police department interest it put quite a different complexion on the matter.

Lieutenant Mandelbaum had been shot to death and he was a personal friend of the chief attaches, so it's safe to say that no effort was spared in getting results.

Sam Helm, Mike Mahaffey and Ginger Sam Morgan were identified in the line-up by three people as the ones who were in the truck and who fled after they had wrecked it against an elevated pillar and stole the $200,000 in gold bullion. In the getaway had been found two pairs of discarded overalls and some greasy hats but dressed in their pinch-backed suits the two were picked out as the lifting car store owner, the kitty boy and an old woman had all seen them. Nobody else had. Tom recognized.

No need as the man who had leaned out the side of the truck and who had done the shooting.

In the office of Chief Fighting Jim Fitzpatrick the two were stood and surly and ready with grunted denials.

"We was at a party dat day," protested "Sa-neck."

"What were you doing at a party that time of day?" demanded Jim, pacing up and down before the slouched figure in the chair.

"It was a card party—we'd been gamblin' all night," he insisted.

"And did you win?"

"Naw—I lose ten bucks."

"And how much did you lose, Slim?" asked Jim, turning on the other.

"I lose six bucks," muttered "Ginger Slim."

"How many were in the game?"

"Three o' us—" began Mahaffey.

"Four o' us—" said Slim at the same time.

"Huh!" exclaimed Jim. Then turning to Tom and three other hicky detectives who were standing by serenely by, he said, "I guess that's the pay-off—go ahead and work on 'em, boys."

Third degree worked on the gangsters produces startling results. Read tomorrow's Installment.

She Better Not Hasten to Wed

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I have been keeping steady company for over a year. Recently my fiance had a call from his old girl friend (who is married), asking him to come down to her house because her baby was sick. He went down there and it seems he is going there continually. He comes to see me late every night—do you suppose he goes there first? Should I stop seeing him and go out with others? He says he plans to marry me and has given me a diamond ring. Please advise me what to do. I am 18 years old, rather nice looking, dress well, dance and am musical. So you see I can get along without him, although I do care a great deal for him.

PUZZLED.

Dear Puzzled: Where was this young woman's husband that she had to send to a former friend when her baby was taken sick? The situation looks queer to me; ask him what it all means, and if he tells you he still visits her, I'd hesitate before marrying him.

Etiquette for the Escort

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

On various occasions lately my escort has taken hold of my arm while wanking along the street. This I resent very much, but I have been wondering if I am in the wrong about the matter, will you kindly advise me just when it is considered good form for a man to hold the lady's arm?

H.

It is never good form for the man to take the woman's arm. On certain occasions it is correct for him to offer his arm for instance, when he is an usher at a wedding, or when she needs his assistance in crossing the crowded thoroughfare or in walking on an icy pavement. He may, if he wishes, as they are crossing the street, put his hand under her elbow, but he should not take her arm.

An Invitation

DEAR MRS. BECKMAN:

If Mrs. Jones tells Mrs. Smith to tell me that she wants me to come for supper on Monday night, shall I accept the invitation or wait until Mrs. Jones personally invites me?

E.

If I were you, I should wait until Mrs. Jones herself invites you to come to dinner.

Story of the Ice Box Cake

By MARTHA LEE.

IT'S A NEW KIND of story. It can't be told, or sung, or written—it must be eaten! Actually it's the only way to appreciate an Ice Box Cake. But after you have eaten it, then you will tell about it, and sing about it, too. Richness — smoothness — wonderful flavor—ease of making—and economy. A combination you don't find every day. And it's sweetened condensed milk that does it. Try this recipe and make the welkin ring around home sweet home

ICE BOX CAKE

2 sqs. unsweetened chocolate
1 can sweetened condensed milk.
2 eggs
1 dozen lady fingers.

Melt chocolate in a double boiler and add condensed milk. Stir over hot water for about five minutes until it thickens. Add beaten egg yolks, diluted with a little of the hot liquid, and cook for five minutes. Add egg whites beaten stiff and cook for a couple of minutes. Line the bottom and sides of a mold with split lady fingers, placing the round side out. Fill the center with the pudding mixture and cover with lady fingers. Set on ice for eight or more hours. Turn out on a serving plate and serve with cream or custard sauce

And here's a price frosting that's easy as scat! And ever so good.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING

1 1-3 cups sweetened condensed milk.
1 tbsp. water.

Melt chocolate in double boiler and add condensed milk, stirring until it thickens. Add water. Cool cake before spreading frosting. (Four squares of chocolate may be used if bitter-sweet icing is desired.)

Hints of the Beauty Box

WHEN THE GREY day comes, illusions gone to pot, dreams all shattered, the old cheek book balance looks sick, the reflection in the mirror a calamity, chase out on a beautifying spree. Buy a manicure and a new coiffure. The outlay is not much and the results are revivifying. When a woman doesn't look well she can't feel well.

THE SMALL muscles of the face are the ones that give way first. Some of them are close to the surface of the skin, and that's why gentle slapping and patting have a way of rejuvenating the complexion that has gone on a slump slide. Cold water hardens tissues, it should be used freely several times a day when fine lines have started to appear and the skin has lost tone, gone gray

Daily True Story

The Girl or the Job?

IT WAS a difficult thing for Rita Parkins to decide, and the fact that it had been so unexpected, so overwhelming, added to her perplexity.

Who would have thought that Mr. Garnerson would have singled her out and asked her to marry him — Mr. Garnerson, whose wealth and business success had made him a nationally known figure.

Rita tried to analyze the situation—here she was a secretary in his office—she called him old but he was really only about 45, and he looked 10 years younger. She surveyed herself in the glass and did her best to see what it was that had attracted him. Yes, she was pretty and wholesome—with deep gray eyes and a figure that any girl might be proud of, but what was there about her that the girls Mr. Garnerson met in his own set did not have? That was a question she endeavored in vain to answer.

Two years ago she might have jumped at the chance, but there was a hitch now and that was Jimmy Carlton. She and Jimmy were the best of pals—they dined together, they went to theaters together, they went on picnics and they told each other their hopes and fears.

"Just you wait," Jimmy was always saying. "One of these days I'm going to spring a surprise on you and when I do—"

"Well, when you do," repeated Rita.

"When I do," he took her hand, "you're going to agree with me."

That was the nearest Jimmy had ever come to asking Rita to marry him—at least, she supposed that was what he meant. And she knew, too, that when he asked her she would say yes—

And then, out of a clear sky, Mr. Garnerson had stopped her one afternoon when the office force had gone and asked her how she'd like to give up her job for a better one. At first she didn't understand, but she wasn't long left in doubt. Mr. Garnerson was holding her hands and talking to her like a young and devoted lover.

"THINK IT OVER"

She reddened and stammered—as a didn't know what to think—the vision of herself as Mrs Peter Garnerson rose before her and then the vision of herself as Mrs. Jimmy Carlton—"I—I don't know what to say," she faltered, "won't you let me think it over—are you sure—sure?"

"It's the first time in my life I've been sure," said Mr. Garnerson, "if I weren't sure do you think I'd be offering you my name and my home—no, my dear—but don't let me hurry you—think it over and keep it between ourselves until you decide, will you?"

"Of course I will," said Rita, "and thank you for being so nice about it—you'll admit it's a bit startling, won't you?"

Mr. Garnerson smiled. "Perhaps," he said, "naturally I'll be flattered if you accept me for myself, and but I'm not blind to the fact that I really can give you a lot of the things that make life easier—that will be my pleasure—the greatest pleasure I've ever had."

So Rita, her brain in a whirl, went home to think it over and that very night Jimmy came to her two-room flat in the village to tell her he was going away. But he didn't seem discouraged or sorry.

"At last," he said, trying hard to conceal his excitement, "I've got the thing I've been working for—I'm going to South America for the Rand R. Co.—you know they do a lot of exporting to the Argentine and you know too I've been studying Spanish—I knew it would be valuable—I've got a contract for three years at a fine salary and what a chance for advancement—"

"Sit down," said Rita, "and tell me all about it." Her heart was beating a tattoo and she wondered when Jimmy would say what she had been expecting Him to say for two years past.

Jimmy went into details. He was sailing in two days. He took out the contract and showed it to her—three times the sum he was earning now. "Oh! Boy" said Jimmy, "away from this damned city."

Rita looked at him. She didn't seem to enter into his thoughts.

"Day after tomorrow," she said, "for three years. What are you going to do about your flat?"

"I've given it up," Jimmy explained. "I'll miss seeing you, of course—we've been around a lot together, haven't we? Perhaps you'll write me now and then, will you?"

MEETS JIMMY AGAIN

"Sure," said Rita. "I'll write you, and drop me a line too, will you. I'm a little tired tonight, Jimmy, so I'll say good night—I don't see you again—good luck."

"Thanks," said Jimmy. . . .

It was a little over three years later when Rita, now Mrs. Peter Garnerson, met Jimmy on the street. She was not even conscious of excitement. "Hello," she greeted him, "so you're back."

"Sh'," it's good to see you again, Rita," said Jimmy. "I made a great mistake when I went South, but it's too late to repent now. I got the announcement of your marriage—I hope you're happy."

"Very," said Rita. "The unusual spectacle of a woman in love with her husband."

"You know," said Jimmy ruefully, "I had to agree not to marry during the term of my contract—that was the reason I didn't ask you what I'd always wanted to ask you—I've often wondered why they put that in."

But of course Jimmy couldn't know that Peter Garnerson was deeply interested in the R. & R. Co., and he had figured if Jimmy was really in love he'd have thrown up the job for the girl—but like a wise husband, he never said anything about that to his charming wife.

One earnest young lady, Miss Dorothea Frothingham, has been helping right along by lending her home for meetings of her many friends, where they gather to knit and crochet baby clothes for the children of the unemployed. Every Thursday afternoon a large group stop their roadsters at 256 Beacon st., with knitting bags in hand and hurry up to the Frothingham apartment to do their bit. Sometimes they stay an hour, sometimes all of the afternoon, depending on how much time they can devote to it, and anyone who can crochet or knit is very welcome.

Barbara Bremer tried to look casual with a tall brunette swain, in white taffeta and green jacket, and Madelyn Phillips appeared with a beau in sport togs. Very smartly costumed in evening wrap, Mrs. John W. Hallowell was escorted by her handsome son, Roger, a perfect giant of a chap. We remember meeting him last year, and what a charmer he was.

Home fairly early through the desolate streets for last night's taxing social events chances that I was forced to speak sharply to him; but he paid not the slightest attention to my pleas to go more cautiously.

Thursday, Jan. 21: Read how the old Brevoort House had been sold to a chain hotel and felt sad that one of my favorite haunts would now lose its color and atmosphere. But all things that we love vanish sooner or later in these rushing times. "Change, change unceasing is the city's cry," I said to myself, and now the last picturesque landmark on Lower Fifth ave. is to disappear, which caused me to feel sad all day as I went hither and thither in the rain.

In the evening to take "Babe" Emery, who had been my hostess in Cincinnati at Christmas time, to a small dinner party, and we recalled the happy hours we had spent at "Peterloon," her beautiful country estate. Home around midnight.

• • •

Friday, January 22d: Beatrix Demarest Lloyd, the writer, came to lunch with me; and as we had not seen each other in many years, we had the most joyful time talking of old days; and we found we agreed on every conceivable subject and wished that we might run this country of ours for a little while, so that people would be happy and carefree again. Then to my office, and home late, yet in time to take Lady Vi to dine at an enormous house which I always loved; and I ate my fill of baked finnan-haddie, one of my favorite dishes.

• • •

Saturday, January 23d: Read how the Methodist Church is to discard many of the antiquated hymns, the words of which always depressed me, with phrases like "Such a worm as I," and other exaggerated imagery; and this, I thought, was sensible and a long step in the right direction.

To my tailor's for a fitting, a duty which always bores me exceedingly. Then, in the pouring rain, to Larchmont to the wedding of Wotan Maximilian Zoellner and Beatrix Zerbe.

Back to the city about six o'clock and Dow Walling, the cartoonist, Bob Otto and J. Denison came to dinner and to play bridge. To bed fairly early, listening to the rain pattering outside, and soon fell into a pleasant slumber.

• • •

Sunday, January 24th: A wonderful morning of bright sunshine and I longed to go for a walk but would not do so until I had finished some work. So, toward lunch time for a brisk stroll up the avenue. Then later in the reception at Mabel Wright's. Finding many old friends there; and on to Julia Weldon's in Murray Hill.

In the evening to Mary and Oliver Filley's to dine, finding the beautiful Pierre Hall there, who sings in The Cat and the Fiddle.

How Do Nurses Manage?

Many nurses know that it is not a necessity and is always safe to take at this critical time. Midol is not merely a remedy of relief — it lets women work or play in absolute comfort regardless of the time of month. All pain subsides in seven minutes. All dread of your periodic discomfort ends with this happy discovery. Any drug store. Ask simply for Midol.

Spanish Soloist in American Debut Here

To bridge over a rather dull part of the season, we will look forward to February and see what the calendar holds in the way of social affairs. There are just one or two highlights, but many are the benefits.

On the 25th, another Spaniard makes an American debut in the world of music—Conchita Supervia will appear in Symphony Hall at 8:30 o'clock on that evening, Thursday, to aid the Denison House. The directors of this settlement house are working with the management of Symphony Hall to make this event a success, a good percentage of the proceeds going to help their worthy cause.

Among Directors

In this group of directors are Mr. Charles Boyd, Mrs. Waldo H. Brown, Miss Helen Cheever, Mrs. F. Lyman Clark, Mrs. Lucius T. Hill, Mr. Oscar S. Hodgkins, Miss Eleanor Ives, Mrs. Waldo Kendall, Mrs. Gilbert King, Mrs. Adolphe Lesde, Mrs. Robert Livermore, Mr. Leo Marino and Mrs. Joseph V. Moiga.

Another group, forming an assisting committee, who are interested and generous philanthropists, includes Miss Dai Pugil, Mrs. Morgan Butler, Mrs. James H. Cave, Mrs. William Ellery, Mrs. F. Murray Forbes, Mrs. Malcolm Lang, Miss Rosamond Musgrave, Mrs. Edwin Ohl, Miss Margaret Otis, Mrs. Edward M. Pickman and Mrs. Dudley P. Ranney.

Washington Fete

On Feb. 6, 30 different organizations in and around Boston will gather in Symphony Hall to present a George Washington anniversary entertainment.

On the list of those in charge of this event appear the names of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, 2nd, Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. John L. Thorndike, Mrs. Bertrett Wendell, Mrs. Delano Wight, Mrs. James R. Hooper, Mrs. John Chipman Gray, Mrs. William Sheley Parker, Mrs. William A. Copeland, Mrs. George W. Knowlton, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Prof. and Mrs. Charles J. Tolbert and Sen. and Mrs. Frederick E. Judd.

Mrs. Carl L. Schrader will act as chairman of the various committees, each organization being represented by its president in those committees.

Tammany Issue to Be Put to Roosevelt

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 28 (INS.) Republican legislative leaders are planning today to force Gov. Roosevelt, who has declared himself a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, to take a definite stand in relation to Tammany Hall.

They will sponsor a special bill for appropriation of $15,000, or more, for the Hofstadter Committee investigating New York City.

DEBUTANTES AT LECTURE

MISS CHASE MISS ROBERTS

TWO DEBUTANTE Junior Leaguers who are taking the provisional course, snapped as they are entering league headquarters. They are Miss Ruth Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Chase of Milton and Miss Grace Roberts, daughter of Mrs. James A. Roberts, also of Milton.

Hospital Fund Benefit Held

The Deaconess Hospital fund benefited last night through the efforts of Miss Miriam O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rose Lincoln O'Brien and of Elmer L. Mode and supporting musicians of the Boston University school of music when they entertained at Jacob Sleeper Hall.

Miss O'Brien, an experienced mountain climber, gave an illustrated talk entitled "Through the Alps with Rope and Ski."

Luncheon for Bridesmaids

Miss Mary Vance is to be hostess at a luncheon tomorrow at the Quincy Club for the bridesmaids who will attend Miss Beatrice Clough at her marriage to Mr. Job Deakin Bathbone of London Eng., next Saturday.

The whole bridal party will be entertained tomorrow evening at dinner at the home of Mrs. Daniel Comstock.

Betty Berry to Be Bride of Rogers Dunn

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, Jan. 28 (US) Just about a year ago I had the honor of announcing the betrothal of the effective Betty Berry to Rogers Cleveland Dunn, son of the Cleveland Dunns of Scarsdale.

Betty and the man of her choice yesterday visited the municipal building and obtained a license to wed. They explained that the wedding bells will peal out on Saturday next.

Betty, who made her debut back in 1929, has played an important part in the gyrations of the post debutante set and has been one of the active members of the Junior League. Following her attendance at Miss Nixon's School in Florence Italy, she completed her studies at the Sorbonne in Paris.

Heiress Heart Free

The story to the effect that Doris Duke was sent by her mater, Mrs. "Jim" Duke, to California to break up an objectionable affaire de coeur is nothing but just so much tommyrot.

In the first place Doris planned to desert Gotham after the holidays and the arrangements for her trip were made weeks in advance. Secondly, Doris is and has been for some months past, heart and fancy, fancy free. She has no especial beau although certain aspiring young men will tell you if you pause to listen, that they have the inside track in Doris' affections and no one is quicker to discover an "underdraft" than the young woman who—rather being referred to as the richest young woman in the world.

Values Money

Being the daughter of her father Doris is blessed with an abundance of gray matter—and she probably will think twice, perhaps three times before she marries. Yes.

Incidentally, despite her fortune of many, many millions there is nothing of the spendthrift about Doris Duke. She knows well there are 101 cents in a dollar, and when shopping she makes certain she gets her money's worth.

Pilgrims View Saint's Body

Portuguese India, Jan. 28—By special dispensation of the governor, the ecclesiastical authorities opened the coffin of St. Francis Xavier yesterday to permit several hundred pilgrims, some of them from the United States, to view the anointed body.

St. Francis died 400 years ago in China and though the body never was embalmed, it has been declared to be in a perfect state of preservation.

After the special exhibition it was placed in the coffin again and will not be disturbed for another 10 years.

DISASTER IN BANKING BILL, BANKERS SAY

By B. C. FORBES

Twenty reconstruction finance corporations could not undo the havoc that would be wrought upon the country by placing the so-called Glass bank bill on the statute books.

That is the emphatic statement made by practical bankers who have studied the lengthy, many-clauses, revolutionary measure Listen to these comments

"It should be called a law to inflict further deflation."

"It would drive both city and country banks galore out of the Federal Reserve System."

"The authors of the bill seem to be daath on investors, anxious to impose penalties on those who have saved money and acquired securities."

"It has always been considered all right for a person to borrow money on his home or any other property—even on an automobile but whoever wrote this bill—it couldn't have been Senator Glass himself—apparently is opposed to anyone borrowing on bonds and stocks."

Forcing Water to Flow Uphill

"It would make it extremely difficult, under certain conditions impossible, for metropolitan banks to meet hurried demands for accommodation from country correspondents."

"The bill would attempt to prevent capital from moving normally, from moving into the most attractive channels. You might just as reasonably pass a law that water must run up hill.

Precipitate Financial Panic

"Were this extraordinary production to be made law, it would precipitate a banking and financial panic worse than anything ever witnessed in this country. It would make it impossible for any open market banks to function remotely along normal, accepted lines.

"As a director of a Federal Reserve Bank, I would have to get permission from the federal reserve board at Washington before I could invite to lunch anybody connected with a foreign bank, and, if I were given permission, I would have to report to the board everything I said and everything my luncheon guest said.

Too Many Legal Curbs Now

"The bill would punish the American people for the inflation of 1927-1929 by forcing further deflation in 1932

"It would force contraction of federal reserve currency and credit by forcing member banks to discriminate against loans on securities as collateral—this notwithstanding that banks throughout the country hold a large amount of bonds.

"It stipulates that no bank shall hold the obligations of any company which has not earned 4 per cent on its stock in each of the last five years—this though measures have had to be taken to relieve banking institutions from stipulations already on the statute books prescribing when investments can be legally held."

Detriment to Treasury

"It shoots to pieces the system of discounting 15-day notes at reserve banks."

"It would force obligations out of the banks to the detriment of the United States Treasury."

"The authors reveal that they imagine money can be made cheap for business and dear for speculation."

"The Glass bill, to the amusement of those familiar with the stand taken originally by Senator Glass, would concentrate all power in Washington and make mere puppets of those administrating and directing the affairs of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks."

The writer does not vouch for the soundness of each and every one of these criticisms; but obviously it is essential that such a revolutionary punitive piece of legislation should not be railroaded on to the statute books, but should be exposed to public hearings.

There has been altogether too great a tendency lately to push through legislation without adequate opportunity for passing calm, mature judgment on its pros and cons.

Notes and Gossip About People You Know

$633,000 A DAY IS INVESTED

EXPENSIVE MEALS

Apropos of the open letter sent to Councilor Chester I. Campbell by Rep. Nelson B. Crosby, of Arlington, criticising the weekly luncheon bill of the executive council, investigation reveals that the charge for these meals to the state is 82 a...ists. The monthly bill runs between $90 and $100. It is a custom of long standing.

BILLS RUN HIGH

Incidentally, various members of the council would like to see Rep. Crosby apply his economy ideas to the traveling expenses of the legislative committees and to special commissions. It is claimed that an investigation along this line would disclose some Luge bills for meals by legislators and others. It is the boast of the former of this institution, it is said, that he never eats lobster except at the state's expense.

CHARGE A JOKE

Commissioner of Civil Service Paul E. Tierney regards the "temporarily unfit" charge lightly hurled at him by Rep. Lewis R. Sullivan, of Dorchester, as a joke. The idea, he said, could be tossed upon and crooned over the radio.

APPOINTS MAHONEY

Mayor Curley last night approved the appointment of former City Councillor Michael J. Mahoney of South Boston as court officer and constable in the penal institutions department. "Mike," who was defeated recently in his campaign for re-election in Ward 6, is the man who declared at a meeting of the Council last year that he would vote to sell Boston Common if the mayor favored it, and his appointment is in the nature of a reward for long and faithful service.

PICK GLYNN

Members of the David I Walsh Club of Roxbury today presented former Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn with a resolution, passed unanimously by the body calling on him to be their candidate for election as delegate to the Democratic national convention from the 10th Congressional district. "Teddy" has arrived at no decision on the matter as yet.

TIE THE KNOT

Miss Mary Barry of the city clerk's office was married in Mission Church, Roxbury, yesterday to John J Lynch of the same division of the city public works department. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Renehan, C. S. S. R.

KENT HONOR GUEST

Oscar J. Kent of the city soldiers' relief department is to be one of the guests of honor at the eighth annual charity ball of the South Boston Italian-American Citizens' Club in Hotel Bradford on Monday, February 1.

Financial News, Stocks, Bonds and Comment

STATE ST. Hears:

That the much-advertised dividend meeting and earnings statement are not raising the havoc the bears confidently expected they would. The price structure has held up fairly well, and it will require more than sellers have shown to date if the resistance at 76 is to be overcome.

The Situation

What promised to be a lively week has, so far, been a rather dreary affair. News that under ordinary circumstances would produce more definite activity is received stonically. It appears that the fright of last December at last accomp shed the purpose of preparing the markets for the very worst. Liquidation at that time so far over-reached itself that the current poor earnings reports are incapable of dislodging any appreciable volum. of selling. If, toward the close of the week, the cumulative effect of bad news succeeds in sending prices downward traders will still be wary of the bearish side They will feel that the underlying position must be quite substantial to resist concentrated selling and pessimism that long

Another factor that is undoubtedly working toward checking the exertion of securities in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation promise of help for frozen funds which itself proving enough to withhold sales that exaggerate deflation sufficiently to carry it to ridiculous extremes

The Bull Side

While the bear side is not as comfortable as its adherents had hoped it would be, there is, as yet, nothing to indicate the bull side can be adopted without risk Technically the best argument of the bulls rests with the action of the rails. This group is persistently refusing to follow the reactionary lead of the industrials. Whether their desire to remain a safe distance away from the early January low will prevail over attempts to push the industrials into new low ground must be answered by the tape

The industrial average is serious, near the 76 level and the most-watched signs of the board, considered the chief bull point, are not sufficient reason to risk overbalancing. Such bullish influences are usually the prelude to a slow, long-drawn-out bottom. It is the sincere hope of conservative observers that this is the case

Boardroom Briefs

Rumors of foreign selling that accompanied other selling drives are again brushed about State Street. Hasty sellers of Wrigley found the offering few and far between when they tried to replace commitments . . . It is interesting to note that U. S. Steel lent flat on dividend day and yesterday after the news was out, at a premium. The Bay State and New York showing does not look as if the investing public will be ready to exercise the example of interstate Commerce Commission control of the nation's railroads. One purpose of this federal body was to protect the investor. Where, oh where is the promised 'fair return' many rail investors are now asking?

* * *

It was pointed out here yesterday that the latest available figures at Commonwealth Pr showed 475 00 automotive registrations this year against 670 in the same period of 1931. Our conclusions that the heavy compulsory insurance 'law' increase was at least in part responsible for the drop is given support by another set of figures which has just become available.

* * *

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel, of Connecticut, declared:

"On Jan. 15 there had been 231,618 motor vehicles of all registered for 1932. For the same period Jan. 15, 1932, there were 235,535 motor vehicles of all classes registered for 1932. This shows an increase of 3807 registrations for 1932 over 1931 during these periods.

Connecticut, like all the other states outside of Massachusetts, has no compulsory insurance law.

DIRECTORS ACT DIFFERENTLY ON SAME IDEA

By FRANK H. MELOON

The Delphic oracle was never more mysterious than the U. S. Steel utterance

"It is manifest that conditions of dividends must depend upon an improvement in the corporation's volume of business and earnings."

The writing partner of one big Boston investment house aptly describes this as

"Both clear and vague"

* * *

The declaration of Pennsylvania's dividend at the regular rate, which gave a quick cheer through Wall and State sts, was accompanied by a declaration similar to that of the steel magnates. It read:

"In view of continued unfavorable condition of railroads, it is evident that the payment of dividends cannot continue unless there is a marked increase in the company's income."

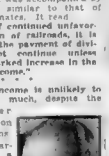
* * *

The rails' income is unlikely to increase very much, despite the current over emphasis on war reductions unless there are carriers have a material pickup in business volume This obvious fact considered in connection with the Pennsy. utterance, makes a trend substantially the same as U. S. Steel's With the same in mind, one board of directors



Allan M. Pope

may pass the dividend, and the other halves it

* * *

Investment Bankers' Assn. of America, of which Allan M Pope executive vice-president of the First National-Old Colony Corp. is president, finds the electric light and power companies, as not infrequently observed in this column have weathered the economic storms quite as successfully as any other stock market group. An association report shows that, of bonds eligible for savings banks and trust investment in Massachusetts and New York, the nation's most carefully guarded and regulated market area, not a single electric light or power company bond has been removed from the list, with the exception of one in the Empire State

* * *

Investment Bankers' Association sees in this a major argument against federal interference, either "remote" or "bureaucratic". Chairman George Otis Smith of, the Federal Power Commission however, thinks there should be federal control, eating as one res ...ve energy of the holders. The Glass bill would seem that there was more short selling than was justified when this particular news was made known . . . Heaviness of Westinghouse is said to be due to heavy offerings . . . The Glass banking bill will never come out of conference according to Washington observers

Grains Are Higher in Chicago Market

Chicago, Jan. 28 (AP)—Grains leaped upward early today after hesitating at the start. Forecasts of a cold wave were a bullish influence and there was a falling off in Russian wheat shipments with Argentine estimate exports less than expected.

Opening at ½ decline to ¼ advance, wheat later showed quick all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ off and then made a consi... ...ntain.

Second-Hand Copper Sells Under 7 Cents

While producers generally are holding copper at 7½ cents, says Metal & Mineral Markets, a little business has been done at 7¼ cents. The presence of second hand metal at less than 8 cents does not help the situation. At present it is doubtful whether more copper is moving into consumption than it being produced even under the curtailment that went into operation January 1.

CONSENSUS of opinion in brokerage circles today was that the main hope for a sizable immediate rally appears to exist in a cheerful announcement out of Chicago

Gulf States Steel Cuts Its Cost

Evidence that some of the independent steel producers are managing to make costs fall in line with reduced demands and are likely to show to better advantage than the United States Steel Corp. is contained in the income statement of Gulf States Steel for the fourth quarter of 1931. The operating profit for the three months was the largest since June 30, 1930, despite the fact that the past year and a half steel activity has been on the down trend. With any rise in steel demands in the South, Gulf States soon would be able to improve its position as a result of the lowered cost.

Drug's Earnings Estimates Made

Expectations in some quarters are that Drug, Inc., for 1931 was able to record profits equal to about $5.50 a share. This is considered satisfactory in view of the generally unfavorable business conditions It is said that earnings of the company were affected particularly during the final months of the year when comparatively high temperatures reduced the buying of proprietary medicines usually sold in large quantities at that time

The company has a most extensive distribution system through its various stores and affiliations, but it is believed probable that the branch of the business was only a nominal contributor toward earnings last year. The best results were from the well known and extensively advertised, manufactured products, for which demand has been quite large right along as many of these are classed as necessities in households

Liggett & Myers' Financial Position

Comment on the strong financial position of Liggett & Myers is heard in many quarters. The report last week showed that the company had sufficient current assets to cover all current liabilities, bonds outstanding and preferred stock in full with $32 a share left for the common stock Cash and marketable securities alone were equal to $31½ a common share, while the total book value of $61 was in excess of the current selling price for the stock. It is considered natural that investors in the future will give more attention to financial conditions than they did during the period of great speculation a few years ago.

Peoples Gas 1931 Earnings

Earnings of Peoples Gas, Light & Coke Co. for 1931 were equal to $10.66 a common share, compared with $11.31 in 1930. However, the small decline in per share results was due to increased interest and depreciation during the year. Actual net was $7,561,562, against $7,187,072 in 1930. The company serves Chicago and results for last year are viewed as encouraging in view of general business conditions

Depreciation Eats Up Steel Income

Extreme liberality of the Steel Corporation in the matter of depreciation write-off against 1931 earnings was as lively a topic of discussion as the conjecture over what actually transpired at the meeting of directors Talk persisted that the board members had agreed on a split between maintaining the former $1 quarterly basis and entire earnings, but that was not the distribution was voted as a compromise. The faction headed by Chairman Gary is said to have favored the one course and the banking group the second procedure

Reformed Bear Is Seen as Backslider

Duration of Previous Downswings Traced

One market observer notes with great interest that each of the past three major downswings in the stock market ran through between 31 and 32 actual sessions. The decline extended from September 7 to December appointed to 22.4 per cent; from March to June, 1931, it was 22.2 per cent, and from July to September, last year, to 23.1 per cent. He figures the latest downswing, which had its inception in November, in order to follow the rule of precedent, will not be definitely terminated until mid-February

Bank Loan Selling of Telephone Issue

Latest pressure against American Telephone is attributed to liquidation of a bank loan

Europe Resumes Utility Selling

Disappointing action of utility stocks throughout the recent rally induced considerable liquidation in the group yesterday from Europeans as well as domestic holders. The selling from abroad was reported as particularly urgent, and was probably influenced by belief that several issues were still comparatively overvalued on a price-earning basis. Bearish feeling toward the utilities was doubtless intensified by the announcement that the latest statistics on electric power output in this country, covering the week, showed a decline for the past week

Halving of Timken Dividend Expected

One Wall Street report runs to the effect that the Timken dividend will be halved at the forthcoming directors' meeting in the company's strong current position.

Gold Dust Fails to Earn Dividend

Current estimates indicate Gold Dust will fall short of dividend requirements in 1931. The report, due shortly, is expected to show less than $2 a share for the stock after inventory adjustment. Raw and finished products on hand the end of the year are understood to have been written down some 33 per cent, or about the same as the year before. Net profit for 1930 amounted to $3.81 a share on the common stock.

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Shields & Co.—Bethlehem Steel directors meet today for dividend and to announce earnings for the final quarter of last year. They will make their statement after the close and advance estimates indicate profit was earned. dividend was earned for the period. No declaration on the common is expected. Any rallies due to the technical condition or momentary response to favorable settlement at Chicago, would but temporarily interrupt the major price trend.

* * *

Whitney & Elwell—American Telephone at 113½ and General Electric at 30 yield 8 per cent on existing dividends. Practically 7 per cent would still be obtainable on American Telephone at 115 if the dividend rate was reduced from $9 to $8. On General Electric a 7 per cent yield would be obtainable at 26 if the dividend rate was reduced from $1.60 to $1.40, and one of 8 per cent if it was further reduced to $1.20 The latter figure was probably well covered by earnings in 1931.

* * *

F. B. Keech & Co.—The waiting attitude now assumed has elements of strength as practically assure higher prices for commodities and securities.

* * *

Russell, Miller & Co.—We feel that the trend of the market is definitely bearish.

* * *

Edward B. Smith & Co.—We believe that the main trend of the market is downward

* * *

Hornblower & Weeks—Insofar as a general market policy is concerned at this time we would continue to limit any commitments to a short term trading basis until such time as developments rather than technical conditions within the market itself warrant a different attitude.

BOSTON STOCK PRICE RANGE IS NARROW

Trading was dull on the Boston Stock Exchange today The range of price changes was unusually narrow being confined to fractions for nearly all purely local issues

Exceptions were Eastern Gas preferred, off over 3, and the prior preferred, off over 2 points

American Telephone, Gillette American Woolen preferred, Kreuger & Toll and United Shoe all changed hands up moderately. New Haven was easy. Utility Equities preferred was up over 2 points, Boston & Maine advanced a point

Net earnings of Kreuger & Toll Co. for the 1931 year, before interest on funded debt, amounted to approximately $23,500,000. After interest on secured debentures, there remained approximately $21,000,000 compared with $32,780,279 for 1930, before providing for interest on the participating debentures and dividends. This corresponds to approximately $2 19 for every American certificate representing participating debentures of 20 kronor each, as against $ 04 for 1930

Ralph T. Crane of Brown Bros Harriman & Co was elected a director of American Ice Co succeeding Charles D Dickey resigned. Alfred W. Haywood has been elected a member of executive committee, succeeding Mr Dickey.

BOSTON STOCK PRICE RANGE IS NARROW

Tape Action

It will be noted that a number of banking speculative favorites was particularly weak in Wednesday's session, notably U. S. Steel, American Telephone, and Allied Chemical, but the stubborn resistance put up by the main body of stocks lends color to the belief that accumulation is taking places by important interests under the cover of selling in the more prominent issues.

However, it is yet too early to jump to conclusions of this sort, but however skeptical one may be, there is no denying the fact that on several sharp breaks the report the general stock list refused to be thrown into retreat, while the rail group actually was able to make headway

Conflicting Views

Therefore, we find close market observers in somewhat of a muddle as to the moment, but certain levels are called for, but in contrast to such bearish constructive interests emphasize the following two elements in the situation which are working against any pronounced downward course. First, the rails, which have led the market down in previous selling waves, are maintaining their January price gains better than the utilities and industrials; and, second, the bond market is not encountering an large amount of additional liquidation

* * *

Another thing that one might keep in mind is that, with the dupond of the U. S. Steel earnings report, probably the worst in 1931 income statements has been seen. Therefore, any additional bad news of what took place during the past year can hardly come as a surprise. While it is altogether possible that isolated weakness may continue to crop up from time to time in the days of late, it is well to remember that the market habitually discounts the future, and if business decides to puck up, stock prices will hardly remain in their present rut

Industries Listed as Most Promising

The following industries, because of their excellent performance to date and their outlook for continued good business in the period during the early future, are listed by the Standard Statistics Co., in a compilation of 90 stock groups, as: Chain stores, cigarettes dairy products, electric and gas utilities, packaged foods, soaps, bakeries, telephones

Other lines afford but little promise of immediate improvement, are put in the "good" classification strictly on the basis that they unquestionably will be among the lead questionably will be among the first to show improvement in the next upswing in general business. These include Automobile parts, automobiles—passenger, beverages, flour and food, medicine and drugs, metal containers, refrigeration, welding supplies.

Meat Packers' Sales Decline 27% in 1931

Sales buied to domestic and foreign customers by United States meat packers during December, 1931 declined 27 per cent from 1930, due mainly to lower prices and reduced exports reports Dun's. Decrease in sales were 31½ per cent under the previous year and 10¾ per cent under November figures.

Czech Nat'l Bank Reports Net Profit

National Bank of Czechoslovakia reports a net profit for 1931 of 32,500,000 crowns, against 63,000,000 in 1930. Dividend of 235 crowns per share was paid, as against 300 in 1930. Losses which the bank suffered on its sterling holdings have been covered by the bank's reserves and profits

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—Cotton futures today were one to two points lower. March, 8.83; May, 6.79; July, 6.96; October, 7.17, December, 7.33.

SPECTATOR Says:

From an unbiased view, the stock market gave a surprisingly favorable account of itself in taking the U. S. Steel news with the nonchalance that it showed.

Operating Changes Next on Big Steel's Program

By Julius G. Berens

New York, Jan. 28—Without fanfare and without attracting nor seeking public notice, the United States Steel Corporation has consummated, with issuance of its 1931 annual report, the second of three major adjustments which the controlling element in the corporation determined upon for the assumption of power a few years back.

The steel management is now embarking upon the third phase of this readjustment. In brief, the three-point program follows

1. There was determined upon, and since carried into effect, complete el

PRICE TRENDS ARE MIXED IN WALL STREET

New York, Jan 28 Price trends were mixed in Wall Street dealings today. Most important shares showed small variations from yesterday's finish. U. S. Steel sold mostly fractionally lower.

The rails shared in the general heaviness, failing to exhibit a renewal of the brisk strength shown here yesterday.

RAILS SELL LOWER

Delaware & Hudson worked up a point as trading progressed, but Atchison and Southern Pacific at the same time lost a point. Hudson & Manhattan, American Bank Note and International Business Machines slipped back a point or so. Allied Chemical preferred was up 3 points.

American Tobacco's extra dividend brought profit taking, and the B stock sagged, but later rallied.

Leading bank executives said they had derived considerable satisfaction from the way recent offerings of private securities had been purchased. For the first time in many weeks, these spokesmen pointed out, there have been evidences of fair buying demand for first grade bonds or notes if offered at a satisfactory price.

During the last week the investment market has absorbed $350,000,000 of U. S. Treasury financing, a $60,000,000 New York City note issue, a $20,000,000 State of New York short-term flotation and books were opened today for a new issue of $25,000,000 of New York Edison bonds.

NO INFLATION.

Fresh evidences reaffirmed again today in a statement by Secretary Mellon, that inflation of American currency will be resisted, have helped materially, bankers said, to lay the fear of unbridled use of the money printing presses.

Foreign markets were quiet but steady. The pound sterling was moderately active with an early advance of ½ per cent to $3.47 cables.

A. Hollander & Son reports for year ended Dec. 31, 1931, net profit of $569 681 after interest, depreciation, federal taxes, etc., against $308 825 in 1930.

Certo dividend of General Foods Corp. showed the greatest sales in its history in 1931, surpassing 1930 by 30 per cent.

"Sales of this pectin ingredient in jams and jellies," says Vivien Frey, Francis, "were stimulated by the abundant crops of fruits and berries the past year and what appears to be an increase in home cooking."

CURB MARKET IS INACTIVE

New York, Jan 28 (INS): The curb market ruled virtually unchanged in one of the dullest forenoons of trading in years today, with only a handful of stocks putting in an appearance for the first hour or so.

Whatever slight changes were in evidence in the utility group were on the decline side, with American and Foreign Power warrants, American Superpower, Electric Bond and Share and United Gas among the issues to show a loss of exactly ¼ each.

Standard of Indiana was the only oil share to change hands, dipping to the 15 level for a net loss of ⅛.

United Founders received the distinction of being the sole investment trust to appear in the lists, quoted ⅛ lower at 2¼.

Pineapple Packer Operates in Red

New York, Jan. 28 Hawaiian Pineapple Co., Ltd., for 1931, reports net loss of $3,876,411 after charges, depreciation and income taxes, as against $2,423,360, against net profit of $5,931,848, equal to $3.58 a share on the 748,158 shares in 1930.

Dividends

Artloom Corporation declared a dividend of $1 on the preferred, payable March 1 to stock of record February 15. The remaining 25 cents due at this time has been deferred. Previously the company had been paying $1.75 quarterly.

* * *

United Stores Corporation declared a dividend of 31 cents per preferred, payable March 15 to stock of record February 25. Three months ago a similar payment was made.

* * *

Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company declared a quarterly dividend of 25 cents, payable February 29 to stock of record January 30 in the four periodical quarterly dividends of 30 cents each were declared.

* * *

Directors of Union Mills declared additional dividend in liquidation of $2 per share, making total liquidating dividends to date up to 82 per cent.

O'SHOCKER WEEPS AS WOUND GIVES LEWIS MAT WIN

FANNING

With GEORGE UNDERWOOD

McCluskey and Moore. They're at It Again! Big K. of C. Classic.

Thrills Galore When Gun Barks Saturday

Of course that mat duel at the Arena tonight—Al Morelli of Boston College vs. Bibber McCoy of Holy Cross—will have the fans roaring and yelling like a lot of delegates to the Peace Convention and, of course, we want to be there and exercise our larynx, too . . . But much as we want to see Bibber and Al dislocating their anatomies, we want to see one thing more . . . That's the K. of C.'s Prout Memorial Games in general, and the two-mile duel between Joe McCluskey and Gus Moore in particular in the Garden next Saturday night . . . That's going to be a foot race that even will warm the cockles of a heart as cold as a landlady's . . . Remember the duel between the Fordham Greyhound and the dusky-skinned flier from Brooklyn at the Boston A. A. meet last year? . . . Stride for stride from the crack of the pistol to the snapping of the tape . . . The colored boy won by a whisker in the last desperate lunge for the worsted . . . Not since stalwart John Daly of the old Winged Fishtes of New York and little John Deer, the Canadian redskin, fought their sensational battle in a Canadian championship, almost a quarter of a century ago, was there as red hot a battle from barrier break to tape tear as McCluskey and Moore put up there last year . . . Next Saturday's duel is likely to be a repetition . . . Boy, oh, boy, lead us to it!

McCLUSKEY

Speaking of John Deer, a parasang astern, we visited our old Injun pal on our way to the Saguenay last summer . . . Found him in a cabin in the Indian village a few miles outside of Montreal . . . The famous old Ojibway runner is making snowshoes for a living now . . . We thought we would surprise him . . . Pulling up our trousers so the scar of a spike wound John accidentally gave us in the Olympics would show, we pounded on the door, opened it a few inches and shoved our leg in . . . Silence for a second . . . The a guttural exclamation and Deer greeted: "Lo, George. B'gosh! When you get here?" . . . You can't fool an Injun, even if you do surprise him.

Before we leave the Injun runners did you ever hear the answer Tom Longboat made George Bonhag in the dressing room before a two-mile race in Buffalo. Fatherly George was advising the Flying Onondagan to give up his free and easy ways, save his money and get an education.

"Huh," grunted Longboat. "I beat you wit'out no ed'ucation!" And he did.

Farmer George McLeod, who wrestles Pat Reilly of the University of Texas, who comes of a line of Irish kings and claims lineal descent from Shaun the Bullock, is a peculiar cuss . . . He saws wood and likes it . . . We used to saw wood and didn't like it . . . Georgie! Have you forgotten your chores? I don't see that woodpile getting any big ger" . . . We wouldn't mind getting back to the woodpile now . . . We've found lots of tougher things than woodpiles . . . But back to McLeod. His name is McLeod, but he leads the life of Reilly . . . He's a gentleman farmer . . . Writes winters and farms summers . . . When the hay and alfalfa are all in and the cold comes George hits for the big cities and the grunt and groan circuit . . . The tweet, tweet of the birdies carolling springtime in dear old I-o-way sends him scuttling back to the farm now . . . In between wrestling bouts in the winter George often gets homesick and hies himself back to the farm and the woodpile

McLEOD

If you don't believe it here he is . . . Besides cattle, an' horses, an' sheep an' pigs and livestock of all kinds, Farmer George has a pack of the finest hunting dogs in the country . . . We told you he led the life of Reilly . . . How we'd like to let Belle and Major and Long Ears loose and take the old Winchester down from the rack right now . . . Hey, Farmer, wanta swap jobs with a sporting editor?

Anyone here seen Kelly?

No, not Kelly from the Emerald Isle . . . Kelly from Cambridge, the new Boxing Commissioner . . . With Council's approval . . . Inasmuch as every club in the league wants Bill Terry it looks as if Charlie Stoneham might listen to reason . . . Brooklyn is the latest to put out feelers . . . Del Bissonette informed Max Carey he would stay in Maine and raise apples if Brooklyn couldn't pay him more . . . Max, the Canary, immediately baited hooks for Terry . . . Judge Fuchs' lines already are out . . . The Judge isn't worrying much about landing the catch, for Art the Great Ehlers seems perfectly capable of covering Getaway bassock for the Braves . . . What has become of the Massachusetts racing bills? . . . Will the only way Bay State sports be permitted to follow the ponies be with shovel and broom?

So many guys have a piece of Max Baer that he himself gets less than 30 per cent of his ring earnings and has applied to the courts to be divorced from some of the chiselers . . . No truth in the rumor Art Ross is training the Bruins in the Massachusetts General Hospital . . . Might interest Barry Wood to know that John Hope Doeg has quit tennis and gone to work for a Newark newspaper . . . On successive days Johnny downed Wood, Tilden and Shields in his smashing drive for the title in 1930 . . . Note that the teams leading in hockey scoring also lead in time served in the penalty boxes . . . Looks as if it paid to be naughty in hockey.

By BILL GRIMES

After donning extra pads and double taping their sticks, the Bruin Cubs will go out on the Garden ice tonight, ready, willing and anxious to swap chops, trips and body checks with the Bronx Tigers.

The Cubs are battling to stay within hailing distance of the pacemaking Rhode Island Reds. They are expecting a strenuous game from the Bronx Tigers, who, like themselves, have shown a penchant toward the rougher brand of hockey.

Since their last home appearance the Cubs have acquired the services of Eddie Jeremiah and Walter Harnott. Jeremiah came to them from the New York Americans, via New Haven, while Harnott was purchased from the Montreal A. A. A. (Laugh that off.)

The acquisition of Harnott and Jeremiah enabled Manager Eddie Powers three orthodox lines, for he now has three right-handed forwards, Yank Boyd, Eddie Jeremiah and Jack Kwasnie.

Jeremiah will be at right wing on the Denny Weir line, with Harnott on the opposite flank, while Kwasnie will team with Red Conn and Paul Bunge, with the old reliable first line of Frank Ierwa, Dede Klein and Yank Boyd carrying the bulk of the burden.

Jack Pratt and Joe Jerwa, will be on the outer defense with Myles Lane in reserve and Fetch Cude in the goals.

Tigers Use Wild Play to Draw Fans to Games

The Bronx Tigers have resorted to vigorous hockey in order to develop a following in New York.

The Cubs play the style of hockey that the fans enjoy. They take any risks to win. They deal out punishment and they take it. They neither give nor ask for quarter.

And because of their earnest, strenuous and interesting engagements they have become a fine attraction, one which is gathering more and more supporters weekly, and one which will soon rival the Bruins as to its number of followers.

KEEPING IN SHAPE WITH SWAMPSCOTT BERNIE

Of course it's BERNIE FRIBERG, who left Lynn English eventually to enter major league baseball and play every position on the team as well as captain and manager, that meets your eye. Bernie captains the Phils now. He broke in the majors with the Cubs in 1919, but still is going as strong as ever. How he keeps in condition is told by JOE CASHMAN in an accompanying story. Here you see Bernie playing handball, engaged in a ping pong game with our own JOE CASHMAN and crooning a love tune to his wife with his own banjo accompaniment. Read Joe Cashman's story. It's worth while.

Ping Pong Fits Lynn Big Leaguer for '32

By JOE CASHMAN

Your more or less dutiful baseball recorder has taken to ping-pong. See the picture!

Yes, we know what you are thinking. We used to think so ourselves. But you're all wrong.

Bernie Friberg, our partner, convinced us of that.

You all know Bernie, the Lynn boy who stepped off the Cornets into the majors over a dozen years ago and is still good enough to be captain of the Phils.

Well, ping-pong is one of his methods of keeping in condition. And he has been in such fine shape throughout his big league career that he has played all nine baseball positions and captained and managed in his spare moments.

Tie that record, any of you ping-pong defamers.

Wild Waves Chant Sweet Music to Bernie

We sauntered down to Swampscott to learn the secret of the ping pong amazing versatility.

Practice, more practice and still more practice was the answer. Not a week day passes that Bernie doesn't play handball, basketball, ping-pong or baseball.

The Friberg manse is a cozy little place by the ocean front. Bernie loves that surf, to swim in during the summer and to listen to in the winter.

It was music practice time when we happened in. Both Bernie and Ruth, his pretty blond wife, a childhood sweetheart and his first and only love, are accomplished musicians, he on the banjo and she on the piano.

But we had come to talk baseball. So the music ceased. Really, they're the most obliging folks.

Would Bernie tell us how he whiles away the hours between fall and spring. He would do better than that. He would show us how.

So we hopped over to the Marblehead "Y," where for almost two hours he played hand ball, basketball, ping-pong and toiled on the pulleys. Then a shower and back home.

Sunday Bernie's Only Day of Rest

That is his schedule four days a week. On Tuesdays and Thursdays he gets in his baseball in a cage at Andover. Being a good Philadelphian by this time, he does nothing but relax on Sundays.

The result:

Bernie never has had a sore arm, leg or muscle during his career, not even during the first days of spring training, and he is never more than five pounds over his playing weight of 180 pounds.

Bernie first gained fame at Lynn English. He was outstanding in baseball, football, basketball and track. In fact he is still rated as the greatest all-around athlete ever turned out in the Shoe City.

Kink Morrisey Gave Friberg Head Start

At the same time, he played for the Cornets along with Tommy Whelan and Johnny Ring. He credits old "Kink" Morrisey, who managed that club, with teaching him most of his baseball and developing him to the point where he attracted the attention of Jack Doyle, Cubs scout.

Without any pro experience, he made the grade in Chicago and remained there, with the exception of one year, until '25, when he was made captain, celebrated by breaking a leg and was traded to the Phils.

The entire family loves baseball, Son Billy, aged 9, makes frequent trips with the Phils. He shapes up as though he may follow in dad's footsteps.

That will be o. k. with Bernie, though he won't urge the youngster to do so.

But he will insist that the youngster, as well as his other two children, Virginia, 12, and Bobby, 5, all keep in shape.

When Is Beer Coming Back, Babe's Worry

New York, Jan. 28.

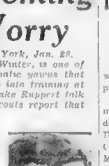
COL. RUPPERT



BABE RUTH

THE BABE—Well, Colonel, what do we get the beer back?

THE COLONEL—Soon I hope.

THE BABE—Well, I certainly hope we get it back.

THE COLONEL—People get what they want sooner or later.

THE BABE—Think so? All the men it would put to work, farmers and truck drivers and everything.

THE COLONEL—No doubt about it. Everybody wants it.

THE BABE—Well, I must be going, Colonel. See you some time.

THE COLONEL—About that contract now, Ruth. Suppose we . . .

THE COLONEL—What's that?

THE BABE—I said I'll be seein' you. Wie gehts, Colonel.

* * *

Two Weeks Later

THE BABE—Well, here I am.

THE COLONEL—Have a seat, Ruth.

THE BABE (mopping his brow)—Gee, this weather is sumpin' fierce for January. When do we get the beer back, Colonel?

THE COLONEL—It won't be long now, I hope.

THE COLONEL—That's what I claim.

THE BABE—Well, I hope we get it back.

THE COLONEL—You and me both.

THE BABE—You said a mouthful, Colonel.

THE COLONEL—Have you decided about the contract yet, Ruth?

THE BABE—I was thinking about that the other day, Colonel. Some time we'll sit down and talk it over. I must be going now.

* * *

Two Weeks Later

THE BABE—Well, Colonel how's tricks?

THE COLONEL—Not so good. Tough times, Ruth.

THE BABE—That's just what I was saying to my missus the other day, and she says to me we'd struggle along somehow.

THE COLONEL—I read somewhere that a man who gets the same this year as last is really getting a 20 per cent raise. So, if he gets a cut of only 10 per cent he is really getting a 10 per cent raise.

THE BABE—Uh huh.

THE COLONEL—It sounds sensible to me.

THE BABE—Not to change the subject, Colonel, but when do we get the beer back?

THE COLONEL—That's what I'd like to know.

THE BABE—Well I hope it's soon. A lot of men are out of work and the bootleggers are getting all the dough.

THE COLONEL—Did you bring the contract with you, Ruth?

THE BABE—Gee, I haven't had time to read it honest I ain't, Colonel. You going to Florida this spring?

THE COLONEL—I hope to.

THE BABE—Well, I'll see you down there. I've gotta go get myself a new set of golf clubs. Well, wie gehts, Colonel, I hope we get the beer back.

THE COLONEL—You said a mouthful, Ruth.

RAWSON NEXT HEUSER FOE

It's Adolph Heuser. He's a German, weighs 173 pounds and is under the management of Johnny Buckley. He bumped off Pietro Corri in three rounds at Portland, Me., the other night. Sure, the same Corri who busted up Young Stribling in a 10-round contest at Birmingham, Ala., recently.

They have added Heuser to the Jack Dempsey-Charley Retzaff card at the Garden a week from Friday night. He will take on Big Boy Rawson. Looks like a puncaing bee.

Kilroy Pins Cranston at Opera House

James Crephon won from Frank Gowdy while Paul Adams defeated Billy Brooks. Ted Germaine, south Boston, downed Ed McNeil, New Hampshire.

BLOOD, TEARS MINGLED AT GARDEN

By JACK CONWAY

Pat O'Shocker was seated on the edge of a table in his dressing room at the Boston Garden when I busted in on him.

The blood was pouring from a wide open wound over his left eye. The gash was three inches long.

"They'll say I quit," said O'Shocker when Tooks Mondt and Ray Fabiani told him he couldn't wrestle any more.

"What do you think O'Shocker should do?" queried Mondt of this writer.

"It would be foolish for him to go back there again with that open cut," I answered. "Lewis would knock him stiff with the first rush. Get a doctor and have the wound stitched up. Be sure it is cleaned out first to avoid poisoning."

Burt Whitman and Doc Almy came into the dressing room and took a peek at the wound. So did Doc Brown.

Pat Waters Garden With Tears and Blood

"I'll do the job here," replied the doctor. "T ke a shower, Pat, and I'll then b ready for you."

"How many s'tches will it take doctor?" I asked.

Disappointment Causes O'Shocker to Cry

O'Shocker cried some more, not from the pain, but because he was unable to go on with the match.

Didn't Sharkey cry when he licked Wills?

The match itself. Lewis used crushing headlocks in quick succession and tipped short punches to the jaws. O'Shocker drove hard blows to the stomach. The Strangler and O'Shocker crashed in a head on collision. The blood rushed from a wound over O'Shocker's left eye. Oceans of blood it appeared. Lewis and O'Shocker were soon covered with it.

Referee Potts started to stop the contest. Toots Mondt shouted to let the bout go on

The Strangler slipped on a headlock. It was all over in 11m. 20s. Then Pat cried. Just because he was only one point in your wrestling life, O'Shocker.

Mike Romano Fails in Giant-Killer Role

The ring was large enough for Leo Pinetski, Polish giant, six feet eight inches, 280 pounds. He swarmed all over Mike Romano of Italy and gobbled him up in 3m. 40s. He used an inside crotch hold to toss Romano into the frying pan.

George Zaharias, Greek heavyweight, knocked off Jim McNamara of Washington in 14m. 45s. Zaharias probably could have done the job more quickly if it were not for the fact he wanted to give the fans something for their dough.

Hans Steinke of Germany won from Gregg Maniah of Hugo-Slavia in 19m. 27s. Kola Kwariani of Russia disposed of Renato Gardini of Italy in 7m. 10s. with a body lift and slam.

Can still picture O'Shocker crying

Frank Nordell Is 1000 Race Winner

Newark, N. J., Jan. 28—Frank Nordell of N. Y. U., won a stirring victory in a 1000-yard handicap race here, Ed Brown was second and George Kastner third. Ray Conger, famed star of the Illinois A. C., grabbed 12th place.

Ira Singer won the dash series. Ed Rolt was first in the 500.

THUMBERG REFUSES TO RACE IN OLYMPICS

SKATE CHAMP SUSPENDED BY FINLAND

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 28 (AP)—Clas Thunberg, Finnish Olympic and world champion speed skater, today was disqualified for a year by the Finnish Skating Union for his refusal to go to Lake Placid for the Olympics and his "repeated unsporting actions tending to injure the sport of skating."

The union said hi refusal to go to Lake Placid was based on unreasonable grounds and against the spirit of amateur sport.

Thunberg's reasons were that he did not approve of the American method of running the speed races incompetitive style and making the standing start.

BAT-MILLER GO NO CONTEST

Battalino's featherweight title earlier in the day, before the affair had been declared vacated by the National Boxing Association, when Battalino weighed in above the featherweight limit of 126 pounds.

A small crowd, which after the meeting was promised its money back, booed lustily throughout the get-together. The first two rounds were very slow.

Battalino

Came the third. The gong! The warriors marched cautiously to the center of the ring. Miller let fly a right which apparently carried little power. Battalino went down.

Referee Bauman ordered the Hartford ringman to get up and fight. But arose, but Miller reached Battalino's chin again and down went Bat.

Referee Does Not Count as Bat Is Down

Seconds passed. The referee did not count. Battalino lay on the canvas, Miller stood in a corner of the ring. At last Bauman ordered Bat to continue. Bat didn't rise, so the referee aided the fighter to get up.

Battalino later announced that efforts to make the weight had so sapped his strength that he was unable to fight.

New York, Jan. 28 (INS)—Jack Hurley, manager of Billy Petrolle, was expected to arrive here today from Duluth, Minn., to close negotiations for the proposed bout between the Fargo, N. D., veteran and Christopher "Bat" Battalino of Hartford, Ct. The fight is slated to be held at Madison Square Garden here in about a month.

VAN CAMP AND LUCAS ENLIST

Signed contracts continue to pour into the Red Sox offices at Fenway Park. The latest to be received were from Al Van Camp, utility infielder and outfielder, and Jack Lucas, rookie fly-chaser.

That makes a total of six Sox who have joined the fold to date, according to the official announcements.

Van Camp, serving his first season in the majors last year, showed up very well both at first base and in the outfield. And he hit close to .300. He has high hopes of winning a regular berth this season. If he fails, he needn't worry. He is too versatile a performer to be turned loose.

Lucas received a tryout with the Sox last spring and was later optioned out to Richmond, Va., where he had a great year.

BROUILLARD MEETS FIELDS

Brouillard is a slight favorite though his foe's experience may prove too tough a hurdle for him to top.

Fields has been training hard to get down to weight for the go. It is possible that his work has weakened him for the fight tonight.

When Gunboat Smith Flattened Wells

THE FINISHING WALLOP

The series of "Finishes of Old-Time Fights" will be featured in the Sporting Pages of the Boston Evening American throughout the winter months.

Today we give you the story of Gunboat Smith's two-round victory over Bombardier Wells. The fight was held in the old Madison Square Garden, March 14, 1913.

By W. S. FARNSWORTH

A wild right swing that carried destruction belonged to Gunboat Smith, now an able referee licensed by the New York Boxing Commission. That deadly wallop smashed on Bombardier Wells' jaw twice, and once on the back of the big blond Englishman's head. Three times the Adonis of the ring stretched out flat on the floor.

The last time it crashed against the Bombardier's jaw the fight ended. The big form laid out flat, dead to the world. There was no need of a count. The limp body was carried to his corner and for five minutes he was crumpled up, with his handlers doing their best to revive him.

Smith was boiling when he rushed from his corner at the bell in the second round. He kept after Wells and, like a lightning flash, he hit him full in the stomach with a right. An expression of pain flitted over the Englishman's face. A right came from the hip. It struck Wells flush on the jaw.

The idol staggered, his knees gave way and he dropped to the floor. It was a case of demons turned loose, while Referee Billy Joh kept tolling off the fatal seconds. Wells kept shaking his head. At nine he arose. The lust of victory was in Gunboat's heart. He made another wide curving lunge. It landed on Wells' neck. The form tottered, fell and for the first time in his career his handsome face was deep in the resin. He got up again at the count of nine.

Desperately fighting to stave off that dread wallop, he threw all his strength into left and right swings. They didn't bother Smith. He took them all and then shot that terrible right to the jaw. The Bombardier fell again—and this time he didn't get up.

20 EGGS MERE SNACK FOR PINETZKI

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Well, the young fellow, who is only 24 years of age, needs a little nourishment. Then again he gets tired. His biggest worry is 'rying to get a good night's sleep while traveling.

Usually he takes to a drawing room. He won't tell you whether he has to sleep on the floor or not. But I will swear that he is really too big to fit in bed or a bunk.

His measurements are 8 feet 5 inches, weight 280 pounds and he has a reach of eight feet. His wearing apparel consists of a couple of suit cases for shoes, a suit of clothes that Ringling Bros. could use as a tent, which he claims he purchased in Berlin for about $50. This same outfit would cost me about $250 to build for him here in Boston.

Pinetzki Married; Has Three Children

He is married and lives in Warsaw, has a wife and three children, but if they wait until Leo gets through eating the offspring get nothing but crumbs.

But this does and inhales the following nourishment during the day:

BREAKFAST

20 eggs, scrambled, boiled or otherwise.

Plenty of black bread, or rye, with butter.

LUNCHEON

Potatoes. Plenty.

Black or rye bread.

Cabbage soup.

DINNER

2 quarts butter milk.

Scrambled eggs.

Steak.

Mr. Leon Pinecki, alias Leo Pinecki, has a mineral water brought from Russia. Depression forced the little man to close his restaurant, which was his business over the seas.

But there's no depression for other restaurant owners who are lucky enough to capture Leo for one of their customers.

HOLD SERVICES FOR WRIGLEY

Chicago, Jan. 28 (INS)—The elite of the baseball world were here today to attend memorial services for the late William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Cubs.

The services were to be held at 1 o'clock today, the same hour as the funeral services at Pasadena, Cal.

The American League is to be represented by William Harridge, league president, Louis Comiskey and Harry Grabiner will pay the respects of the White Sox.

Connie Mack, Landis, Henry F. Edwards of the American League, William Walker and John Seys, vice-presidents of the Cubs, and the entire Cubs' office staff are among those who will attend.

Dempsey Doddering Old Bozo—Jacobs

New York, Jan. 28 (INS)—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, heavyweight champion, today unleashed a blast ridiculing Jack Dempsey's announced intention of fighting the winner of the Schmeling-Sharkey bout.

"That doddering old Bozo hasn't any more real intention of fighting Schmeling or Sharkey than I have," declared Jacobs. "All he wants i sa little ballyhoo for his exhibition tour.

"If Dempsey is sincere, Schmeling will meet him in September, but Jack will have to take the challenger's end of 12½ per cent."

Jack Conway Picks McCoy on Toss of a Coin

Jack Conway was about to toss a coin to decide whether to pick Bibber McCoy or Al Morelli in the wrestling jam at the Arena tonight.

"Let's toss it," said Freddy Lane.

"Okay," replied Jack.

"Here goes. Heads McCoy, tails Morelli."

"Heads wins," chirped Freddy.

"So McCoy is the selection," said Conway. "Blame it on the coin if Bibber gets licked."

Mr. Boston

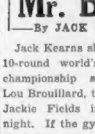
By JACK CONWAY

Jack Kearns should enjoy the 10-round world's welterweight championship scrap between Lou Brouillard, title holder, and Jackie Fields in Chicago tonight. If the gym gossips have their dope correct, Kearns owns 17½ per cent of each fighter. He should give a whoop no matter who wins.

Kearns is generalissimo of the welterweight combine. When a new champion steps into the throne room he is obliged to take Kearns' luggage in with him. The luggage is always labeled "Kearns' 17½ per cent."



Mr. Boston

The fact it doesn't make a great deal of difference to Kearns whether Brouillard or Fields wins tonight, should give the Worcester youth a better chance of gaining the victory. Kearns won't be pulling any strings to get the duke for Fields. He's satisfied with the fact "both boys are members of this club."

"Just business," Kearns would probably remark, if you mentioned the matter to him.

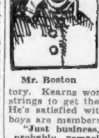
Ernie Schaaf Is Found in Boston Art Club

I found Ernie Schaaf sitting in with Franklin Collier and a flock of other artists at "Athletic Night" at the Boston Art Club. The pen and brush boys got a peek at a great heavyweight, also the model for the famous Muldoon-Tunney trophy.



Lou Brouillard

Ernie whispered to me he is training with Eizear Rioux at Kearns's and Buckley's gym for his 15-round bout with Paulino at the Bay York Garden a week from Friday night.

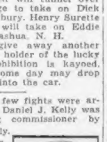
Guess the cash customers like that $1 boxing at Mechanics Building out at the Argonne A. A. and kitchen at the Arena. Dave Arrata showed me a tab to the effect he had banked $810 of Argonne Club dough before the main bout for that Monday night was announced. Apparently old John Public figures it is worth $1 a rattle to see any kind of a ring show.

Mack intends to toss a million or so tons of beef into the ring Monday night. Al Grayson of Charlestown, who dynamited his way through the amateurs, also lists some heavy broadsides at Dan Martin of Dover who confesses he is the heavyweight champion of New Hampshire. That's like being the admiral of the Swiss navy.

Terry Mitchell will tunnel over from Cambridge to take on Dick Madden of Roxbury. Henry Surette of Leominster will take on Eddie Callanan of Nashua, N. H.

Mack will give away another roadster to the holder of the lucky ticket. If prohibition is kayoed, the sergeant some day may drop a keg of beer into the car.

I am glad a few fights were arranged just as Daniel J. Kelly was named boxing commissioner by Governor Ely.



Dave Mishel

It was beginning to look as if the boxing game was passing out along with hoop skirts, stocks selling at par and other novelties. In case you don't know Kelly, he is a splendid character, will clean up boxing and put the game on a firm basis.

Now that the boxing commissioner has been named, the dear old promoters will be able to cut the fill other candidates for the job from their Annie Oakley lists. The promoters have been playing it safe.

Dave Mishel Takes Wrestler for a Walk

Into the sports department breezed Dave Mishel, one of the famous Iron Man Brown family ball fame. He had Harry Cornsweet, another Iron Man, on his arm. Cornsweet has gone grapple, and Mishel came along with him to make sure that George Grimm didn't try to knock him off with a headlock. Mishel, by the way, knows his football and is looking for a coaching job. Here's a good man for some New England college.

Such is fame.

Toots Mondt slipped me the information Lewis has cleaned up $500,000 in the wrestling game, but that he has spent most of his dough. Toots says the Strangler has 30 grand salted away in an insurance annuity.

MORELLI AND M'COY IN MAT NATURAL

"Seven, eleven," shouted Paul.

The natural represented by Al Morelli and Bibber McCoy, will shoot it out in the Arena ring tonight.

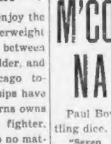
Even though the football season is over, the boys feel they can do something for their dear old Alma Maters. Since that fellow Gus Sonnenburg came along it appears as if 99 per cent of college graduates want to take up wrestling. They say wrestlers get a bit more frequently than some members of the professions.

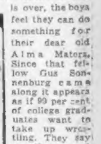


Al Morelli

The correspondent is going to have his nose right up close to the ring when Morelli and McCoy sweep into action. It should be a great match.

The boys are wrestling under American Association rules which means best two falls out of three will decide the contest. If there is a fall within an hour, otherwise one toss does the trick.

Bowser has paired Count Zbyszko against Freddie Meyer in the semifinal. This match should be an fast as some of those new cars they have been showing at the auto show.



Bibber McCoy

Complete Card at Arena Tonight

Mat Show Banned at Waltham Hall

The wrestling show scheduled for this evening in Hovey Hall, Waltham, was indefinitely postponed by Promoter Eddie Quinn when he was informed by the proprietors of the auditorium that they had placed a ban on the use of the building for wrestling. He will endeavor to stage the show in another hall at a later date.

STOP THAT COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

RADIO HOWARD LINCOLN

Life of Great Emancipator Reviewed

By M. F. T.

Something truly unusual in the way of an Abraham Lincoln tribute is being planned at NBC headquarters in New York. Radio facilities will be found taking no unimportant part in keeping bright the glory of America's Civil War idol.

* * *

On February 12th, microphone moguls are introducing a man who mingled with Lincoln in those days when the great emancipator was shaping his early career. This 97-year-old intimate neighbor of the then struggling young attorney is Gaius Paddock, long a resident of St. Louis and incidentally still active among business men there.

* * *

Though quite a few years younger than "Honest Abe" he has authentic knowledge of the trials and tribulations leading up to that glorious epoch in history that gave the White House it's most beloved master. Mr. Paddock will submit to an interview between 2:30 and 3 p. m., immediately following Ida Tarbell's eulogy on "He Knew Lincoln," as recited by Edgar White Burrill.

* * *

These and other historical highlights will feature the big NBC celebration, originating in New York and relayed over a nation-wide network of stations, to be transmitted hereabouts by WEEI.

* * *

Radio racketeering of the highest order is revealed with the story of a "wise Willie" who offers to have 1000 letters sent to "mike" stars from all parts of the U. S. His fee for such "service" is $50. When one well-known air celebrity folded a right flat to smack the whisker frigid, it was found that many prominent studio folk are among his customers. Disillusioning, all such messy mooching—eh?

* * *

There's a worthy motive and commendable spirit behind these nightly bits (WNAC) sponsored by Sears-Roebuck Company and featuring New England mayors.

CBS orchman Mark Warnow is quite proud of his ability to put people to sleep by hypnotism.

ERNEST HUTCHESON, CBS concert pianist, always brings a box of calcium powder to his p'gram, ready for instant use—for his hands . . . The cigarette hr. will soon include "Bud" Rainey's band . . . Al Jolson is being mentioned to succeed Eddie Cantor on the latter's p'gram . . . Graham McNamee is back on the sick list . . . The Mills Bros. are using an orch. but the answer is otherwise . . . Little Jack Little is dickering for a 3-a-wk. series for a cigar firm.

BILLY PAYNE was joshing Ranny Weeks about his name being omitted from the list of names Ranny pointed to the big lights and said "Sure it's there. See, over there: 'HIGH PRESSURE'."

Just before Kartha Lee took to the air you'll see Eva American Gloria Trotter sneezed into the mike. Whereupon the eveready lady piled up a nickel into the gadget and went ahead . . . A local theater has decided to get along without radio talent for a while . . . You can blame WEEI's Charlie Button for originating the radio interview.

ART JARRETT gets his "obligato singing" from early days when he never considered memorizing the lyrics, improvising instead. Ari, y'know, is having trouble lining up a sponsor although he always deadly in radio . . . The B'dcast Rehearsal p'gram tries to be different in giving the commercial talk and it is. So different, in fact, that after every spiel a member of the cast breaks out into laughing praise about the product . . . Ted Husing's Sportslants comes over WNAC at 9:15 tonight . . . And those gagsters Burns and Allen are Vallee's guests, WEEI at 8 this eve.

Our Generous Police

Denied Their Raise, They Donate to the Needy

PATROLMAN DICKEY CLERK KENNY

CAPT. ROONEY SUPT. CROWLEY COMR. HULTMAN

PRESENTATION OF $20,000 TO AID UNEMPLOYMENT DRIVE

They have donated $20,000 from their own relief fund to the general unemployment campaign.

Moreover, they have voluntarily decided to contribute a day's salary per month for the next five months for this unemployment relief.

We are moved to recall that the $20,000 was drawn by them out of the fund which they themselves create for the care of their own.

Year in and year out they provide for their brother officers who become ill or are wounded in line of duty and for the women and children left dependent through the death of these hero civil soldiers who fall in the first line of defense while protecting the safety of their fellow citizens.

This very substantial sum now moves out of the fund of their own creation to be used for relief of the suffering of others in whom they have only the general interest of mutual humanity.

We are moved to recall also that they will contribute from their own salary at a time when the automatic pay raises morally guaranteed them for faithful performance of duty have been canceled. They could be expected to harbor bitterness because of this; yet they have countered this blow with a splendid example of generosity. They are entitled to this meed of praise. Their example can well be emulated at this time by those among us who are much richer in worldly goods and material blessings.

The Death Chair

Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner, in his excellent annual report, recommended that a serious study now be made of the abolition of capital punishment.

The death chair has been a savage institution in this Commonwealth for many generations.

Murder and banditry have meanwhile increased. The death chair has not proved itself to be a deterrent to felonious crime. If we are to accept the statements of the hardened, unregenerate criminals as being true, they prefer this way out to the actual punishment of life imprisonment.

But our concern is not for them. Better that the death chair, relic of ancient barbarism, be eliminated than that the life of one innocent man be destroyed by it.

If the study proposed by Mr. Warner shall remove this vicious relic and lead us to a more kindly and Christian philosophy, by all means let it be done.

As an Aid to Labor

Edwin S. Smith, the State Commissioner of Labor and Industries, has asked the Legislature for authority to develop and expand the State employment bureaus and agencies.

As we understand the plan from statements made by him, Mr. Henry S. Dennison and officers of the American Federation of Labor, the plan would more readily bring unemployed men and women into jobs for which they are exactly fitted and required.

They offer the assurance that the plan would actually give a more secure standing and prestige to reputable private employment agencies by eliminating the "fakers" whose only concern is to obtain fees, even at the expense of putting workers into positions for which they are ifly equipped, like round pegs in square holes.

On those facts, the Smith plan is entitled to the favorable consideration of the Legislature.

Prohibition Low-Down

Chairman O'Connor, of the Shipping Board, says to the Merchant Marine Committee of Congress:

"People have told me that they would rather travel on foreign lines where they did not feel they were breaking the law when they bought and drank liquor."

O'Connor-me-lad, they were only kidding you. The people who travel on foreign lines in order to drink make no bones whatever about drinking in their home towns. Breaking the Prohibition Law is all applesauce to them.

The Prohibition Law has fallen into such wide-spread contempt and is violated so universally and so naturally and so matter-of-factly that anyone who wanted a glass of beer and got it and then worried about having broken the law belongs in a museum.

Those people travel on foreign lines because they get a bigger and finer assortment of drinks and they don't have to keep the bottle under the table.

Words of the Wise Men

Nothing is so firmly believed as what we know least.—Montaigne.

The Three R's of the Internationalist

In the little red schoolhouse days, when "readin' an' 'ritin' an' 'rithmetic were taught to the tune of a hick'ry stick," it was fashionable to be an American. "America First" was the slogan of the founders, who, grounded in sturdy Americanism, boasted of their love of country and proudly proclaimed it—AND THE WORLD ADMIRED AND RESPECTED THEM FOR IT.

Now the cult of the internationalist, with "America Last" as its guiding sign, attempts to gain sway.

It looks with favor upon the attempts of our foreign debtors to get out of paying the TWELVE THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS justly due and owing to the United States Treasury.

The three R's of this school are "revision, reduction and repudiation" of debts to Uncle Sam.

This cult, through the Hoover moratorium, has just shifted approximately TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLIONS of dollars added burden from European debtors to the backs of American taxpayers.

If it should have its way, the entire debt would be cancelled by Uncle Sam and the cost shifted in its entirety to American taxpayers.

But the American people will have something to say about that, and when they speak what they say WILL BE WITH EMPHASIS.

"Pot Luck"

LONELY?

Going through life playing solitaire . . . wishing you could get into the big game, yet not knowing how?

"Why are some people so popular?" Is that what you're saying to yourself? "Why does everybody warm up when they come around? Why does everybody trust them . . . take them into their confidence? Nobody treats me like that. People are nice enough—but it's a cold niceness. They never really let me in—"

Want to know why they don't let you in, parties?

BECAUSE YOU WON'T LET THEM IN.

You think the world is shutting you out. The truth is, deep inside yourself you're shutting the world out. People haven't shoved you into a corner. You've picked that corner yourself and parked yourself in it.

It all began with your own conceit and fear . . . "Maybe there was a hurt. Some shock, or loss, or continued unfairness. I can't tell about that. But, for some reason, your bruised or frightened spirit went off by itself, and proceeded to brood over its own troubles.

And the more you encouraged it, the more different you felt—and the more shut out from the rest of the world—

And now you're so lonely that you often wish you were dead. Well, you might as well be—for all the good you are to yourself or anyone else. And the saddest part is that you are wishing it on yourself.

There's a perfectly easy way to get into other people's lives . . . to share their joys and sorrows, their hopes and dreams. And that is—LET THEM INTO YOUR OWN.

But in order to do that, you must first break down this wall you have built about yourself. YOU MUST STOP THINKING THAT YOU ARE DIFFERENT. You aren't different. Those emotions you feel—your fear and anger and confusion—everyone else feels that way, too. And the things that have happened to you—the snubs, the shocks, the cruel neglects and misunderstandings, the humiliating blunders—they have happened to other people, too.

Those people you're envying—those popular, happy, successful people—their lives haven't been much different than yours. They've simply taken life differently. They've realized that life was all of a piece—and they've taken and shared it just as it came. They've taken, they've given "pot luck."

Remember that old expression? Your mother used it when she asked some passing stranger to stay for supper.

"There isn't much," she'd smile. "Just pot luck . . . but you're welcome."

And never a one refused that welcome. Sometimes the pot held mighty simple fare. Just a boiling of beans or an old fashioned vegetable soup. Sometimes, on holidays, there were grand left-overs from the turkey dinner. But whatever there was warmed the spirit as well as the flesh, for her friendliness went with it.

Life's "pot luck," too, my dear. The same old pot for all of us . . . with the same old makings in it. Take it and share it. Don't huddle off in a corner with your bowl of bitter brew. Don't wait until someone spreads a particular feast and invites you to dine. Come out of your loneliness and into the friendly cheer. Throw your life into that common pot—ALL of your life—don't hold back a scrap of this or a shred of that . . . And then take out, as others take—pot luck.

SHARE YOUR LIFE WITH THE REST OF THE WORLD AND THE WORLD WILL SHARE ITS LIFE WITH YOU.

Just Folks

Good Times Grief

In the good old days of money
When the skies were always sunny
And they made us wait three months to buy their cars,
When the fact'ry wheels were roaring
And the price of things were soaring,
And they charged us fifteen cents for poor cigars,
Pessimists went up and down
Scattering gloom throughout the town.
In those days now long departed
Building booms were quickly started
And a fortune could be gathered overnight,
Though the boys in linen collars
Had their pockets bulged with dollars
And most any dub could guess the market right.
Men in places high or humble
Over trifles used to grumble.
In the good old times regretted
People very often fretted
When they traveled 'cause they couldn't get a room,
And to have to take the cheaper
Upper berth within the sleeper
Made the passenger a minister of gloom.
Then a few dark hours of raining
But now real cares beset us
We should like to ride in uppers on the train,
How we'd grin if they would tell us
Not for three months could they sell us—
It would mean prosperity had come again.
What we sigh for—and it's funny—

New York Day by Day

Broadway Cabarets

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—Broadway's cabarets are trying to adjust themselves to swiftly changing conditions. Perhaps nothing has impressed the pleasure loving boulevardier with the new order as the electric sign hardby the Winter Garden, gleaming red, "Two Bits Cabaret."

One by one the two to five dollar couvert places have quietly faded from the picture. Medium priced places flaunt banners, "No Cover—No Minimum Price." And the innumerable so-called "take-joints" that made additions with split lead pencils for the befuddled are no more.

N. T. C.'s Hollywood, which started the slash in prices, is about the sole survivor of the cabarets of two years ago. The night club, which differentiates from the cabaret in offering one or two stellar acts, is about finished, temporarily at least.

Such talented "draws" as Helen Morgan, Beatrice Lillie and others have failed to fill tables. The majority of cabarets are a pathetic counterfeit of the gaudy places that flourished so many years. Performers and orchestras are those totally unknown to the White Way.

They are cached in dinky basements, badly lit and stuffy with smoke. In one, the other night after the theater, I counted 18 people.

Afterward, a frayed imitation of the gifted Jimmy Durante cracked some moth eaten gags which seemed to drop complete duds. His discouragement had a touch of sadness when he observed: "I know this is rather sour but I'm doing my best. And it's this or the bread line."

The first cabaret I ever visited in New York was Maxim's, somewhere in the 30's near Broadway. It was a rowdy rendezvous attuning to ape its Parisian namesake. It twirled with confetti, and midnight found hiccuping gentlemen in paper caps blowing horns and beating clappers. I was on a newspaper assignment to talk to the tragic and novelette Celeste, a cigarette girl who married a rich wastrel and when invalidism shunted him to a wheel chair, cried cigarettes amid this pseudo-gaiety. The husband passed away and a few years ago I again saw Celeste, buxom and gray, checking wraps in a 49th st. chop-house.

* * *

Now and then some character of an older Broadway stands out vividly in the passing panorama. There was a cabaret, The Pekin, in the building occupying the space where 7th avenue intersects Broadway. If memory serves, the seal like Vincent Lopez used to "harry the harpsichord" there. At any rate it featured a blond wiggle dancer, not unlike the Gilda Gray of a later period. She was a hoyden who chucked customers under the chin as she shimmied by the tables. I see her now and then in the more sedate type of tea room places. The white haired gentleman who escorts her is, I am told, her husband, an executive in a religious publishing house. There is the air of middle-aged domestic peace about them. One, at least, who came out of the cabaret to contentment.

Leo Marsh took me to see Gilda Gray the first night she appeared on Broadway. It was in a night club over the Winter Garden. Husky voiced, with a wild mop of straw blond hair and the rowdy manners of the honky tonk, she seemed distinctly unlike for the cornucopian pay and theatrical stardom later achieved.

* * *

Harking back this way gives a fellow a Methuselah feeling. I'm going to sneak out to the kitchen and get off a little jigging. You know, life in the old boy yet!

A Thrice-Told Tale; Relief for Jobless

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America." "Founders of the Republic." "Jefferson and Democracy." "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for The Boston Evening American.

WITH THE PASSAGE of the $2,000,000,000 measure of relief for "the poor little rich men," of the banks and industries, the President moves with unaccustomed celerity to extend the benefits intended. We have favored this measure, for the welfare of all the people would suffer immeasurably by the collapse of the industrial and financial systems.

But there is another activity looking to the relief of men and women who need bread and clothing because they are out of work, and are practically denied the right to earn their bread through self-respecting labor, and this activity finds the President inactive.

A long time ago Senator Wagner introduced a Federal Employment Stabilization bill. Its purpose was sound in economics and common sense. It provided for advance planning for needed public improvements to the end that when private industry lagged and breadwinners were thrown upon the streets public work could be launched at once.

Year after year the Administration opposed this measure, but when as many as 6,000,000 men were on the street the President discontinued his opposition and signed the bill with a word of hearty approval not easily reconciled with his long opposition.

* * *

The Plans Are Ready

Now, as the result of the Wagner measure, the Stabilization Board has been busy for six months in making plans and specifications for needed Federal construction. These are ready now. Work can be commenced without delay. Congressional authorization for the projects has been given.

And the work now waits on the President, whose duty, under this law, is to submit to Congress estimates on the appropriations required.

This goes to the most human problem of the hour—the finding of jobs and bread for millions of men and women denied the right to work.

All this work, and vastly more through the building of highways, can be given by floating a prosperity loan, such as Mr. Hearst suggested and Senator Wagner and Senator La Follette.

It would not be a burden to be met today or tomorrow—for bonds would be bought eagerly, and every cent spent would be for improvements that increase the wealth of the nation, and a million and a half of the jobless could be put to work directly; and indirectly, through increased demands on industries for the material of the building, would give employment to another great army, and the money these men would get in wages would be spent with the merchants.

* * *

Let Them Starve?

It is admitted that the railroads need help; that industries may need help; that the banks may need help; and that the nation's interest is bound up in them all. But men, women and children, hungry, inadequately clothed, evicted and desperate, need help that they may live—and it is about time to consider them.

Private charity has not furnished a drop in the bucket of necessity—and won't. Local governments have exhausted their resources, and, needing loans, they get them from the bankers only on condition that they discontinue public improvements that give men work, and this means too that most of these local governments must discontinue appropriating money to feed the hungry.

If private charity fails, and it has failed; if local governments must stop appropriating money for the hungry; if the Federal Government persists in its determination that not one cent shall be appropriated to prevent the starvation of the innocent victims of a greedy and stupid economic policy, what is to become of these unfortunates?

Let them starve?

That would be a disgrace to China; that would be a damning indictment of our governmental system.

If money for bread is to be refused, then money for work must be furnished.

* * *

Mayor Cermak Suggests a Bond Issue

In Chicago, desperate efforts are being made to persuade the Legislature to appropriate $20,000,000 to feed the hungry, and Mayor Cermak says:

"Unless relief is granted by Feb. 1 nobody knows what will happen. Where we had one applicant before, we have five seeking help today. On the other hand, from the contributor who gave us $1000 a year ago we are lucky to get $100 today."

But just how can the national Government wash its hands of the problem of the starving and suffering? A prosperity loan is just as important now as a Liberty loan in days of battle—for we are fighting against starvation. We cannot live always in a fool's paradise. These desperate millions will not always "writhe with grace and groan with melody."

Kelly a Strong Man

The face of Daniel J. Kelly, the newly appointed Boxing Commissioner of Massachusetts, is a strong one.

This man struggled his way through college. He fought for an education against the odds which beset the young man born to humble circumstances.

On the football field, both as athlete and referee, he has had the reputation for daring and courage.

He will need plenty of the latter, along with common honesty and common sense, if he is to regulate this fighting business with the success and impartiality which its patrons are entitled to require.

Miss Meehan Confirmed

Being the only newspaper which advocated confirmation of Miss Mary E. Meehan's appointment as Associate Labor Commissioner of Massachusetts, the Boston Evening American naturally is gratified by the affirmative action at last taken by the Governor's Council. Miss Meehan can now begin her important work confident and happy in the knowledge that the great majority of Massachusetts citizens believe in her fitness and adaptability gained through twenty years of experience with the problems of capital and labor. Her solicitude will be naturally for the men and women who toil in industry. Her reputation, however, is one of fairness to employer as well as employe. We expect her attitude will be just and impartial.
